ELECT HOOVER TO END SLUMP, PLEA OF MILLS

Charges Roosevelt Lacks a Program.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, in opening the Republican drive to land Chicago and Illinois in the Hoover column on Nov. 8, declared last night that beating the depression is the supreme issue in the campaign, but that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has given it the silent treatment in his campaign for the presidency.

Secretary Mills charged that Roosevelt, in three months of campaigning, has "maintained complete silence" on plans to pull America out of the slump, and he argued that if the Democrats win in the election next month business recovery will be set back a year or more and the worst will still be to come.

Cheer Attack on Garner.

An audience of 5,000 at the Coliseum cheered as Secretary Mills ripped into Speaker John N. [Postoffice Jack] Garner, Roosevelt's running mate, as head of the Democratic house which adopted measures which would have "brought complete disaster."

Mr. Mills described Garner and his Democratic following in the house at Washington as being direct descendants of the free silverites and greenbackers, and he held that their house program had retarded business recovery.

"Defeat of the depression," said Mr. Mills, "is the supreme issue of this campaign. The reconstruction program is Herbert Hoover's answer. Franklin Roosevelt has none. He has maintained complete silence on methods he would use to cure the depression.

"Gov. Roosevelt is not able to point the way out, because he cannot see the way out."

Opens Intensive Illinois Drive.

The rally at the Coliseum, scene of conventions which nominated Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Hughes, and Harding, was the launching of an intensive campaign for Chicago and Illinois. Senator Otis F. Glenn spoke briefly for Hoover.

As a curtain raiser Illinois leaders at national headquarters during the afternoon redoubled their demands that Calvin Coolidge come to Chicago for a speech in the final fortnight of the campaign.

Party managers held that the Coolidge New York speech has started the wave towards Hoover, and that a Coolidge speech in Chicago would prove the weightiest factor in the battle to swing Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota into the Republican column. On this midwest area, normally Republican, the Republicans are now concentrating their campaign.

At noon Mr. Mills addressed a luncheon at the Hamilton club, attended by 500 bankers, business and industrial leaders.

His Coliseum Speech.

The depression and recovery were the theme at the Coliseum. Secretary Mills said the campaign of 1932 is the most important election since the Lincoln campaign of 1864 and the McKinley campaign of 1896.

"All that we have done to restore our credit situation might be undone in a single day," he said.

Mills said Roosevelt is asking the voters to give him "a blank check or a blank power of attorney in advance."

"Roosevelt's whole campaign," he remarked, "is apparently based on the theory that he can ride in on a wave of discontent, born of depression, without stating his position or program.

"He has discussed vaguely the causes of the depression; he has discussed even more vaguely what he would like to do after the depression is over; but as to how it is to be overcome he is completely silent on the one question of supreme importance to every family in the land."

Steps Taken by Hoover.

Describing the steps taken by the Hoover administration for business recovery, Secretary Mills declared that the depression has struck bottom and that recovery, now on the way, finds its greatest threat in the November election.

"I speak in terms of business recovery," he said, "for I for one am convinced that recovery is within reach and we shall move steadily forward unless the American people are so foolish as to interrupt this steady process by their votes at the polls next month.

"If the Democrats should be successful, the best that can happen is

GOV. ROOSEVELT GIVES VIEWS ON AIDING JOBLESS

He Points to Relief in New York.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight set forth his views on how to care for the army of the unemployed and their families in the coming winter.

In doing so the Democratic nominee took an indirect wallop at the pet plan of his running mate, Speaker John N. [Postoffice Jack] Garner. Mr. Roosevelt said he believed much could be done to relieve unemployment by public works construction programs, but that the condition of the federal treasury required that only projects which would be self-sustaining should be encouraged.

Several times during his speech, delivered over a national radio hookup, Gov. Roosevelt stressed the need for economy in government, in all governments—city, county, state, and national. He said, however, that this economy should not be at the expense of the suffering unemployed and particularly not at the expense of children.

Criticizes President.

The Democratic candidate criticized President Hoover and the Republican administration, declaring they sat for two years insisting there was no unemployment problem and only in the third year taking steps to apply federal relief to stricken communities where all other financial aids had been exhausted.

"The first principle I would lay down," said Mr. Roosevelt in discussing direct relief, "is that the primary duty rests on the community, through local government and private agencies to take care of the relief of unemployment. But we then come to a situation where there are so many people out of work that local funds are insufficient. It seems clear to me that the organized society known as the state comes into the picture at this point."

The Democratic candidate then declared that he practiced what he preaches, and he told how as governor of New York he caused special appropriations of twenty million dollars to be made in 1931 for relief, the funds being obtained through a doubling of the state income tax rate.

Voters to Pass on Bonds.

With more than a million unemployed in New York state alone, the legislature appropriated another five millions this spring, and on Nov. 8 the voters will pass on a thirty million dollar bond issue to tide the jobless over until next summer.

The last step in the obligations of government to its needy citizens should be taken by the federal government, Mr. Roosevelt went on.

"Where the state is unable successfully to fulfill the obligation which lies upon it, it then becomes the positive duty of the federal government to step in and help.

"It took the present Republican administration in Washington almost three years to recognize this principle," the governor went on. "For at least two years after the crash the only efforts made by the national administration to cope with the distress of unemployment were to deny its existence.

Finally Act, He Says.

"When finally this year, after attempts at concealment and minimizing had failed, when they were at last forced to recognize the fact of suffering among millions of unemployed, appropriations of federal funds for assistance to states were finally made.

"I have constantly been reiterating my conviction that the expenditures of cities, states and the federal government must be reduced in the interest of the nation as a whole. I believe there are many ways in which such reduction of expenditures can take place, but I am utterly unwilling that economy should be practiced at the expense of starving people.

"We must economize in other ways, but it shall never be said that the American people have refused to provide the necessities of life to those who, through no fault of their own, are unable to feed, clothe and house themselves. The first obligation of government is the protection of the welfare and well-being—the very existence of its citizens."

As to Public Works.

Then taking up the question of relieving unemployment through a program of public works, the governor

HOOVER'S HAND CUT; THOUSAND MISS GREETING

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—After shaking hands with a throng estimated at more than 3,000 persons, President and Mrs. Hoover tonight excused themselves while more than 1,000 waited to file by them at what presidential aids described as the largest White House reception in its history.

Capt. Walter Vernon, White House naval aid, announced in the crowded east room that the presidential couple were tired after a strenuous day, and it was learned later that Mr. Hoover had received a small cut on his right hand during the reception.

The chief executive was represented as feeling that when this injury began to bleed, it would be better to discontinue handshaking.

Dr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, said shortly after President and Mrs. Hoover retired that the chief executive was "feeling fine," but was slightly tired from his active day.

Upon leaving the reception room, the President walked up the stairs to the second floor with Mrs. Hoover on his arm.

The reception started the winter whirl of the executive mansion's social season more than a month in advance of its customary opening.

OFFICIAL FIGURES REVEAL 1,514,532 REGISTER IN CITY

The official figure for the total number of names of Chicagoans written in the poll books on the two general registration days was given yesterday as 1,514,532, by John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners. The figure is 20,001 higher than the unofficial count, but is likely to be reduced by revision after the precincts have been canvassed. The country towns' total may not be determined until tomorrow.

Mr. Rusch said the names of 762,243 registered on the first day of registration, Oct. 1, and 752,289 on last Tuesday, the second day. More men than women registered, he said, the figures respectively being 862,830 and 651,710.

Throws Babies to Death; Aunt Kills Herself

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—After throwing her brother's two children, 4 and 5 years old, from a 16th floor window of the Schroeder hotel to their deaths, Mrs. Aurelia Libo Lorenz, 33 years old, of 1132 North 24th street, leaped from that window and killed herself late today.

The children, their hands and feet tied, struck the sidewalk on the North 5th street side of the hotel. Their aunt's body fell nearby. The Schroeder hotel is at North 5th street and West Wisconsin avenue, in the center of the downtown district. The streets were crowded with workers hurrying home from offices, shoppers and movie theater crowds at the time of the tragedy. Several persons narrowly escaped being hit by the bodies.

Children of Contractor.

The children buried to death were Vivian Libo, 5, and Milton, 4. Their parents are Rudolph Libo, 33, a contractor who is building a new school in the town of Greenfield, and Mrs. Alice Libo, 27. Mrs. Lorenz, who was divorced from her husband, Joseph, a year ago, had been living with her sister.

In a note which she left behind, she blamed the tragedy on an alleged wrong done to her 12 years ago by her brother.

Mrs. Lorenz registered at the Schroeder hotel alone at 1 p. m. yesterday. That was the last any one of the hotel attaches saw her until after the tragedy.

Says She Planned Walk.

This afternoon about 3 o'clock she asked her sister-in-law for permission to take the children for a walk. It was only to be a small walk, the sister quotes her as saying—probably as far as North 27th and West Wells street.

Police have found a taxicab driver who told them of the woman hiring him shortly afterward to take herself and the children to North 5th and Michigan streets, a block from the hotel. He picked up his fares at North 24th and West State streets, he said.

Mrs. Lorenz was registered, under the name of Doris O'Brien of Chicago.

The first body thrown was seen by William Brings. He saw it hit an automobile fender. He ran to that spot. When the body of the second child came hurtling to the ground it knocked off Brings' hat.

The attention of the street crowds had been attracted. They saw the woman climb to the window sill, pose there for a few seconds, and then leap.

The note said she had been ill for twelve years and her brother had misinformed her of the seriousness of the ailment. It indicated that she had the impression she had invested money in the contracting business, for which a proper accounting had not been made that she felt that her relatives were fonder of their pet dogs than of her.

"And so I have no future . . . That's why I am going to end it, but not alone," said the note. . . . "I have warned them many times to give me back my money I have with them in the contracting business, or get rid of the dogs. But they won't do anything. My wish is that they never can forget in their conscience what they have made me do as long as they live."

Two Officers Are Accused of Murder

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 14, [Friday].—(AP)—Warrants charging two Illinois National Guard officers with murder were in the possession of Sheriff Charles Wieneke today as the result of the first fatality on the Christian county front of the Illinois coal miners' war.

The warrants name Col. Robert W. Davis and Capt. Carl J. Meacham, his executive officer. They were obtained late last night by Mayor Thomas F. Foster of Tovey shortly after Andy Ganis, a Tovey miner, died, reputedly as the result of a bullet wound inflicted by a militiaman.

Corporal Russell Meyers of Peoria, member of Company E of the 130th infantry, was held in the guardhouse as a military tribunal investigated the shooting.

Climaxes Hectic Day.

The fatality—the fourth since guerrilla warfare fanned through mining areas in the state's three months old mine controversy—climaxed a hectic day for Christian county. Earlier yesterday Hollis Butterfield, a rural mail carrier, was shot in the shoulder as he disregarded sentries' orders at Langleville, and later three women and six men were injured when a National Guard truck in which they were being conveyed to the county line overturned and burned.

As violence flared anew in the county Adjt. Gen. Carlos Black rushed here from Springfield to assume personal command of the seven National Guard troops on duty in the fear-stricken area.

The official report of guard officers and the story of witnesses differed slightly regarding the wounding of Ganis.

Woman Asks Arrest.

Witnesses said Ganis was standing in the yard at the John Foder home in Tovey when a guard patrol ambled by. The patrol, they said, was halted by Mrs. John Miller, a neighbor, who shouted to the troops to arrest Ganis because he assertedly called her a "scab."

Mrs. Miller's husband, a constable, was reported to be a member of the United Mine Workers' union, under whose contracts the Christian mines have been operating.

One of the guardsmen, Mrs. Miller said, ordered Ganis to walk out of the yard into the street. Ganis stood still.

"I'll give you until I count three," she quoted the guardsman. When Ganis failed to move, she said, the guardsman fired and Ganis fell, struck in the leg. He died later in a hospital from loss of blood.

Col. Davis' Report.

Col. Davis' preliminary report said that Meyers fired the shot only after an unidentified man had fired at militiamen from a porch. Another man stood by menacing guardsmen with a shotgun, the report said.

Three others have died as a result of the mine controversy. Two miners have died and a detective was fatally wounded in Springfield recently as he attempted to quell a riot.

STORY OF CLASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—An ominous situation developed in the Christian county coal fields tonight after a miner, a member of the Progressive union which is picketing the working mines, was shot and fatally wounded by a national guard corporal while in the village of Tovey, eight miles southwest of Taylorville.

The corporal, Russell Myers of Co. E, 130th Infantry, Peoria, and his detail of three men retreated from Tovey as a mob gathered following the shooting. Heavy reinforcements were sent to the village and the four sol-

INSULL REFUSES TO GIVE UP HIS U. S. PASSPORT

Turns Down Request of American Consul.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright, 1932, By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 13.—Samuel Insull, wanted in Chicago on charges of grand larceny and embezzlement, tonight appeared to have the United States government checkmated in its efforts to extradite him from Greece.

The former utilities magnate and one time multi-millionaire was obdurate in refusing to surrender his passport to the American legation, although his refusal was dilatory rather than outright. The American consul, Edwin Plitt, called upon Insull at the luxurious Petit Palace hotel three times. The consul's third request for the document was made at 7 o'clock tonight.

Insull Emerges Smiling.

Plitt had a private interview lasting five minutes. Insull emerged from the conversation somewhat nervous but smiling and affable in his $6 white linen suit, still retaining the document on which he reached safety in his flight from Paris. Insull later said that he had nothing to say and neither did Consul Plitt.

The situation in regard to the Chicago fugitive seems to hang on that passport tonight. The American government's tactics apparently are to obtain the paper so as to prevent further movements by Insull and to compel him to remain in Greece until legal and international formalities can be complied with and the necessary extradition instruments are exchanged.

As a result of the failure to obtain the passport, American authorities are believed to be taking the necessary steps to notify consuls in neighboring countries, which might attract Insull, that the passport is invalid and that further visas on it are inadvisable.

Question Right to Cancel Papers.

On the other hand, Insull gives no intimation that he does not prefer to remain in Greece and fight out the case here. At the same time legal experts here question the right of the American legation or the Greek police to withdraw or cancel Insull's passport. American officials insist that any American citizen must surrender his passport on request.

Obtaining the passport from Insull is, of course, only a temporary expedient to keep Insull here until the formalities of extradition can be completed. It appears that it is illegal for extradition papers to be passed along, but must be sent directly to whatever country in which Insull may be living. In other words Insull could not be extradited from Greece on papers sent to the French or Italians and then forwarded to Athens.

There are further complications. The treaty of extradition between the United States and Greece, which covers the offense for which Insull was indicted, has been ratified by the United States senate and the Greek parliament, but there still remain the formalities of exchange of ratification. The Greek minister at Washington must call at the state department and formally present the signed treaty and the same ceremony must be repeated here between the American legation and the Greek foreign office. This may require two weeks at the shortest.

Insull Develops Partisans.

At the same time it is believed here that the extradition papers could not arrive before the end of next week at the earliest. Beyond that it is pointed out that there is the prospect of a long legal dispute as to whether service of such extradition papers on Insull under the proceedings will not constitute ex post facto action.

Insull is developing his partisans among the Greeks. His Odyssean adventures have caught the popular imagination and there is nothing else talked about in the city of Pericles. When he appears in the streets—a venerable figure with his white hair, white suit and quiet manners—he attracts so much attention that today he decided not to leave the hotel. But that did not keep some feminine admirers from sending him flowers.

Meanwhile, there appeared to have been a dispute today among the Greek powers whether the police were justified in holding Insull under arrest from 11 o'clock Monday morning until 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening. Constitutionally no one can be held more than 24 hours under such circumstances, while Insull was held 71 hours, against which his lawyers who include Cristos Lados, former minister of communications, are complaining.

American authorities here declare that Insull's detention on Monday did not result from any representations on their part.

This matter was straightened out for practical purposes this afternoon. Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, who is also acting as foreign minister in the absence of Andreas Michalacopoulos, held a conference with John Tsirimocos, minister of interior, and the attorney general of the Supreme court at which they examined the report on Insull's arrest and discussed the case generally. Upon leaving the ministry Venizelos declared that he was satisfied with the police action and that it was within the limits of police jurisdiction. He added significantly that Insull is free to remain in the country as long as he likes.

Despite his adventures on land and air—it was the first time he had ever been in an airplane, which he used on part of his flight from Paris—Insull with all his weight of 73 years appears imperturbable, pleasant and willing to talk about anything except his own personal predicament. On that subject he "has nothing whatever to say for publication."

Expert on Transportation.

There appears a slight nervousness from time to time when some one calls at the hotel and his visitors go into a huddle for a few minutes in an adjoining room, or when he gets on the subject of his wife's being questioned and annoyed in Paris. Insull knows all about the possibilities of transportation and how quickly and by what routes mails can best be sent to Paris or other places.

He appears to be a grand and resistant old man and is not without sympathetic supporters here. He talked to THE TRIBUNE correspondent today about politics and reminisced on the subject of personalities he had known in the United States and England. He discussed his flight from Paris to Athens and checked up with the correspondent on where the latter had missed him here and there.

Messengers and persons apparently in the service of Insull interrupted the chat every few seconds, after which the aged utilities man would return to his seat in the hotel lobby and resume the thread of talk about this and that, always concluding:

"I have nothing to say for publication."

Sometimes Insull's face would alight as he spoke of subjects in which he is especially interested. Then suddenly he would appear not to hear and light another cigaret, which he has just begun to learn to smoke.

Insull today saw few persons except his own advisers, but he did visit and chat with William Howard Gardiner, head of the Navy league, who got into hot water with President Hoover just a year ago. Gardiner is passing through Athens as a tourist.

VALET GOES TO ATHENS

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Another mysterious Briton, this time a gentleman named Arthur Douglas Page, tonight was dispatched on a mission to Athens, Greece, by Samuel Insull Jr.

It was impossible to learn anything precise concerning Page's identity, but investigation by THE TRIBUNE indicates that it is nothing more exciting than Samuel Insull's valet or one of his minor British employés being sent to Athens to accompany Insull's baggage and to look after him there.

It is considered possible, however, that he may be the bearer of an important secret message or funds which young Insull did not dare to trust to the cables.

Awaiting U. S. Lawyers.

THE TRIBUNE learns from a responsible source that Insull has notified his family of his intention to sit tight in Athens to wait the arrival of lawyers who presumably are en route from America. Young Insull is expected to remain in Paris for another week.

Today was a busy one for the 26 year old executive who is waging a stubborn and crafty fight with authorities of two continents for the freedom of his father. He left the hotel early this morning and went to the American Express company office, where he arranged transportation to Athens for Page.

Next he went to the branch postoffice near the Place Vendome, where he sent the following mysterious telegram to a destination which is not known, but is believed to be England:

"Page great egg leave tonight. Shall probably stay here eight days more—chief wants to know who—London. Oscar."

Young Insull walked up the boulevard to the Eastern Cable company, where presumably he sent a message to his father, as this is the line which has service to Greece. Before returning to the Hotel Lincoln he went to the Western Union office where he sent a long cable to America.

In the afternoon he again visited the American Express, but succeeded in eluding shadowers. He returned to the hotel, then walked out with his mother for dinner at a nearby restaurant.

U. S. REVEALS STAND ON EFFORT TO TAKE UP INSULL'S PASSPORT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—Inquiry at the state department tonight disclosed that the United States acted under international custom rather than international law in moving to take up the passport granted some months ago to Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate. So far as could be determined there is nothing in international law specifically authorizing the taking up of passports of citizens traveling in another country, neither is there anything international law prohibiting such a practice.

While officials declined to discuss the Insull passport case, it was said that this country on a number of occasions has taken up passports of citizens without returning the $10 fee charged for them. In all cases the passports have been taken up for cause, it was said. The fact that the holder had paid a $10 fee for his passport has not acted to prevent the government from taking it up if it so desired.

As explained tonight the department considers that the issuance of passports is discretionary. The government it was said, therefore can take them up at its discretion. It was said, however, that passports once granted, are rarely withdrawn. Some passports were taken up during the war. The practice followed by the United States is followed generally by other countries, it was said.

BRITISH HOSPITAL CANCELS INSULL MEMORIAL FETE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The ceremonial opening of the Insull Memorial wing of the National Temperance hospital in Hampstead road, London, towards the erection of which Samuel Insull gave £137,500 last year, was canceled today. The wing was to have been opened by Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, on Oct. 27. Hospital authorities announced that the ceremony has been indefinitely postponed.

Two years ago Insull promised to subscribe $160,000 towards building the new wing, on condition that it was called "Insull Memorial" in memory of his parents and sister, who were among the hospital's founders in 1873. He has paid $137,500.

The inscription "Insull Memorial" is sculptured boldly over the triple doorway of the new building, which contains about 45 rooms. Although certain sections are incomplete, it is already in use and occupation.

SWANSON OPENS COURT FIGHT FOR INSULLS' RETURN

Speeds Hearing After U. S. Sends Warning.

How Martin J. Insull took $170,222 from the treasuries of two Insull companies to bolster his personal brokerage accounts, employing the facilities of a bank in one instance to cover the transaction, was exposed at a hearing before Chief Justice Prystalski in Criminal court yesterday.

With two of his five intended witnesses absent, State's Attorney Swanson decided to proceed with the testimony of those available, having been warned from Washington during the afternoon that the laws of Greece, where Samuel Insull has taken refuge, allow only sixty days to perfect an extradition case, the alternative being the unconditional release of the subject of the extradition.

Depositions Are Taken.

Under questioning of Assistant State's Attorney Charles Bellows, the depositions of three available witnesses were taken to lay the foundation for extradition of Martin Insull from Ontario and of Samuel Insull from Athens on charges of larceny and embezzlement. In effect the depositions are expected to make a prima facie case proving the Insulls guilty on the charges made.

The witnesses who testified yesterday were Andrew B. McGaughey, 232 East Walton place, who identified himself as one of thirteen partners in the brokerage house of Jackson Brothers, Boesel & Co., where Martin Insull carried an account. Mr. McGaughey identified two cancelled checks, one for $30,000 and the other for $36,000, which had been credited to Martin Insull's account.

Issued by Bank Cashier.

The checks, it developed in the testimony of John J. Bailey, auditor of the state's attorney's office, were issued by the cashier of the Terminal National bank after that institution had received from Martin Insull two checks of identical amounts, drawn on the treasury of the Middle West Utilities company.

The last witness was Albert J. Arndt, cashier of Russell, Brewster & Co., another brokerage house carrying a Martin Insull account.

The two missing witnesses were Oliver E. McCormick, treasurer of Middle West Utilities, who signed the checks which were sent to the Terminal bank, and Frank Webb, former chairman of the board of the bank. The former is out of the city on a tour of inspection of Middle West properties. No explanation was offered for the failure of Mr. Webb to appear, but Mr. Bellows said he was informed that both witnesses would be available next Tuesday, to which time Judge Prystalski later continued the case.

Plan to Sail Wednesday.

Prosecutor Bellows and another assistant, Andrew J. Vlachos, plan to leave for Washington at 1:45 p. m. today over the Baltimore and Ohio, hoping to secure a presidential warrant against Samuel Insull by Tuesday and depart from New York Wednesday aboard the liner Rex for Naples.

With the depositions of McCormick and Webb scheduled for completion Tuesday, it was planned to send these on to Athens by mail, to be presented in the Greek court in support of the presidential warrant.

Judge Orders Five Bankers to Testify at Insull Quiz

Walter S. Brewster, member of the brokerage house of Russell, Brewster & Co., testified yesterday at the federal court hearing to discover assets of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc., of which he was a director and organizer with Samual Insull.

J. P. OLESON.

His appearance followed a ruling by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley that officials of five Chicago banks must appear today and furnish information regarding loans they made on the collateral that was supposed to be back of the $60,000,000 series "B" debentures of Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

The bankers named in subpoenas are J. P. Oleson, vice president of the First National bank; William C. Freeman, vice president of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company; James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company; Fred A. Cuscaden, vice president of the Northern Trust company, and Donald C. Wells, assistant vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

Lindley Backs Investors.

Several times during the day's proceedings, Judge Lindley made it plain that he intends to stand squarely back of the holders of "series B" debentures in their demand that full light be thrown on the various transactions by which the assets of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., were taken over by banks when Samuel Insull was unable to meet the loans.

To Attorney Isaac H. Mayer of the firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian and Platt, representing the Continental Illinois bank, Judge Lindley said:

"This examination is the last recourse of the creditors for the discovery o fassets. For that reason we must leave nothing unturned in this examination. Substantially all of the assets of the company have been pledged as collateral with New York and Chicago banks. It is not the ordinary situation where a bank has an unchallenged right to take collateral. These debentures provided that the assets of the company should not be mortgaged unless other protection was substituted."

Trace History of Company.

Brewster was questioned regarding the organization of the Insull Investment company, its first moves, its subsequent transactions with the public, and the Insull company's business deals with the Chicago and New York banks. He said he was unfamiliar with most of the matters, but he agreed to go through his books and records and obtain the information.

The bank's acquisition of the stocks which made up the assets back of the debentures was referred to during the questioning of Brewster. The witness said he had pledged some Insull debentures, which he owned, as collateral for a bank loan. Attorneys Harold F. White and Lewis F. Jacobson, who directed the questioning as attorneys for the debenture holders, said they would endeavor to show that the banks were familiar with the provisions that were intended to protect the debenture holders when they made their loans on securities that comprised the assets of Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

Under questioning Brewster told of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., first raising $6,000,000 on common stock sales, then $36,000,000 on a preferred stock issue, $6,000,000 on "A" series of debentures, and finally $60,000,000 on "B" series of debentures.

Some Borrowed Money.

"The money all came from the public, didn't it?" the witness was asked. He replied that some money had been borrowed from banks.

"Who engineered the deal with Cyrus J. Eaton?" he was asked. He replied he didn't know. The Eaton deal involved the purchase of Eaton's holdings in the main Insull properties by Samuel Insull when the latter feared Eaton was seeking to gain control of them. The question of the price paid Eaton, who is a Cleveland financier and steel magnate, then came up. Brewster said he didn't remember whether it was discussed at a meeting of the finance committee of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., of which he was a member.

FIGHT TO RETURN MARTIN INSULL WILL OPEN TODAY

BARRIE, Ont., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Martin J. Insull, brother of Samuel Insull, or his counsel must appear tomorrow before Judge Dudley Holmes for a hearing opening the fight to extradite him to Chicago to face a grand larceny and embezzlement indictment.

Judge Holmes has power to proceed immediately with the extradition proceedings or to delay the case. Legal authorities predicted that delay would result in order that attorneys on both sides might have opportunity to prepare their arguments.

Insull repeatedly has said he will not go back to the United States unless he is extradited. A week ago he surrendered to the provincial police, and two days later was released in $50,000 bail for tomorrow's hearing.

Kreuger's Brother Jailed; Police Investigate His Firm

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 13.—Thoraten Kreuger, brother of the late Ivar Kreuger, was questioned at police headquarters today in regard to alleged bankruptcy frauds concerning the Patebois Holgbrofsen, one of Ivar Kreuger's affiliated companies, of which Thorsten is a director. Kreuger was detained for the night in the police station.

SQUEEZE THROUGH ONE OF THE THREE RELIEF BILLS

Illinois House Gives Counties 1 Cent of Gas Tax.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Satisfied that half a loaf is better than no loaf at all, the Illinois house of representatives passed one of the three charity relief bills today, killed another, and postponed action on the third — an action taken as tantamount to burial.

RICHARD J. BARR.

The bill passed was introduced and ushered through the senate by Richard J. Barr of Joliet, Republican. It allows counties to use their one cent share of the three cent state gas tax to provide relief for residents and will be in effect until next July, if signed by Gov. Emmerson. The vote upon it was 106 to 15, the "ayes" having four more than the required constitutional two-thirds.

Chicago Chief Payer.

Granting that Gov. Emmerson will sign this bill, the other two of the three cents in gasoline tax remain in the same status as hitherto. The two-thirds of the "gas" tax goes to the state road fund, to be expended by the state department of highways. This two-thirds amounts to something like 20 million dollars a year, of which Chicago and Cook county pay 40 or 50 per cent. It is estimated that Cook county's share in the expenditure is less than one-fourth of what it pays in.

For Cook county, which gets about 4 million dollars a year from the collection, this would mean "only a drop in the bucket," it was contended. A good part of the county's share of gas tax will be tied up for payment of principal and interest on the 20 million dollar state relief bond issue if that proposition is approved at the November election.

Quick work dispatched the optional county sales tax, the pet of Homer J. Tice [Rep., Greenview]. It lost by a vote of 78 to 33. The Meents senate bill allowing counties to issue relief bonds without referendum was postponed and many believe it dead.

Next Meeting Perhaps Nov. 9.

After this business and the attendant disposition of some minor matters, the house took on the appearance of a body ready to quit work until after the Nov. 8 election. The senate by agreement had only a few members present while others waited a call if needed, but it seemed likely this afternoon that neither body would meet again, save perfunctorily or in case of an emergency, until Nov. 9.

This session—the fourth special of the 57th general assembly—was called to pass legislation making available more funds for charity relief all over the state and particularly in Chicago. The Reconstruction Finance corporation decreed that it would advance no further funds to the Illinois emergency relief commission until the state had exhausted its own resources, so the legislators were called to Springfield five weeks ago.

Just how satisfied the Reconstruction corporation will be with today's action could not, of course, be gauged here. The members hope that it will convince that fund-dispensing body that they have done the best they could. It was also uncertain just how much money would be available for charity work by the passage of the gas tax bill.

"Drop in the Bucket."

One prominent member referred to the aid made possible as "but a drop in the bucket." Others were convinced that their action was an evidence of good faith. The next move will come from the emergency relief commission which is expected to go back to the Reconstruction corporation shortly in quest of more funds.

The road to passage today was not a smooth one. Several representatives introduced the grim specter of martial law in their speeches as an alternative to passage of the charity bills while others counseled delay—at least until after election. The latter was the suggestion of Clinton Searle [Rep., Rock Island], which was immediately termed "untimely" by D. Logan Giffin [Rep., Springfield], one of those who had visualized "machine guns in the hands of policemen" as a possible picture of the situation if aid were not given.

Cast Is Praised

Dress rehearsal of Verdi's opera, "Aida," by the Chicago Stadium Grand Opera company took place at the Stadium yesterday, closely scrutinized by Jacques Samossoud, conductor; Bernard Gantor, stage director, and Maurice Frank, impresario, and at its end promises were extended that the first performance tomorrow night will be something out of the ordinary.

Anna Leskaya, soprano; Ina Bourskaya, mezzo-soprano; the Chicago tenor, John Pane-Gasser, and Martino-Rossi, baritone, will sing the leading parts. The large chorus, orchestra, and ballet have been made up of forces from the Chicago Civic Opera company.

200 Pound Woman Falls in Lake; Floats Till Saved

Mrs. Bertha Meyer, 55 years old, 1354 Diversey parkway, who weighs 200 pounds, fell into the lake yesterday at the foot of Ohio street, but remained afloat until two men appeared and took her ashore. Mrs. Meyer said she had gone to the lake side to rest because of her inability to sleep. A dizzy spell caused her to fall in, she said. Her rescuers were L. Beverly Hull, 19 years old, 153 Institute place, a student at Moody Bible institute, and Henry Dolin, 40 years old, 695 Milwaukee avenue.

Smouldering Peat Bogs Stop Traffic in Skokie

Smoke from the smoldering peat fields in the Skokie valley combined with a heavy fog to make automobile traffic from Evanston to Highland Park virtually impossible last night. Motorists were forced to abandon their cars and scores of trucks along Sheridan road and Waukegan road were stalled. The peat fields have been smoldering for several weeks and the efforts of north shore fire departments to extinguish them have been unsuccessful.

SEEK TO REDUCE CHICAGO'S MILK DELIVERY COSTS

Farmers Get Less than 4c of 11c Price.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Officials of the organized dairy industry in Chicago yesterday were seeking a way to reduce the distribution costs on some 1,300,000 quarts of milk being consumed daily in the metropolitan area. The cost of bringing milk from farm to doorstep in Chicago is greater in proportion to the cost of the product itself, than in any other large city in the nation, they have found.

Following two meetings between the milk companies and the Pure Milk association, representing 19,000 farmers, both groups were preparing market analysis information yesterday. Their principal concern is the gain in direct farmer-customer sales of milk in suburban districts, and the reduced prices being charged for bottled milk by independent deliverymen.

Sells at 5 Cents in Suburbs.

A survey yesterday disclosed that many farmers have established routes in outlying residential districts, selling milk as low as 5 cents a quart. Roadside stands were found selling milk for as low as 15 cents per gallon. In many cases neighboring families take turn about in purchasing from the farmers the milk sold at the stands.

Added to this condition was the discovery that were the entire milk supply for the city offered by the farmers free of charge, the dealers to call for it at the farms, the retail price would still be 8 cents per quart. Less than 4 cents of the 11 cents per quart, the present price of milk, is paid for the product itself.

The following table compares the present retail prices in 7 large cities supplied with milk of similar or superior butterfat content to that in Chicago. It also indicates the percentage of the retail price received by farmers for the milk:

City	Retail Price Per Qt.	Per Pt.	Pct. Paid Farmers
Chicago	11	7	35
Pittsburgh	10	6	41
*Los Angeles	11	7	38
*Baltimore	11	7	40
Detroit	9	6	38
Boston	11	8½	47
Milwaukee	8	5	43

[*Milk supplied these cities tests 4% butterfat; in Chicago and other listed cities, the average is 3.7% butterfat.]

Change Selling Methods.

The independent sales of milk in the Chicago region were found to have caused changes in selling methods in several outlying cities. In South Bend, Ind., and Elgin, Ill., the retail price is 10 cents a quart and deliverymen are paid on a commission basis entirely. This plan also is in operation in Milwaukee, Philadelphia and other cities.

The survey discloses that approximately one fifth of the milk being shipped into Chicago is not consumed as fluid milk, but is converted into cream, butter, cottage cheese and skimmilk products. The daily purchases for Chicago and nearby cities total about 3,600,000 pounds. Dealers and farmers each are sharing in the losses on the surplus production, the average price paid farmers being $1.59 per hundredweight.

State Cemetery Officials Try to Bury Their Business Ills

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Every effort was made to cheer up the members at a banquet of Illinois cemetery officials in the Hotel La Salle last night. The banquet was part of the annual fall convention of the Illinois Society of Cemetery Superintendents and Officials, held jointly with the Cook county organization.

Songs were sung, impromptu pep talks were made, the women members of the association wore new evening dresses and there was lots of good natured kidding between the tables at which were seated more than 100 cemetery officials.

"We've Got Fellowship."

As one speaker from downstate put it:

"We're a wonderful bunch, we've got a marvelous organization. As I tell the wife—whom I call my sweetheart, folks—it's fellowship that counts, and we've got fellowship, boys."

In spite of all this, an undercurrent of mournfulness was apparent in the evening's sprightly festivity.

The cemetery business, R. J. Birnbaum of Springfield, vice president of the state association and chairman of the convention, admitted, with a sepulchral shake of the head, is a victim of the depression. Toying with a chrysanthemum which a fellow cemetery official had playfully stuck in his buttonhole, Mr. Birnbaum explained the situation.

Get No Sympathy.

"We get no sympathy whenever we talk hard times," he said, with a trace of bitterness in his tone. "The average fellow says: 'What's the matter? How can the depression affect you? People die just like they always did.'

"Which isn't the truth. O, of course they die, but the death rate has fallen considerably during the depression. It continues to fall more and more. I think the fact is that people are leading saner lives now that they haven't as much money to spend. So they are healthier and live longer.

"It's the same with doctors. The doctors tell me that they don't have the patients they used to have—and they don't lose the patients they have like they used to. All of which affects us."

A Hopeless Task.

Mr. Birnbaum paused to reflect on the afternoon's business session, which he presided over in the absence of the president, Henry Relm of Oakwoods cemetery, who was ill.

"We discussed cemetery problems," he said, "but we didn't even talk about selling lots. It's just too hopeless to try to sell them. When a man dies now, if he hasn't a lot of his own, he's usually buried in his father's or his uncle's lot, and even in a friend's.

"Our usual selling point is that a man in good health should buy a lot just as he carries insurance. Some people object because they hate to think a lot's waiting for them. But now no one is buying lots in advance, rich or poor, it seems.

No Call for Extra Service.

"Folks just aren't buying monuments, either, but postponing getting them until times improve.

"And as for extra services, they've fallen off tremendously. People don't do the decorating on graves that they used to. Families don't visit the grave with flowers like they did. Most cemeteries operate greenhouses, and their business is poor. It's the same with casket salesmen. Families that used to pay $1,000 for a casket now buy one for $400.

This morning the visiting members will make a tour of Chicago cemeteries and also visit A Century of Progress.

PAIR WOUNDED AS THEY PEEP AT SPEAKEASY ROW

Awakened from bed by the noise of a quarrel in the beer flat beneath their rooms at 1 East Walton place late last night, Carl Frickman, 50 years old, and his wife, Lena, 46 years old, were peeking through a keyhole in an attempt to see the fight when Peter Vitrano, proprietor of the beer flat, fired two shots at two customers. The shots went through the door behind which the Frickmans were standing, and wounded Mrs. Frickman in the side and her husband in the chest.

The customers fled. Vitrano told the police when they arrived that he did not know the Frickmans had been behind the door. He was taken into custody and the Frickmans were taken to the Henrotin hospital, where their wounds were said not to be serious.

Justices and Bar Attend Capital Ceremony.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—In the presence of the country's distinguished lawyers, gathered for the convention of the American Bar association, President Hoover today laid the corner stone of the new Supreme Court building.

On the platform were all the members of the Supreme court, with the exception of Justice Brandeis. Black skull caps protected the heads of Chief Justice Hughes and some of the other members. From out of the silk robes of Justices Butler and McReynolds stuck practical gray leather gloves.

Mrs. Hoover Attends.

Mrs. Hoover accompanied the President and in the audience were Attorney General Mitchell, Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Adams.

Guy A. Thompson of St. Louis, president of the Bar association, was master of ceremonies. John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924, spoke on behalf of the bar—and between whiles chatted with Mr. Hoover as though no such thing as politics existed.

The new building, designed in the classic tradition by Cass Gilbert, was a memorial, said Mr. Thompson, "more sublime than any monument to war."

Mr. Davis told how the Supreme court, when first created, held its initial sessions in—of all places—the Royal Exchange on Broad street in New York City; how it had moved to Washington into a room in the basement of the capitol, which a contemporary observer described as a "potato hole of a place."

Recalls Humble Quarters.

"And even this humble resort," Mr. Davis said, fixing a sternly quizzical gaze on England's Lord Reading, guest of the convention, "this humble resort was disturbed by certain incendiary proceedings of the year 1814."

Mr. Davis recounted the court's history.

"Step by step," he said, "it has marched with the marching Union."

Let the new building, he adjured, be an asylum to which the humblest member of a minority might come "and bid defiance to the clamorous multitude who would rob him of his liberty or his life."

Chief Justice Speaks.

Following Mr. Davis, the chief justice pointed to the white walls and said:

The building, he declared, attested confidence in time of distress.

"We have pride and hope on this occasion," said Chief Justice Hughes, "because we believe, without underestimating adverse influences, that the spiritual resources of the nation, from which each generation draws anew its conceptions of fair dealing, are unwasted, and because we find in this building a testimonial to an imperishable ideal of liberty under law."

Wielding a silver trowel, President Hoover, Chief Justice Hughes, and Mr. Thompson, in turn, applied the mortar and workmen set the corner stone in place.

Taft Pushed Project.

The building thus ceremoniously dedicated is to cost approximately $9,740,000. It will be in many respects a monument to William Howard Taft, whose widow sat among the guests today.

For the former President and chief justice was the prime mover in pushing the new building project. He accomplished his end, from all accounts, despite the wishes of some of his colleagues, who were not even willing to view the model of the building when it was first placed on display.

To judge by the predictions of some, the new building will be like Washington in its early days, a place of magnificent distances, far larger than the court's requirements.

Justices Work at Home.

When the senate office building was erected a few years ago office space in the capitol was set aside for the justices, but only two took advantage of it. The other seven, since much of their work is done in the evening, prefer to have their offices at home. The office space remained vacant for a while, then was taken over by the senate. The new building will contain large offices for all nine justices.

It is also expected that the new building will mean either an increase in the court's fees or an annual appropriation for its care. The cost of caring for present court space in the capitol is met by the fees, which have gradually been reduced so that they barely meet the drain upon them.

Delayed Barge Arrives; Ends 3 Day Lake Hunt

The motor barge ILI-104 arrived in the Chicago river yesterday after having been an object of anxious search by Lake Michigan coast guardsmen since Sunday. The barge was two days overdue because of high winds, but suffered no damage. It carried a cargo of sugar from New York. The coast guard at Sheboygan, Wis., reported Sunday that a large barge appeared to be in distress off Frankfort, Mich., 80 miles from Sheboygan, and apprehensions for the safety of the barge and its crew of twelve increased when other coast guard units were unable to locate it.

MRS. LONGWORTH FOR HOOVER, SHE SAYS IN ARTICLE

Roosevelt Daughter Gives Reasons.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Writing in the Ladies' Home Journal, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth says that, "without the least personal feeling" against her "fifth cousin," Gov. Roosevelt, she would, "even if she were not a Republican," vote for President Hoover on Nov. 8.

In her article, "Some Reminiscences," the daughter of Theodore Roosevelt declares that the same surname is "about all there is in common" between her late father and the Democratic presidential nominee.

"On the day that my father was inaugurated into the vice presidency," writes Mrs. Longworth, "there started a reverberation which has an echo in the nomination of Franklin Delano Roosevelt in 1932.

"Many persons, politicians and nonpoliticians as well, mutter darkly that there is a misapprehension in the country as to just what relation Franklin is to T. R. And as people have actually congratulated me on the nomination of 'your brother' perhaps there is some confusion, and it is only fair that it should be cleared away.

Always in Different Camps.

"He is my father's fourth cousin once removed, and my fifth. Politically, his branch of the family and ours have always been in different camps. I cannot believe that the voter has any delusion as to the degree of our kinship.

"I am a Republican with a progressive tradition and I think that Mr. Hoover deserves to be reelected, and deserves the support of the people."

Criticizing those who place the blame for the depression on the President's shoulders, Mrs. Longworth says the quadrennial presidential campaigns remind her of the story of "The King of the Wood at Nemi."

Good Crops or Death.

"That," she narrates, "was a festival or renewal of replacement and so is our performance. At Nemi the king was king for one year, at the end of which time a man was selected to go up to the Holy Grove and kill him—if he were able to. The survivor was king for the year following, when the act was on again.

"In a measure we approximate the same symptoms and symbols, for when one hears the criticism that Hoover is responsible for bad times it has just about as much basis in reality as had the beliefs of our far-off ancestors. If the crops were abundant and the hunting was good, the king was a big magician, but if they were not, he was the fault."

Aeronautic Group Plans for 1933 Air Meet Here

The Chicago chapter of the National Aeronautic association met yesterday at the Hotel Sherman and adopted resolutions to support plans for a large meet in Chicago next year and to mark in time for that meet a number of courses on which official attempts to establish new air records may be made. Maj. Lafeton Whitney was reelected president; E. W. Hogle, vice president, and Robert Carr, secretary.

ELECT HOOVER TO BEAT SLUMP, MILLS COUNSELS

Secretary Says Roosevelt Lacks a Program.

that this recovery will be postponed another year—and the worst that can happen no man can predict."

Mr. Mills said the voters in choosing between Hoover and Roosevelt face the following issue:

"Under which one of these two leaders are we more likely to beat this depression? Which of these commanders can best win this war for us. For, until it is won, nothing else matters much."

The worker out of a job, Mills argued, has a great stake in the election, as well as the man who has a job and wishes to protect it, while the cry for a change—the "agin' the ins" tendency—usually comes when "the worst is over and victory has actually been won," he said.

Taking up pork barrel measures which were on the Democratic program of the Democratic controlled house under leadership of Speaker John N. (Cactus Jack) Garner, who is Roosevelt's running mate, Secretary Mills said they represented the economic thought of the Democratic party and the national candidates. He spoke of the Patman bonus bill calling for payment in fiat currency, the Goldsborough inflation bill and the Garner postoffice pork barrel bill.

Calls Proposals Unsound.

"The very men who stand behind this program," he said, "and the men who put it through the Democratic house are the men who nominated the Democratic candidate for President. And in three months of campaigning he has never once lifted his voice to repudiate their unsound proposals.

"Those measures represented a definite program, with as definite a philosophy underlying it as was true of the free silver movement and of greenbackism.

"By failing to declare his position Gov. Roosevelt must know that he has secured support and a good deal of work in his behalf by those who shortsightedly believe pure inflation means relief, whereas it only spells ultimate ruin."

After reviewing the administration measures to combat the depression, Mr. Mills said:

"A vote for Hoover is a vote to continue the work of reconstruction along the present lines; to maintain the national credit; to preserve the integrity of the dollar, and to fight this depression until victory is ours."

Analyzing the Hoover program of reconstruction, Secretary Mills said the objective is to reach down to the individual who is loaded down because of the depression.

"The loans to banks," he said, "are not only intended to underpin the whole credit structure of the nation, but to protect 40 million depositors, to enable the banks to extend credit to those who need it, and to permit them to exercise greater leniency to those already in debt.

Other Loans Are Explained.

"The loans to insurance companies are intended to make secure the savings of 70 million policy holders.

"The loans to federal land banks, joint stock land banks, live stock loan companies, intermediate credit banks, and the establishment with government capital of agricultural credit corporations are intended to take care of the credit needs of the individual farmer and to see to it that those who are in debt may be accorded liberal treatment.

"The home loan banks are to provide for the needs of the home owner, hard pressed to meet mortgage payments. The loans for the undertaking of so-called self-liquidating public work projects are to furnish employment and stimulate industry."

Frank L. Smith Presides.

The Coliseum massmeeting was arranged by Dr. W. H. Reid, Englewood ward committeeman, and it was presided over by Frank L. Smith, national committeeman.

Among those at the speakers' table at the Hamilton club luncheon, which included several La Salle street bankers, was Melvin A. Traylor, one of the presidential candidates at the Democratic national convention, an old friend of Secretary Mills.

Amusement was stirred when it came out that Mr. Traylor had been invited to attend by the Hamiltonians and then had been invited not to attend because he is a Roosevelt Democrat. Secretary Mills settled it by inviting him to attend.

SEC. MILLS TO MAKE TOUR OF U.S. BUILDINGS IN CHICAGO TODAY

Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, today will make a conducted tour of all government buildings in Chicago, and will address federal employés in a courtroom of the federal building shortly after noon. Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs and building custodian, will be the director of the tour.

It was understood that the unfinished job of cleaning the postoffice building would be pointed out to the secretary. Contracts for the work, which ceased a month ago, when the job was half done, were let by treasury officials in Washington, upon whom now depends a solution of the problem.

The contract was awarded to a Rochester, N. Y., concern on a low bid of $11,100. A month ago the contracting company encountered financial difficulties and stopped work, leaving its ropes and scaffolding on the building and its boilers and coal in the streets. Investigation disclosed damage to the federal building windows estimated at $10,000.

Mr. Mills will inspect the new postoffice now under construction at Canal and Van Buren streets. The tour will be under the auspices of the Federal Business Men's association. Federal employés requested an audience with the secretary to protest against recent wage reductions or to straighten out trouble over their furloughs.

318 SOUTH MICHIGAN AVENUE

B. E. F. Group Is Received by President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—President Hoover today again took occasion to express his opposition to passage of legislation calling for immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus or the granting of a dole to the unemployed. His remarks were addressed to a delegation representing the bonus expeditionary forces which had called at the White House to present a petition censuring the President for evicting the bonus marchers last summer, and demanding immediate payment of the bonus as well as a dole for destitute world war veterans.

The meeting between the B. E. F. group, headed by Hoke Smith, national field commander, and the President was arranged by Walter Newton, White House secretary, when the veterans called and asked permission to present the vote of censure and the bonus demand to the President personally.

Refuses to Accept Petition.

When Mr. Newton advised that a petition containing such a vote of censure could not be presented to a man holding the office of President, the group compromised by handing the petition to Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator. The presentation was made in the presence of the President.

Mr. Newton's account of the meeting, between the President and a representative of the army he evicted from Washington last summer follows:

"Commander Smith stated to the President that they wished to pay their respects, tender their support and pledge their loyalty to the President and the constitution of the United States.

President Voices Pleasure.

"The President expressed his pleasure at that statement and told them they would recognize he disagreed with the point of view of some of their objectives and that he had to consider 25,000,000 families in the United States in these times of distress as well as members of special groups; that he was glad they had determined to present their proposals to the congress through appropriate committees rather than to repeat the scenes that occurred in Washington during last spring and summer.

"The President said that he was pleased that they were not presenting him with the petition which had been reported in the press, as it contained statements offensive to the dignity of the office of the presidency and that he was glad they had decided not to present it at the White House. He said that every group in the United States was free to present its views on every public question and they no doubt would be given every facility in the expression of their wishes to the congress."

Mr. Newton added that the written petition which the bonus group handed to Gen. Hines was not seen by the President at the time. The petition did contain at its end a censure of the President for the eviction of the bonus "army" from the District of Columbia, but Mr. Newton explained that the major part of the petition dealt with legislative proposals and could therefore be referred to the veterans' bureau without impropriety.

Petition Adopted by Convention.

The petition was adopted on Oct. 5 at the national convention of the bonus army. Its text had been made public at the time. After urging payment of the bonus and the dole for destitute service men the petition concludes:

"We, the assembled representatives of the B. E. F., do hereby severally censure you [President Hoover] and those of your administration who took part in and the means used in the forceful eviction of the B. E. F. from the District of Columbia on July 28 and 29, 1932."

Following the departure of the bonus delegation the President spent most of the day working on the political speech he will deliver at Cleveland O., Saturday night. It is understood th. the President h. this address will make his bid for the support of labor. Unemployment, the farm problem and the Democratic legislative record of the last congress also are to be discussed, according to information current at the White House.

BUFFALO SUITS SHOW WORT TAX FAILS TO WORK

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Two suits now pending in courts here indicate the huge loss in revenue facing the federal government as the result of the failure of the wort tax to produce returns expected. In the suits C. T. Sugden, collector of internal revenue for the Buffalo districts, is trying to collect the tax due for the current fiscal year.

In one case the Broadway Blending company of Buffalo is fighting the government's claim of $42,099 for unpaid wort taxes covering sixteen days' operations during the month of August. In the other case the Cataract Blending company of Rochester is said to owe the government $21,837 for a similar period, the figures in both cases representing differences of opinions between the manufacturers and the government collector as to the rate which should be applied.

The cases will be heard in United States District court some time this month and the result is expected to have a widespread effect on taxes paid by this industry throughout the country.

Captive Sticks to Story of Gang Killing.

Louis L. Howell, 5903 North Kostner avenue, a commissioner of the Sauganash Park district, after being questioned all day still maintained last night that his friend, Carl H. Reese, a race track gambler, had been mysteriously murdered by four gunmen north of Libertyville on Wednesday. Police said they believed Howell's story was false and State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county told an attorney who appeared to seek a writ of habeas corpus for Howell that Howell would be charged with the murder of Reese if any attempt were made to secure his release. The lawyer decided not to file the writ.

Lays Killing to Gangsters.

Howell said that Reese, whom he had been driving in his automobile in Milwaukee avenue north of Libertyville, was killed as he sat in the car. The four men in an automobile crowded the automobile in which Howell and Reese were riding to the curb, Howell said.

An autopsy performed on Reese's body by Coroner John L. Taylor showed that Reese had been shot eight times in the back. The bullets were from .45 and .38 caliber pistols.

Howell said he and Reese were on their way to see a member of the Wieland dairy family about buying some racehorses. The Wielands said they had never heard of Reese. Howell said he had been loaned $550 by Reese within the last few days.

Reese had $1,000 in currency in a concealed pocket in his clothing, police found. He apparently had obtained this money by cashing a check for that amount which he obtained from Dr. W. P. Curtis of the Del Prado hotel last week. Dr. Curtis told police that he had known Reese for some years and lent him the money when Reese said he wished to claim a horse at the Lincoln Fields track.

John L. Adams, 62 years old, 5550 Kenmore avenue, a race track follower, was taken to Waukegan after he revealed that he met Reese in the Hotel Sherman last Tuesday and that Reese pointed out a man in the lobby who, he said, was going to lend him $2,500. Adams viewed Howell, but said he was not the man he had seen in the hotel.

Points to Flaw in Story.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith finally stopped questioning Howell and ordered him locked up for the night. He said one of the obvious faults in Howell's story was his insistance that the murder had occurred on the Milwaukee road in broad daylight. Traffic is heavy on the road, the prosecutor pointed out, and it seemed improbable that there had been no witnesses to the shooting if Howell's story was true.

"We have certain clews which will reveal important information soon," the prosecutor declared.

MAE WEST HELD UP; RICHARD ARLEN TELLS OF THREAT BY GANG

Mae West reported being held up by two armed men as she stepped from her automobile in front of her home last Sept. 28. They took $18,000 in diamonds and $3,400 cash. Miss West was later directed to a vacant lot, where she found her discarded purse and personal papers and keys. The robbery of Miss West was kept secret two weeks while police tried to round up her assailants.

Richard Arlen today reported having been trailed by men in an auto several times within the last month. Last night two men in a roadster trailed him to his home from the Paramount studio and circled the block in which he lived until police arrived. A letter which voiced threats against Arlen directed him to call at an address which proved to be a vacant lot.

GOV. ROOSEVELT GIVES VIEWS ON AIDING JOBLESS

Points to Relief Program in Home State.

said he thought that in times of prosperity "what might be called a nest egg" should be set up for use in building public works during times of depression.

"But there is the immediate possibility of helping the emergency through appropriations for public works," he declared. "One question, however, must be answered first, because of the simple fact that these public works cost money. We all know that government treasuries, whether local or state or federal, are hard put to it to keep their budgets balanced and in the case of the federal treasury thoroughly unsound financial policies have made its situation not exactly desperate but at least threatening to future stability if the policies of the present administration are continued.

Based on Ability to Pay.

"All public works, including federal, must be considered from the point of view of the ability of the government treasury to pay for them. There are two ways of paying for public works. One is by the sale of bonds. In principle such bonds should be issued only to pay for self-sustaining projects or for structures which will without question have a useful life over a long period of years.

"The other method of payment is from current revenues, which in these days means in most cases added taxes. And we all know that there is a very definite limit to the increase of taxes above the present level.

"From this point, therefore, I can go on and say that if funds can be properly provided by the federal government for increased appropriations for public works we must examine the character of those public works. I have already spoken of that type which is self-sustaining. These should be greatly encouraged.

Each on Own Merits.

"The other type is that of public works which are honestly essential to the community. Each case must rest on its own merits. It is impossible, for example, to say that all parks or all playgrounds are essential. One may be and another may not be.

"I am much interested, for example, in providing better housing for the poor in our great cities. If a slum area can be torn down and new modern buildings put up, I should call that almost a human necessity, but on the other hand the mere erection of new buildings in some other part of the city while allowing the slums to remain raises at once a question of necessity."

Gov. Roosevelt reiterated his approval of setting up a system of unemployment insurance reserves, saying they did not provide a cure-all, "but at least a cushion to mitigate unemployment in times of depression."

He emphasized the necessity for sticking to principles of sound insurance financing.

Favored Wagner Bills.

He declared that he had favored the bills sponsored by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York which created a nationally coördinated system of employment offices operated by the individual states with the advisory cooperation of joint boards of employers and employés.

"To my great regret," he said, "this measure was vetoed by the President of the United States. I am certain that the federal government can, by furnishing leadership, stimulate the various states to set up and coördinate practical useful systems."

Discussing the need for appropriations for child welfare work, the governor said he felt this was the "last place in which we should seek to economize." He referred to a speech in which Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur had mentioned the lessons which adversity brought to the younger generations.

Disagrees with Wilbur.

"I cannot agree with the member of President Hoover's cabinet who suggests that this depression is not altogether a bad thing for our children.

"You and I know the appalling fact that malnutrition is one of the saddest by-products of unemployment. The health of these children is being affected not only now but for all the rest of their lives."

Gov. Roosevelt said he favored keeping children in school until they reach the age of 16, and that increased opportunities should be given children to receive vocational training.

Charging the national administration with having no plan for reorganizing the social welfare and public health activities of the federal government, "in spite of campaign promises at the last three presidential elections," Mr. Roosevelt said he would inaugurate a definite long range plan for dealing with all phases of these problems.

The governor closed with a plea addressed to all the nation that those who are able should do their utmost in the coming winter, by personal donations and otherwise, to help the poor of their communities.

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 13.—A communist revolt has broken out in southern Bulgaria, according to dispatches reaching here tonight by way of Athens and Belgrade.

Telegraphic communications with Sofia were poor tonight and no direct confirmation or denial of the reports could be obtained. The editor of Pesti Naplo telephoned from Budapest that reports of the uprising were carried over the Bulgarian border into Greece by fleeing Bulgarian officers.

Reds Joined by Military.

The refugees said that the revolt centered in Nevrokop, a town of 12,000 inhabitants in Bulgarian Macedonia. The Reds, joined by the military, seized the posts, telegraphs, and other public buildings.

The communist movement is known to be spreading rapidly in Bulgaria, which is regarded as the stronghold of the soviets in the Balkans. Three weeks ago the bolsheviks captured a clear majority of the seats in the municipal elections for the city council of Sofia and since then they have been consolidating their position in the country.

The Reds more than doubled their representation in the Sofia city council, while parties favorable to King Boris III. lost more than half of their seats. Premier Nicholas Muschanoff quickly announced that "the result of this election will not be be tolerated. The new city council will be dissolved by his majesty's government and we shall take certain necessary steps."

Planned to Outlaw Reds.

This was taken to mean the government planned to make communism illegal and stamp it out in Bulgaria. Prior to the Sofia election, a number of small municipalities had communist majorities, but they were not viewed with great concern.

Recently rust and other crop maladies have diminished what was expected to be a record crop in Bulgaria. A terrific storm accompanied by hail wrecked thousands of acres of wheat.

Political troubles, too, have been recurrent. Since June, 1931, the government has been composed of democrats, agrarians, liberals, and radicals, which recently ousted the democratic bloc. This was followed by internal quarrels among members of the government. The agrarians accused the democrats of persecuting the peasants, whom they were supposed to represent, and the democrats accused the agrarians of going communistic.

MICHIGAN BARS CHICAGO BROKER PENDING INQUIRY

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Michigan securities commission today suspended temporarily the license of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago brokerage house, to operate in Michigan. The brokers were ordered to show cause at a hearing Oct. 18 why the suspension should not be made permanent.

George F. MacKenzie, chairman of the commission, said the action was taken because some officials of the firm were indicted last month in Milwaukee for illegal use of the mails.

He said the commission has "no evidence of wrongdoing against the Halsey-Stuart company other than the fact that some of its officers have been indicted. Their attorneys have notified us that the Milwaukee indictments are a result of personal animosity," he said.

THE MEN'S STORE — MONROE AT WABASH

HERE'S an important bit of shirt news. It concerns the end-to-end Madras shirts. We hear they are being worn at the centers where the smart styles for men originate. Shirtmakers have really made a "coup" this time in turning out such quality Madras into beautifully tailored shirts that only the extremely low price keeps you from thinking them custom made. The collar attached style comes in blue—the neckband style in blue, green or tan. $1.95

KNITTED Underwear and the only thing they have in common with the well known "Red Flannels" is that they are both warm. This new athletic type of knitted underwear, that buttons across the shoulders, is snug-fitting, light weight and far from being bulky and not in the least uncomfortable. $1.55

THESE ties don't require the label reading "Imported" to tell you that continental weavers and designers conceived them. Here are some of the most interesting examples of the new stripes that are making their appearance in the smart men's wear shops abroad. Ties made our way to assure "trim knots" and quality such as you never expected in imported ties priced as low as $1.15

HEAR WITNESSES' EVIDENCE ON SALE OF POSTAL SITE

Congressmen Get Figures on Land Cost.

The congressional committee which is investigating the postoffice department got down to the major subjects of its hearings in Chicago yesterday when it heard witnesses discuss air mail contracts and the purchase of two sites for the new postoffice building now under construction in Chicago.

During the day's session Congressman Clyde Kelly [Rep., Pa.], who was chairman pro tem at the opening hearing Wednesday in the absence of the chairman, Congressman James L. Mead [Dem., N. Y.], learned for the first time that the committee has been provided with legal counsel.

He received the information while Charles S. Dewey, former financial adviser to the Polish government, was testifying. A dapper man sitting at the committee table put a question to Mr. Dewey. Congressman Kelly roused himself in his chair.

"Pardon me," said he, "but I believe it is rather unusual for a person not a member of a congressional committee to question witnesses appearing before it. Who is this man?"

It's Committee Adviser.

"Why, this is Theodore Rein, the legal adviser for the committee," replied Chairman Mead. Congressman Kelly subsided.

Mr. Dewey left his post as a vice president of the Northern Trust company in 1924 to become an assistant secretary of the treasury. He was in charge of the negotiations in 1926 by which the government purchased from Marshall Field & Co. and others a postoffice site.

This site was bounded by Clinton, Canal, Polk, and Harrison streets. After the development of air rights was demonstrated to be possible, the government abandoned it for the present site east of Canal street, over the railroad tracks leading into the Union station.

Dewey Explains Selection.

Mr. Dewey explained that in selecting the postoffice site, he had recommended to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon that recommendations be sought from the Chicago Plan commission and from an advisory committee appointed by the mayor. This was done, he said, and in reply to a question by Congressman A. J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.] he said that he had not recommended purchase of the site owned by the Field company and others, but that that had been the recommendation of the plan commission.

"Did you have any conferences with James Simpson of Marshall Field & Co. regarding the postoffice site?" asked Attorney Rein.

"I never conferred with him before the government advertised for a site," said Mr. Dewey, "but afterwards I did. I believe Mr. Simpson was also on the Chicago Plan commission."

Broker Is a Witness.

Edward L. Lobdell, a Chicago broker, who also offered the government a postoffice site in the vicinity of the present one, was asked by Chairman Mead about Mr. Simpson's connection with the plan commission at the time the commission was considering the postoffice site owned by the Field interests.

"Mr. Simpson, during the course of the negotiations, severed his connection with the plan commission," replied Mr. Lobdell. "The plan commission gave me a hearing at which I expounded the advantages of my site, and it accorded the others the same privilege."

"Isn't it true that the Field company had bought its share of the property for $2,030,000 and that within two years sold it to the government for $3,890,000, a profit of $1,660,000?" asked Chairman Mead.

"The Fields didn't acquire that property within two years of the sale," replied Mr. Lobdell. "They spent many years acquiring the property and sold it at what it cost, plus special assessments, taxes, interest and such charges against the property."

Appraiser Testifies on Value.

Another witness on the value of the Field site was Henry C. Geisler, an appraiser on the board of valuation of the interstate commerce commission. He said that in the last 15 years he has appraised $500,000,000 worth of railroad property in Chicago, and that he was familiar with both the old and new postoffice sites in view of those appraisals.

"I appraised the Marshall Field property at $10.77 a square foot," he testified. "On inspection of records of Marshall Field & Co. I discovered that they had paid from $9 to $19 a square foot for it. The sale figures are pretty well borne out by the buying price plus interest and carrying charges."

Recalls Court Testimony.

"Did the interest and carrying charges account for the profit on that sale, profit that amounted to 92 per cent of the cost?" asked Chairman Mead. "A Mr. Eddy, treasurer of Marshall Field & Co., testified in the county court in 1928 that this property cost the company $2,030,313, and that the government paid $3,980,000. The late John G. Shedd testified at this same hearing that the property was worth only $6 a square foot, and that the deal with the government set a price of $17.50 a square foot. What we want to know is what safeguard exists to prevent the government paying such an excessive price?"

Mr. Shedd, who was chairman of the board of Marshall Field & Co., had been dead for two years in 1928, it was pointed out later.

Mr. Geisler recommended that the postoffice department consult the interstate commerce commission on valuations of postoffice sites in the vicinity of railroads. The commission was not consulted in the Chicago case, he said. Members of the committee said that they would recommend that his suggestion be followed in the future.

Contractor Is Witness.

George Griffiths, vice president of John Griffiths & Son, contractors, who are building the new postoffice, said that his father's com. any had underbid its nearest rival by $500,000. This, he told the committee members, was the result of knowing that wages and material costs were due for a sudden drop about the time the contract was let in August, 1931.

Louis B. Beardsley, an industrial real estate broker, who had made an appraisal of property adjoining the Marshall Field site, testified that the land originally purchased for the postoffice was worth no more than $8 a square foot.

Says Policy Perils Defense.

Paul R. Braniff, an official of the Braniff Airways, Inc., one of the largest nonmail carrying air transport companies, and the first witness before the committee, charged that the national air defense was being imperiled by the present policy of subsidizing only the larger air transport companies.

His own concern, Braniff said, operates air transport ships between Oklahoma City and Chicago by way of St. Louis and by way of Kansas City. He said that his own ships could carry mail faster than do the holders of present mail contracts for those routes and at a price of 17.7 cents a mile for 100 pounds of mail as compared to present price of 64 cents for one hundredweight per mile.

"The government is spending $20,000 a year to keep fewer than 400 pilots in the air," Braniff testified. "This monopoly has caused a stagnation in aviation."

Bandits Flee Jail; Two Captured

SEARCH RAVINES FOR WAUKEGAN JAIL FUGITIVE

2 Bandits Caught Shortly After Escape.

One of the three bank bandits who escaped from the Lake county jail in Waukegan yesterday morning was still at large last night, despite an intensive hunt conducted by Sheriff Lester Tiffany and Waukegan police. The escaped prisoner, Joseph Beck, 19 years old, 5407 South Justine street, Chicago, was believed to be hiding in one of the ravines on the outskirts of Waukegan.

The other two fugitives were captured within two hours after they slugged a guard and fled from the jail. They are Clifford Heaney, 21 years old, 1648 Juneway terrace, recently paroled from Pontiac reformatory, and Ernest Rupprecht, 24 years old, 1748 West 55th street, also an ex-convict.

Fear Conviction at Trial.

They were found in the basement of the home of Mrs. J. E. Porter at West and Water streets, Waukegan. The men put up a struggle, but were quickly subdued. They said they had planned the jail break because they were sure they would be convicted at their trial, which is scheduled for Nov. 14, and would be sent to the penitentiary.

The three are charged with the robbery of the Lake County State bank at North Chicago, in which Mrs. Monetta Steffan, the bookkeeper, was shot and permanently disfigured. They obtained $3,000. They were captured a week later by New City police and confessed the robbery and other holdups which had brought them about $10,000 loot within a month.

Deputy Sheriff Harvey Hyde, night turnkey, opened the door to the cell in which the three bandits were confined at breakfast time, about 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Immediately the three men leaped upon him and struck him on the head with a tongue from a toy wagon.

Guard Choked and Beaten.

Hyde struggled with the men, but his cries were choked off and he was beaten. Running down the stairs from the third floor on which they had been confined, the trio thrust aside two Negro trusties who attempted to stop them and burst out the front door of the jail, running across the south lawn of the jail grounds.

Heaney and Rupprecht were captured after Mrs. Porter phoned the sheriff that two men were hiding in her basement. A coat belonging to Beck, the third bandit who is at large, was found in a ravine. It contained a letter addressed to Charles Kranz, 5427 South Bishop street, in which Beck wrote that he expected to break jail and asked Kranz to get him some money.

Frank Wagner, 19 years old, 2552 South Marshfield avenue, a fourth member of the bandit gang, was not in the jail break plot. He had been the first one to confess the bank robbery.

PROBE BRAKEMAN'S DEATH.

Warren avenue police are investigating the death of Frank Hartnett, 54 years old, of Savanna, Ill., a railroad brakeman, who was found suffering from severe burns at 2243 West Lake street and died yesterday in the county hospital.

Gutzon Borglum Fined For Speeding in Indiana

Warsaw, Ind., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Gutzon Borglum of San Antonio, Tex., world famous sculptor, was arrested here today by State Policeman Ralph Liggett and paid a $9 fine in court when he pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding past two school buses which were unloading passengers east of the city. Borglum stated that he was en route from the east to the Black hills, where he is engaged in work as a sculptor.

SMITH TO TAKE STUMP OCT. 19 FOR ROOSEVELT

Announces He Will Speak in Four States.

New York, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The Democrats began to revive today from the body blow administered by Calvin Coolidge, when formal announcement was made that Alfred E. Smith was going to take the stump for the presidential ticket and really get into the campaign.

The long delayed announcement which has kept the Democrats in hot water for weeks came from Mr. Smith's office. He will speak in behalf of the national and local tickets in the four states where he is to appear, it was stated. His engagements, still tentative, are:

Oct. 19—Tammany hall.
Oct. 24—Newark.
Oct. 27—Providence, R. I., and Boston.
Oct. 28—Capital district [either Albany or Troy.]
Oct. 29—Buffalo.

Trouble States in East.

These Atlantic states are giving the Democratic managers more cause for worry than any other group which they hope to carry. They believe that if Mr. Smith really throws his weight into the campaign and gives a few punches for the Democratic ticket he may easily swing New York, New Jersey, and Massachusetts. The seventy-nine electoral votes in this group might decide the presidency in the event that the election proves to be closer than now appears evident on the surface.

The announcement of his itinerary was the first statement of any kind dealing with politics to come from Mr. Smith's office since he shook hands with Gov. Roosevelt at the state convention last week.

"Will he talk for both the state and national tickets?" was asked of the former governor's representative.

"That is exactly the idea," was the answer.

Sore Throat Prevents Speech.

Because of a sore throat, Mr. Smith did not speak today at the luncheon of the independent citizens' committee at the Commodore hotel supporting the candidacy of Herbert Lehman for governor. But there is no uncertainty where Mr. Smith stands on that proposition. He made his fight for Col. Lehman's nomination at the state convention, going almost to an open break with Tammany and John F. Curry. But for Mr. Smith's courageous stand in the face of Tammany's stubborn determination Col. Lehman might not have been nominated.

Now the Democrats hope that Mr. Smith will go all the way, lay aside all past animosities and speak openly for Roosevelt by name. He hasn't done that as yet. In his Albany speech nominating Col. Lehman Mr. Smith spoke for the "presidential ticket."

Tammany, the Hague organization in New Jersey and Gov. Ely's followers in Massachusetts formed the bulwark of the Al Smith backers in the national convention where he was beaten by Gov. Roosevelt for the nomination for President. That element in the eastern democracy constitutes what is known as the Al Smith wing of the party.

SERIOUSLY ILL

MARQUIS BONI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Count Boni de Castellane, former husband of Anna Gould, is near death tonight following a paralytic stroke. The stroke is the third he has suffered in the last few years. This time it is complicated with an attack of bronchitis. At a late hour tonight the count was reported growing slowly weaker. He is 64 years old.

DR. MATHEWS, U.C. DIVINITY DEAN, TO RETIRE IN 1933

University Rule Makes Change Compulsory.

Dr. Shailer Mathews will retire at the end of the present academic year as dean of the divinity school of the University of Chicago, a position he has held since 1908. He has been a professor of the school since 1894.

DR. SHAILER MATHEWS.

The announcement that his status will be changed to that of professor emeritus was made last night at the close of the annual meeting of the university trustees, by President Robert Maynard Hutchins.

Will Be 70 Next May.

Under the university rules, retirement from active service is compulsory on faculty members when they reach 70 years of age. Dean Mathews will be 70 next May. The same rules require the retirement of Alonzo A. Stagg, director of athletics, also at the end of this academic year, it was announced.

"The university has the greatest regret that two of its distinguished members have reached the retirement age," said President Hutchins. "Both have exerted a notable influence in their long service."

Dr. Mathews, although a layman, is one of the most prominent theologians in the United States. His early studies in the New Testament led to his writing of several books, including "New Testament Times in Palestine" and "The Messianic Hope in the New Testament." Later he wrote "The Faith of Modernism" and "The Contributions of Science and Religion."

His "French Revolution—A Sketch" is regarded as one of the best of the short histories on that subject. He has been a lifelong advocate of world peace and coöperation between religious denominations. He has been president of the Federal Council of Churches in America and has directed the religious work of the Chautauqua institution since 1912.

Colby College Graduate.

Dr. Mathews was graduated from Colby college in 1884 and later studied abroad. He has been awarded eight honorary degrees.

In making the announcement, it was added that Dr. George F. Dick, at present chairman of the department of medicine at Rush Medical college, will become chairman of the department of medicine in the division of biological sciences on the south side, a post that has been vacant since the resignation of Dr. Russell Wilder last winter.

GARNER ON AIR TONIGHT; REPLIES TO 'PORK' CHARGE

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—John N. [Postoffice Jack] Garner will make his maiden speech in his campaign for the vice presidency tomorrow, speaking from New York City over a nation-wide radio hookup.

No formal announcement of the subject of the Garner broadcast was made, but it was learned that the Texan will speak on the Democratic record in congress, answering the charges of President Hoover, former President Coolidge, and other Republican spellbinders, who have charged Garner with leading Democratic pork barrel raids on the federal treasury. He also is expected to answer the charge that he is "unsafe" for American business.

Up to this time, Speaker Garner has made no formal address, and recently the charge was made by Republicans that he was being muzzled by the Democratic leadership.

ADMIRAL BYRD PLEADS FOR WAR ON TAX MONSTER

Calls Menace of Wasters Worse than Battles.

"America has its back to the wall. Its citizens must develop the same spirit our forefathers had in the days of the Boston tea party if the country is to be saved. In the time of the Boston tea party we had a tough old king to fight. Now we have our colossal indifference which has let organized minorities impose their will on us and burden us with crushing taxation."

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, retired, hero of the first airplane flight over the south pole and of many other adventures, made this declaration yesterday as he told of the immediate necessity for reducing taxation.

Crusades for Economy.

Admiral Byrd is in Chicago for a series of talks urging economy in government—federal, state and local—under the auspices of the National Economy league, of which he is chairman. His first talk was given before the Illinois Manufacturers' association in the Congress hotel yesterday noon. Last night he addressed the Economic club in the Palmer house. At noon today he will speak before the Chicago Bar association, and tonight he will address a meeting of women at the Drake hotel.

In an interview during the afternoon Admiral Byrd explained the views and purposes of the National Economy league as he told how he came to give up another trip to the antarctic to enlist in the campaign to reduce the cost of government.

"We are in the gravest kind of a crisis," he said. "Every one in the country must serve in peace with the same spirit that was shown in the war if we are to survive.

Must Crush Tax Monster.

"When former President Coolidge asked me to share in the work of the National Economy league I realized that here was a task as important as war service.

"With everybody suffering from the depression and with leaders pointing out that the chief cause of our troubles was the crushing cost of government, the subject of taxes has taken on a tinge of romance. Every one now realizes that taxes are a monster which we must crush before it crushes us."

Admiral Byrd said the National Economy league is not the foe of any particular group as a class—it has one aim, to reduce taxation to a point where industry can survive so as to provide jobs for the millions out of work.

Taxes Hit Rich and Poor.

"We especially want the support of the wage earners," Admiral Byrd went on. "They are the chief sufferers and it is to their interest that the cost of government be reduced. Although they may not see as easily as the rich man the taxes they are paying, the taxes are there nevertheless. We must now teach labor that it is paying to the limit.

"The big goal of the National Economy league is to bring back employment. To cut the cost of government to a sane basis we must stop certain expenditures. Among these are the lavish sums spent on war veterans for disabilities which were incurred long after they were out of the service. It is not right that every one in the country should be taxed for the benefit of those in this class.

"The league wants those veterans suffering from disabilities originating during the war to secure every advantage. We oppose payment of the bonus now because it would cost the government a billion and a half dollars more to do it than if we wait until it is due under the present law.

"Our league provides an instrument of action for all the 120,000,000 people in our country. It is open to every one. We shall not drop our fight until we have accomplished our goal—taxes reasonable enough to be paid by every one."

Points to High Costs.

In both his talks yesterday Admiral Byrd discussed the tremendous increases in the cost of national, state and local government in the United States. This cost now totals 15 billion dollars a year, he said. He pointed out that American citizens now work three months out of the year to meet this bill.

His talks also stressed the huge sums being spent on the veterans. He said that under the present law the government will have spent 21 billion 500 million dollars by 1945—as much as the war cost—and that eventually this will run to 85 billion dollars.

He appealed especially to the millions of citizens who have become voters since the end of the war, urging them to act now to save posterity from being overwhelmed with taxes.

Admiral Byrd, who, his friends say, has not had a day off since he became the head of the league, is donating his time to the cause of economy.

100,000 Killed by Fire in 10 Years, Kiwanis Told

More than 100,000 people have been killed by fire in the United States during the last ten years, Richard E. Vernor, manager of the fire prevention department of the Western Actuarial bureau, told members of the Kiwanis club yesterday as they observed Fire Prevention week in their meeting at the Hotel Sherman. Inspection of property and elimination of fire hazards were urged.

CITY OFFICIALS ACT TO SPEED UP TAX CASES

Confer with Jarecki on Objectors' Suits.

City officials conferred with County Judge Jarecki yesterday and arranged to aid in speeding decision of tax objection cases so that delinquent 1928 and 1929 taxes may be collected. At the same time they declared their opposition to any proposal to expediate such collections by compromising the protested tax bills.

"I don't believe the County court has the power to compromise taxes," said City Controller Szymczak. "I believe that is a legislative function."

Plan Opposed by Cermak.

Attorneys representing large tax objectors recently suggested that the tax situation in Cook county might be relieved if the county court compromised the protested bills, allowing the taxpayers to pay part of what has been levied against them, and forgiving them the rest of the debt.

Mayor Cermak expressed opposition to this proposal as soon as he learned of it.

"Any tax bills which are compromised will be compromised over my dead body," he declared. "The small home owners of Chicago have paid their bills in full. It would be grossly unfair to them to let others off by paying only part of their bills."

Besides Controller Szymczak, those who visited Judge Jarecki were Deputy Controller Petterson, City Treasurer Kearns, his chief clerk, A. J. Keefe; and John A. Richert, chief of the council finance committee staff. Hayden N. Bell, county tax attorney, was also present.

Jarecki Suggests a Plan.

Judge Jarecki informed the city officials that his court is now working faster than other county offices in disposing of tax objection cases. At his suggestion it was arranged to send clerks from the city controller's, corporation counsel's, and finance committee's offices to the office of the state's attorney, to help write up cases which have already been disposed of by Judge Jarecki, on which taxes may now be collected.

Mr. Szymczak will confer with the judge again today on this matter. On Monday, Attorney Bell told him, the United States Supreme court will probably decide at Washington whether it will hear an appeal in the Bistor tax case, in which the Illinois Supreme court has already upheld the 1928 and 1929 Cook county assessments against tax objectors' attacks. The ruling in this case is expected to have an important bearing on the disposition of banks to buy more tax warrants from Chicago local governments.

NEW TAX APPEAL BOARD WILL OPEN HEARINGS TODAY

The new county board of tax appeals, of which George F. Nixon and Fred W. Brummel are the members, will hold its first hearings today. The cases are complaints against 1931 personal property assessments in 16 of the 30 country towns.

The complaints, numbering about 300 from 16 of the 30 county towns, were filed after the assessor had mailed to each taxpayer a list showing his own personal property assessment and those of all his neighbors within a given district. The complaints were assigned for hearing on a specific day when they were filed, thus eliminating the expense of notifying the taxpayer later of the date of hearing, as was done by the old board of review.

A representative of Assessor J. L. Jacobs will be present today to defend the assessments. Changes in the assessments can be made only by agreement of the two members of the appeal board, whose ruling is final, except for the general appeal to the County court allowed all taxpayers.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomusion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomuslin is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by such medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

MICHIGAN G. O. P. SCORN IDEA THEY CAN LOSE STATE

Leaders Not Worried by Straw Vote Reports.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The G. O. P. was born "under the oaks at Jackson," since which time Michigan has not so much as looked at a Democratic candidate for President. But now for the first time there is talk abroad that the mother may disown her child.

President Hoover became so alarmed at the tidings from the habitat of the Wolverines that he called the leading Republican editors of the state to the White House to tell him that the awful reports were not true. They did, and appropriate publicity was given to their unbosomings by the White House secretariat. Mr. Hoover was reassured.

But the gnawing fear goes on gnawing. These pesky polls just won't come out right for the peace of mind of the shapers of political destinies at Republican headquarters. The Literary Digest poll would have you believe that Michigan is going hell bent for Roosevelt.

That Appalling Straw Vote.

The Republican, Adrian Telegram conducted a straw vote in Lenawee county, second richest agricultural county in the nation, which resulted in a 3 to 2 vote in favor of Roosevelt. In all the cities the straw votes show Roosevelt running ahead of Hoover all the way from 2 to 1 in Detroit to a majority of 10 out of 800 votes in Ann Arbor.

I gathered at Republican headquarters that any one who could bring in a straw vote favoring Hoover would receive nothing short of the French accolade.

The Republican managers confess that they are dumfounded by the miraculous springing up of Democrats in a state in which Democrats had come to be regarded as virtually extinct—so scarce, in fact, that a Democratic organization had become a figment of the imagination and the Republican organization had grown flabby for want of something to fight. They just can't believe that enough Republicans are deserting from the true faith this year to wipe out the usual enormous Republican margin in this state, such as Harding's 530,000, Coolidge's 600,000 over Davis and La Follette combined, and Hoover's 569,000.

Democracy Almost Extinct.

Why, Michigan, say the Republican managers, has never given its electoral vote to a Democrat since the Republican party came into being. Franklin Pierce having been the last Democrat to carry the state, away back in 1852. Why, even in 1912, when the G. O. P. was rent asunder, Michigan would have no traffic with the Democrats. Michigan went for Theodore Roosevelt and Wilson ran behind Taft.

So it is just not believable that Michigan will go Democratic this time, say the Republican haruspices. Some of them confess privately that along about last August the state was certainly lost to Hoover. But Hoover has been growing stronger steadily, they aver, and Roosevelt has been slipping, wherefore they believe the President will carry the state eventually, though perhaps by no more than a 50,000 plurality.

Roosevelt Popular Name.

Of course, there is that name Roosevelt, a charmed name in Michigan, as blessed as Mesopotamia. The Republican managers are not above wishing that the Democratic candidate had any name but Roosevelt, for which the Wolverines displayed so fond a preference in 1912. And what adds to their perturbations is the reflection that the Roosevelt of 1932, with his talk of a "new deal" for the "forgotten man," is making much the same appeal as did the Roosevelt of 1912 with his "square deal" and program of "social justice," which went so big in Michigan.

Michigan is said to be alive with people who are saying they are going to vote for Roosevelt, just as they "voted for his daddy" in 1904 and 1912.

A harbinger of the resurrection of the Democratic party in the state was the victory of Michael J. Hart, Democrat, in the 1931 bye-election in the Saginaw congressional district.

Primaries Provide Hint.

In the primaries this year the Democratic vote increased many fold, while the Republican vote fell off. This was due partly to Republicans turning Democratic, for the time being at least, and partly to an outpouring of Democrats who had almost forgotten the use of the franchise in a state in which it had been futile for Democrats to vote.

The result of the new born hope in Democratic breasts of getting somewhere politically at last has been a blossoming of a Democratic organization in almost every county, while the Republicans have found it necessary to get out and do some real work.

About the only certainty in the situation is that Roosevelt will carry Detroit, which never went Democratic till two years ago in the gubernatorial election. The Democrats are counting on a Roosevelt plurality in Detroit of upward of 100,000, while the Republican managers think they can hold it down to 60,000. Then the vote in the remainder of the state, which always has been heavily Republican, will determine the result.

Havoc Wrought by Depression.

But whether Roosevelt wins Michigan or Hoover gets it by a hair, the balloting is going to tell a story of the political havoc wrought by hard times in a state that was peculiarly vulnerable to the operation of the forces of the depression. What with the automobiles turned out in Detroit, Flint, and Pontiac and the furniture in Grand Rapids, Michigan is a leading manufacturer of the very articles that people began to cease buying the moment they felt the pinch.

Unemployment has brought great distress to all the industrial centers. In Detroit the number of unemployed has varied from 100,000 to 125,000 and nearly 250,000 persons are estimated to have moved from the city seeking employment elsewhere or at least a lower cost of living in rural districts. More than 25 millions have been expended on relief in Detroit alone. The farmers, with bountiful crops bringing profitless prices, are joining urban unemployed in sullen hostility to the party in power. Republican leaders, however, tell of many signs that the wavering are being brought back into line by such vigorous appeals as the President's acceptance and Des Moines speeches.

Prohibition Issue an Aside.

The Democratic state convention indorsed the Democratic national plank for repeal of prohibition and the Republican state convention indorsed the Republican plank as interpreted by Mr. Hoover, which makes the Michigan Republicans wetter than their party. The prohibition issue is not cutting much figure in the presidential contest, partly because the two parties are so nearly in harmony.

Michigan gets four more congressmen in the next house and it looks as if the Democrats would elect two of them.

SERIOUSLY ILL

THELMA TODD.

She was removed to the hospital as an emergency case early this week. Her husband is a New York sportsman.

A. R. Brown, Professor at U. of C., Sues for Divorce

Alfred Radcliffe Brown, professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, filed suit for divorce in the Superior court yesterday, charging his wife, Mrs. Winifred Marie Brown, with desertion, asserting that on Jan. 15, 1926, his wife took their daughter, Cynthia, now 19 years old, to Cambridge, England, where they now are living. Prof. Brown is a British subject. He came to Chicago university in 1924.

Painful Piles
Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

Thousands who have piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, drive out the thick impure blood, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study, found a real internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with success in over 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer, no matter how stubborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite you to try HEM-ROID tablets with guarantee of money refunded if they do not end your Pile misery.

48 SEND GIFTS TO HUNGRY SCHOOL CHILDREN'S FUND

Contributions Range from 10 Cents to $20.

Forty-eight contributions ranging from ten cents to $20 each were received by THE TRIBUNE fund for Hungry School Children's fund yesterday, bringing the grand total to $7,444.

A lawyer, Samuel K. Markman, donated $20 to the Walsh school, one of his monthly payments to the fund. He wrote that he will continue to make payments on the 12th of each month "as long as this fund is maintained."

Give Show to Aid Fund.

"I am a sixth grade student at the Eugene Field school," the letter read, "and my cousins, Mary Ann Wax and Joan Wax and Adrelenne Fox and myself gave a show and collected 50 cents which I am sending to your fund. Kindly publish our names for my cousins live out of town."

The Wax girls are from Detroit, and the writer was Gloria Lee Berry.

A CORNER STONE YIELDS COPY OF TRIBUNE OF 1884

A copy of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of 48 years ago today was found yesterday in the corner stone box of the building at Adams and Paulina streets, which housed the Women and Children's hospital until 1929. The hospital moved to its present quarters at Ashland and Maypole avenues at that time and the old building was wrecked this spring. The wreckers did not find the corner stone box, which recently was discovered and turned over to Ferris Laune, treasurer of the hospital.

A report in the box said that THE TRIBUNE had donated the printing for the hospital reports. Another document showed that J. H. McGinniss had donated $50 worth of hitching posts, and that a gift of liquor had been received from the firm of Grommes & Ulirich. The corner stone for the old building was laid on Oct. 14, 1884, and the copy of THE TRIBUNE carried the date. One report in the box recorded gifts of $100 from John Crerar and John V. Farwell.

LEGION OPENS ITS FREE CLINIC FOR CHILDREN

Civil Service post of the American Legion opened its third annual clinic for the free inoculation of children against diphtheria yesterday afternoon in its headquarters at 1438 Adams street. Similar clinics will be held every Thursday afternoon between 1 and 4 o'clock until the end of the year. Dr. J. T. Brosnan and Dr. F. J. Riley are in charge of the clinic. They also give the children free physical examination.

FOUR GUNMEN ROB GASOLINE STATION AND SIX STORES

Four armed men riding in an automobile last night robbed a gasoline station and six stores on the north and northwest sides, obtaining a total of $487 and two suits of clothes.

The first place visited was the drug store of Herman V. Tatgauer, 4257 Belmont avenue, where $88 was obtained. Charles Schreiber, druggist at 2228 North Springfield avenue, was next robbed of $100. The third victim was Elgin Stockhauer in his filling station at 2701 West Chicago avenue. He surrendered $16.

From the Louis clothing store at 1227 North Ashland avenue the bandits took $30 and the suits. The other places robbed were Edmund Ambrosiewski's delicatessen at 6036 Malvina avenue, Frank Warczak's drug store at 5839 Milwaukee avenue, and the drug store of Benjamin Friedlander at 4317 Irving Park boulevard.

Flower Pot Blown from Porch Railing Kills Child

A fractured skull, suffered last Saturday when a flower pot was toppled from a porch railing by the wind and struck her, caused the death early today in Frances Willard hospital of Catherine Socki, 2 years old, 1818 North Lotus avenue.

TEACHERS TOLD CHILDREN COME FIRST IN SCHOOLS

Trustees Reply to Petition Asking Shutdown.

Chicago school teachers, while they, like other citizens, have been victims of depression, should remember that the schools are maintained for the children and that if the teachers dislike their situations they should resign. This, in effect, was the reaction of at least two trustees at the school board meeting yesterday to the introduction of petitions signed by about 600 teachers asking the board to close the schools until taxes are paid.

"The teachers have no more right to present such petitions than we, as board members, would have to quit because we are not being paid," said Orville J. Taylor, acting president. "If the teachers feel that way let them resign. Their places can easily be filled."

"Duty Is to Children."

"Every member of this board is sympathetic to the teachers and the employés," said Trustee Joseph Savage. "But our first duty is to Chicago's half million school children. Closing the schools cannot help the situation. I would oppose such a move even if the petition were signed by 16,000 teachers. If any of the teachers can't continue it's too bad, but there are others who can and will."

"The trouble has been caused by the inactivity of those in authority," said Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell. "There has been no evidence of cooperation among the taxing bodies. We have been lax in our obligations to try to get something done. The board of education ought to take an active part in the solution of these problems."

Trustee Savage asserted that everything had been done. Trustees Robert F. Carr counseled that some actual progress might be expected after the election.

"Meantime," said Trustee John A. English, "the tax dodgers are strangling the city. Closing the schools would penalize the parents unjustly because they are the small property owners and they have, in large measure, paid their taxes. Still, if I thought closing the schools would awaken those who have not paid their taxes, I would vote for such action. Because of the danger of losing tenure and pension rights, we now have the teachers in a form of involuntary servitude."

Paid to Middle of April.

Most of the board's 18,000 employés have been paid in cash or tax warrants up to the middle of last April.

The petition presented yesterday was signed by teachers in 18 schools. It asked the board to "take a courageous stand before the system collapses and close the schools until such time as the people of Chicago realize that the schools are their concern, their heritage and their responsibility."

On motion of Trustee Caldwell, it was referred to the next meeting of the general committee.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In an item on Monday, Oct. 10 concerning the death of Dr. Fritz Huxmann, 84 years old, 2832 Burling street, it was stated that police were searching for Thomas Lantry, 4215 Sheridan road, driver of the automobile that struck Dr. Huxmann. Mr. Lantry, a former municipal judge, identified himself to police at the Columbus Memorial hospital and surrendered at the Lincoln Park police station immediately on hearing of the death, according to Capt. Sammis of Lincoln park police. Mr. Lantry was not held responsible for the accident.

Germany Raids Print Shops in Hunt for Red Literature

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(AP)—By order of the state's attorney, police searched communist centers and printing shops throughout the nation today for illicit literature. It probably will take several days to examine the piles of books and other materials seized to determine whether their contents are incriminatory.

MINER SLAIN; GUARD OFFICERS FACING ARREST

diers, who had summoned help, came back to Taylorville.

It was said more than 2,000 members of the Progressive faction, who oppose the $5 a day scale of pay accepted by the United Mine Workers of America, again are gathered in this vicinity, although outsiders have been driven away several times by the troops. The soldiers, of whom there are now seven companies on duty, were held in constant readiness.

There were other disorders besides the shooting of the miner during the day. A mail carrier was wounded when he attempted to pass a detail of state troops. A guardsman was seized and beaten by pickets at the Peabody mine No. 58, which is operating.

A working miner fired on and wounded a man, member of a crowd of strikers who had surrounded his home, and was himself fired on. A car belonging to a mine electrician was seized and overturned. A truck in which soldiers were transporting pickets across the county line fell into a ditch and was burned. The last incident was accidental.

The man who was shot at Tovey and later died in St. Vincent's hospital here was Andy Ganis, 44 years old.

Meyers then fired and struck Ganis. On his return to Taylorville the corporal was placed under arrest by Col. Robert W. Davis of the 130th Infantry.

at a sentinel post, failing to recognize him, fired when he passed without halting. He was struck in the left shoulder.

E. D. Hancock of Springfield, the soldier on guard at the Peabody mine, was so seriously injured that he was taken to the hospital for treatment.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

COOLIDGE TO HIS COUNTRYMEN.

In the rich brogue of his native Vermont, Calvin Coolidge Tuesday night gave his views of the political situation and vital issues as one man to another. He did not pretend to be nonpartisan, but the speech was a notable counter attack upon the main lines of appeal relied upon by the Democratic campaign, as well as an assertion of the principles and accomplishments upon which the Republican candidate and party are asking the reasoned approval of the American people.

Mr. Coolidge knows his fellow countrymen and human nature too well not to recognize that one of the chief forces in this campaign is the desire for change, the natural impatience we all feel with conditions which afflict us, and even the gloomy fallacy that things could not be worse and therefore any change must be for the better. Mr. Hoover dealt with that fallacy at Des Moines and Mr. Coolidge added his warning that things could be much worse than they are and "would have been had it not been for the vision, the courage, and leadership of President Hoover." It is upon this opinion of Mr. Hoover's service that Mr. Coolidge indorses him for reelection, but his appeal is broader, recognizing that we are choosing not merely a President but a government.

"No government," said Mr. Coolidge, "has ever been devised that would make the people prosperous all the time," but he indulged in some retrospective approval of the Republican record which may not appeal to the younger voter who is guiltless of history, although it is nevertheless worthy of consideration in the present as in all national elections. Mr. Coolidge recalled the record of Republican policy respecting sound money and the encouragement of business and agriculture and summarized effectively his views of the Republican doctrine of protection. "We are told now," he said, "that we ought to have a competitive tariff. Those words are not new, but their meaning is not very definite. Judging from the prices of almost all commodities now selling in our markets for less than the cost of production, our producers are not suffering from any lack of competition. Is it proposed to put our agriculture in competition with that of Canada, Australia, and the Argentine? Is it proposed to put our industry in competition with that of Europe? Is it proposed to put our wage earners in competition with those of India, China, and Japan? But we are told again that by reducing our tariff we can increase our own foreign commerce. Every foreign nation wants our tariff reduced. No foreign nation wants to increase our commerce. I know that foreign nations do not buy in our markets unless they are compelled to do so, even when price and quality are advantageous. I know also that our tariff and trade regulations in general are much more favorable to the rest of the world than their tariffs and regulations are to us. About two-thirds of our enormous imports and all our exports are free of duty."

Besides the question of tariff changes Mr. Coolidge dealt at length with the charge that Mr. Hoover and the Republican party have shown no solicitude for the general welfare of the people, analyzing the interrelation of financial and commercial solvency with that of agriculture and the worker of all classes. "We have advocated strengthening the position of the employer in order that he might pay better wages to his employés, enlarge the consumptive capacity of the people, and increase the market for the farm and factory. We have sought to increase the returns of agriculture in order that it might better supply our people with food and enlarge the market for our industrial output."

Mr. Coolidge's analysis, it is to be hoped, will be taken into the thought of our people of all conditions and especially by such as have been impressed by class appeal and the effort to give measures of relief to business enterprise the appearance of class profit and discrimination. On this point Mr. Coolidge makes it clear that he feels an injustice has been done to his party and to Mr. Hoover.

Certainly whatever the estimate of Mr. Hoover's administration may be, it is of first rate concern not merely to a wise decision in the election but to sound public thought and just feeling generally that the interdependence be recognized of private enterprise, its health and restoration, with the relief and reemployment of the unemployed, the betterment of agriculture, the preservation of homes and savings; in short, the restoration of the normal well-being of the American people.

FOR BETTER COURTS.

It is to be hoped that Judge Wilkerson's speech on the courts will have the attention of the American bar. His discontent with the present state of courts cannot be dismissed as uninformed or hypercritical, as his analysis of their weaknesses a counsel of perfection.

We agree with Judge Wilkerson that the repeal of the 18th amendment will not restore or place our courts upon the level of efficiency which ought to be demanded of them, important as we believe the repeal of the amendment to the amelioration of crime conditions will be. Even when this relief is attained there will remain other causes of weaknesses, of which the five emphasized by Judge Wilkerson undoubtedly include several of the most important—namely: political selection of judges, intimidation of trial judges through fear of the ballot [and review judges likewise], long and cumbersome trials, inefficient jurists, and the hasty and superficial training of lawyers.

There are other things to be corrected in the organization, personnel, and procedure of our courts, but we are convinced that improvement in the method of selecting our judiciary is of the first moment. This and other rectifications should have the study of the bar, which should make use of its maximum influence to bring about pressure upon legislative bodies for well considered reforms.

Judge Wilkerson is right, in our opinion, when he declares that our courts are now facing their supreme test and that "it may be the deciding factor as to whether we are to remain a true republic or be transported to a communist state under a dictatorship." The legal profession, which in recent years, he asserts, has become too much preoccupied with merely economic questions and the profits of business law, must "regain its former conception of its duty to the people, and it must see that no one be elected as judge except one qualified to sit on the bench."

THE FORECLOSURE RACKET.

Fifteen hundred real estate foreclosure suits were filed in Cook county in September of this year. The number of suits was a hundred less than in August, but the value of the properties involved was materially larger. A recently published summary estimated the value of the properties involved in the September suits at $60,000,000, as against $46,000,000 in August. In September a year ago the number of suits filed was 938 and the properties were valued at $34,000,000.

About the time of the spring primary a great deal was heard about the receivership evil. At that time the Chicago Bar association announced that it had undertaken a detailed study of receivership proceedings in this jurisdiction and would shortly announce its findings. THE TRIBUNE then expressed the hope that the association would "present an accurate statement of the facts regarding receivership abuses" and "lay down a simple and unambiguous set of rules to govern judges and lawyers in these matters, with disbarment as a penalty for violation."

That hope has been pretty largely disappointed. In spite of the growth in the number of foreclosure suits filed in recent months, the bar association has remained silent, if not, indeed, idle. Changes in the judicial assignments may have removed some of the most serious abuses which stirred the association to action in the spring, but the possibility of a recurrence remains.

The essence of the complaints was that the chancellors were permitting the foreclosures in their courts to be used for political advantage. Political favorites were appointed as receivers, masters in chancery, and attorneys for the receivers. Properties in receivership were being milked in order to provide jobs as engineers and elevator men for ward heelers. And so on.

The most effective preventive of this kind of legalized theft of the property of lenders and borrowers is a clear statement by the bar association of the proper conduct of judges and lawyers in these proceedings. A few exemplary disbarments will do a world of good. The need for such action is greater now, if the statistics of suits pending may be taken as a guide, than in the spring.

WAGES IN A DEPRESSION.

It was recently reported that the basic wage at the Ford factories has been reduced from $6 a day to $4. The decision must have been reached reluctantly. Mr. Ford is one of the last of the great employers of labor to reduce the wage rate, and if he has done so it has been by force of necessity and not from choice.

The only index which the public has to the condition of the Ford company is the annual report filed in Massachusetts. The report, published last May, indicated that the Ford Motor company had [illegible] a loss in 1931, the loss amounting to [illegible] dollars. In that fact lies the [illegible] production.

[illegible] losing money an employer [illegible] current scale and will [illegible] business is operating at a [illegible] employer who wants to stay in [illegible] and no employé who [illegible] a job can afford to accept [illegible] immense fortune of the Ford [illegible] many 50 million dollar settlements, [illegible] losses and the automobile [illegible] must be shut down.

Only by getting costs down to a point where a profit can again be made on manufacturing and distribution can progress be made in reëmploying the idle workers. That is one of the painful lessons which have been learned from the depression.

Editorial of the Day

AH, THE GRAPE!
[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

The territory east of the coast of Lake Michigan, near Benton Harbor, is a scene of fevered activity these days, for it is grape country. An evidence of the fact is witnessed in the hurrying of 5,000 Chicago automobiles and trucks to that territory to be loaded with wine grapes in a single day of last week. And the caravan at this season moves daily. The roads are lined with purveyors of the vinous fruit. The hillsides laugh under the weight of juicy treasure. The grape buyers flock to this harvest of Bacchus as bees to fields of scented clover. They go, frankly, for wine grapes not in order to be able to make jams and jellies. The number of tons purchased would make enough jams and jellies to supply Chicago from now until the next world war, with a generous surplus handed over to Al Capone and his fellow citizens now sojourning in federal prisons.

And so through the perfumed air, an air that would have inspired even old Omar to more hilarious effort in glorification of the grape, loyal citizens of this great and godly Union go happily to join in the violation of their country's sovereign law.

It is true that we have bear and wine, here and now, but it is equally true that we are getting no revenue from their presence, though congress has put a tax on the "makings" of such devilish contributors to the ruin of the souls and bodies of American citizens, thus encouraging all moral people to do their durndest to violate the sacred Volstead act. And they loyally are doing just that.

Meanwhile the fragrant grape grows and ripens, is pressed, ferments and becomes wine, and certainly on the head of every cask, the cork of every jug, a miniature Bacchus is dancing derision to the makers of laws.

"HOOVER CHARTS COURSE for Bar to Help Nation."—La Trib. Which is going to give the wets great joy, but will make the drys as mad as all gittout.

AND, THINKING OF THE IDEA of charting a course for the bar, as we look back down the years to the dear old days before Mr. Volstead was heard of, we can never recall having deliberately mapped out a course for the nearest bar. We always knew instinctively that Stillson's was east-sou'east from our office anchorage; Hannah & Hogg's, sou'-sou'east by west-sou'west, and Chapin & Gore's west by sou'west and three points off the weather bow. But we could always lay a straight course for any of these snug havens by dead reckoning alone and never took the tiniest peek at the compass. No, the old time likker mariners never had to chart a course for the bar, but sometimes they needed a skillful pilot to guide them out to sea again. For when they once more put out to sea at three or four bells in the morning watch the waves were often running high and the wind blowing a hurricane. Some of the hardy mariners crowded on full sail and, though laboring heavily in the terrible seas and carrying a list to port, managed finally to anchor in their own harbors. But the wisest of the mariners, after tacking aimlessly back and forth for a while and scraping the rocks a few times, came about and ran back to the snug haven from which they had sailed but a short half hour before. Ah, yes, in the old days it wasn't charting a course to the bar that filled honest likker mariners with terror; it was steering away from the bar and laying a safe course for home that made the pre-Volstead skippers dread to up anchor and sail away on the rolling main.

FOR MOTHERS.

Of what he'll do, and what he'll be when he becomes a man.
I know so well the pitfalls, and I know so well the tears—
The shattered hopes, the sorrows, that come with changing years.
But when disaster threatens him, instinctively I fly
To shield him from impending woe—and yet, I know that I Am kindest when I suffer him to learn to stand alone.
But oh! a mother finds it hard not to protect her own.
God, give me strength to stand aside! I cannot live life for him.
But oh! in all he dreams and does Thou be watching o'er him!

MARJORIE F. W.

A POLICEMAN who saved the life of a beautiful young heiress in New York the other day is fat, has false teeth, a cauliflower ear, and a bald head. Also he is married and chews tobacco and when the eager reporters asked him if he would marry the beautiful heiress, as is the custom, the policeman told the reporters to tell the dame to get the hell outten here or he'd run her in. It's policemen like that who blight the ambition of young reporters.

THERE SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN a very heavy registration last Tuesday, but on careful inquiry we cannot discover that many thousands of our intelligentsia turned out. And we intelligentsia are the boys and girls who have taken on ourselves the duty and the privilege of putting our Norman Thomas in the White House. Stung to the quick by the fact that the Democrats and G. O. P.'ers were giving free auto rides to those of their faith who felt unable to walk a half block to the registration places, we offered to transport any of the intelligentsia who so desired in our old family bus. But no customers. The intelligentsia to whom we spoke called our attention somewhat snootily to the fact that they had better gas buggies than we had and handsomely uniformed chauffeurs to drive 'em. What we should have called into service is a husky wrecking crew with their complete outfit, wrecking wagon, derrick, steam winch, and a long strong chain. However, the election is not yet over and we still have hopes of ultimate victory. Just how ultimate it will be we can't say. Nobody can.

FIGURING ROUGHLY from the stories from Hollywood of the number of police guards put around the cinema kings and queens who have received threatening letters, we come to the conclusion that the police force of Los Angeles is considerably bigger than the standing army of the United States, France, and Italy plus the number of men enrolled in the Coldstream Guards, the Black Watch, the Scotch Borderers, the Household Guards, and the Mediterranean fleet.

WHAT WILL I DO?

What will I do when I finally come
To the end of that last tall hill?
Where will I go when the dusk is here,
And the stars have grown too still?

What will I do if I am too tired
To reach for a swinging moon?
What will I hear if I only hear
Ghost of a vanished tune?

Where will I go when a rain blows up
And you and your arms are gone?
Is there no place in all the world
For comfort? Well—life goes on!

HELEN WELSHIMER.

AH HA! WE KNEW it would leak out! Let a secret be ever so carefully guarded, in some way, depend upon it, it's going to be known. The name of the Republican nominee for mayor of New York is Pounds. And let them guard his first name and middle initial as they will, they, too, will some day be discovered.

SPASMS IN CHILDREN.

WHY do children have convulsions? Dr. M. G. Peterman offers the results of a study of nearly five hundred children as an answer to the question. Putting the matter simply, his answer is: For various reasons. The probability that a given cause will be the answer in a given case depends on many things, one of which is the age of the child. It is true that, as a rule, an attack is a self-limited condition and the child will get over it in a few minutes, whatever treatment is used. But it is also true that no one should be satisfied with it. Every case should be studied to discover why convulsions come on and what can be done to prevent another attack in the remote future, as well as during this illness.

But few of the children investigated were under one month of age, since young babies, not congenitally deformed, are not subject to convulsions. Of those investigated, about one-half had this trouble because of birth injuries, and the rest because of some acute infection such as whooping cough, measles, or diarrhea.

From one to six months of age babies are more prone to convulsions. One-third of those in this group have convulsions resulting from infections. Roughly speaking, about one-sixth had the attacks because of birth injuries, one-sixth because of spasmophile diathesis, and the other about one-third because of miscellaneous causes. In one-fifth of the cases the cause was not discovered.

In babies from six to thirty-six months of age the distribution is different. A little more than one-third were due to spasmophilia; and the other 30 per cent were divided among the less important causes. Birth injury dropped to a low place in the list. Epilepsy is found for the first time. Nearly 7 per cent of all the cases had epilepsy.

In the three to ten year group epilepsy was the leading cause. It was held responsible for 57 per cent of the cases. Birth injuries ranked second with a far lower percentage. Acute infections was third, and spasmophilia was well toward the bottom of the list.

In the group ten to fifteen years of age epilepsy was very much the most important, being responsible for almost three-fourths of the cases. The other one-fourth were divided among such causes as birth accidents, other accidents, acute infections, and sleeping sickness [which was given a separate heading but really a form of acute infection]. Spasmophilia disappeared from the list.

So far as epilepsy is concerned this study indicates that it is seldom, if ever, the cause of convulsions in newly born babies. It is not until the baby is more than six months of age that epilepsy can be proved to be the cause. If a child beyond three years of age, but less than ten, has a convulsion, the chance is more than even that the cause is epilepsy. If the age is beyond ten, and less than fifteen, when the attack of convulsions appears, the chances are three to one that the child is headed for epilepsy. Fortunately, epilepsy is rather amenable to treatment in children. Dieting and the development of habits are the treatments now in vogue.

The spasm habit must not be allowed to establish itself, since each attack paves the way for another. If the attacks are often repeated, presently a groove is established, and in this routine or program, spasms at intervals become a habit.

MIGHT CAUSE TROUBLE.

Miss D. G. writes: I read in your column that streptococcus is one of the causes of arthritis. I have been laid up with a very bad streptococcus infection in my arm and leg for the last three months. This has left both very weak. I am 20 years old. Will this infection leave me with arthritis?

REPLY:

It might; or with heart disease.

TRAIN FOR POISE.

P. A. L. writes: What are the causes of hot flashes? My face burns and gets terribly red. I am 23 years old. Is there a cure for it?

REPLY.

In your case the cause is self-consciousness, timidity, blushing. The only cure is training in poise.

IT IS HARMLESS.

C. F. A. writes: Is there danger from the use of the juice pressed from walnut hulls?

REPLY:

None.

PAVING AUTHORIZED.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—Can you please advise me why the terrible condition of Rokeby street from Dakin street to Irving Park boulevard, which leads to the American hospital, has never been repaired? This street is full of holes and I hope you will take the matter up with the proper parties to effect a remedy. M. E. F.

Rokeby street from Dakin street to Irving Park boulevard was confirmed in court for new pavement in 1930. Any further information desired can be obtained from the board of local improvements.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

BANK RECEIVER.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend of mine has stock in a closed state bank. He is, like most farmers, financially distressed and cannot pay. The receiver has offered to settle for less than the full amount and release him from further liability. Has the receiver the power to do this? H. L.

Under the Illinois statute the enforcement of the statutory stockholders' liability is not placed in the hands of the receiver. We advise you not to rely on such a settlement unless the receiver can show court authority.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MUST BE IN WRITING.

Dolton, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two years ago I guaranteed payment of my sister-in-law's note and on her default I was compelled to pay off about $200. She made some small payment to me and then got married. Her husband, in the presence of witnesses, promised to pay me the balance. He did make several payments by check, but now refuses to pay further. Can I compel him to pay me? L. R.

Under the statute of frauds a promise to answer for the debt or default of another person must be in writing in order to be enforceable.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ELIMINATES PERSONAL LIABILITY.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I made a loan on my furniture. I lost my business and could not pay the loan and now the loan company has taken the furniture. I am out of work, but the loan company insists upon payments. 1. Can I file bankruptcy? 2. Will that eliminate my obligations? A. H. F.

1. Yes.
2. It will eliminate your personal liability, but will not cut off the right of the creditor to look to the security which was pledged.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 14, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Judge Olson, after first refusing to preside at the hearing of State's Attorney Hoyne's application for warrants for Chief Healey, agreed to hear the case today. This action came when J. J. Healy, former state's attorney, suddenly appeared as counsel for the chief of police and asked Judge Olson to preside. Mr. Healy said his client assented to this course. Corporation Counsel Ettelson and his staff consider asking warrants for the arrest of the Hoyne raiding squad, headed by Assistant State's Attorney Berger, which seized records in Maj. Funkhouser's office, Chief Healey and the mayor brand Hoyne's move to throw the Healey case before the Municipal court purely political, perhaps indicating "the grand jury has a mind of its own." William A. Cunnea, Socialist candidate for state's attorney, denounced the "Paul Pry" methods of Hoyne in the city hall raids.

LONDON.—Greece is gradually yielding to the tremendous pressure exerted by the Anglo-French allies. The latest news from Athens is to the effect that King Constantine has consented to join against Germany and Austria-Hungary if the allies will guarantee the territorial integrity of Greece. The Greek ruler evidently fears the fate of Serbia. Vice Admiral du Fournet, who recently seized the Greek fleet and an important railway, has made new demands—namely: The control of the Greek police, the prohibition of Greek citizens from carrying arms, the stoppage of sending war munitions to Thessaly, and the lifting of the embargo on transportation of Thessalian wheat.

BERLIN.—Great attempts of the French and British forces to break through the German lines on the Somme front resulted in failure, the war office announces. Six assaults near Sailly were repulsed.

PARIS.—Forty French and British airplanes dropped four tons of explosives on the Mauser works at Obernderf in Germany, on the Neckar river, the war office says. Six German airplanes were brought down in engagements which they entered to defend their factories.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Responsibility for the enormous increase in state expenditures and the advance in taxes was placed on Gov. E. F. Dunne's administration in an address by Medill McCormick in the state armory. Mr. McCormick said the present administration, elected on an "economy platform," had increased the state expenditures $4,000,000 a year.

LONDON.—Berlin and Bucharest reports of the fighting in the Transylvania sector of the Balkan war theater are conflicting, but agree that the battles are violent in character. Berlin claims that in the Gyergyo and Mazek valleys and in the lower and upper Calk they drove all enemy troops from their positions. The Rumanian war office states that in the northern and northwestern valley of the Ofuszul, west of the frontier, enemy attacks were repulsed and driven back in the Magyaroe defile to the west of Mituzu.

CHICAGO.—Miss Jane Addams, who returned to Chicago Oct. 12 from the east, confirmed a report sent out from New York that she favors the reelection of President Wilson.

OUT IN IOWA.

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 10.—I want first to congratulate THE TRIBUNE for its extreme fairness in the way of news dispatches favorable to Roosevelt in his campaign.

The writer of this is a lifelong Republican, but wet, and therefore for Roosevelt.

The people of Iowa, aside from hidebound partisans, are sick and tired of reading in the dispatches "since Hoover's Des Moines speech the tide has turned, etc." Make no mistake. Iowa is going for Roosevelt by upwards of 100,000. To illustrate, the day after Hoover left Des Moines the Register-Tribune of Des Moines, the state's leading Republican paper, sent six of their reporters on as many rural routes out of Des Moines, and interviewed some one hundred farmers, taking them as they come, giving their names and box numbers, and easily over 75 per cent of them were of the opinion that Hoover's promises were as they were four years ago—in brief, the bunk.

The farmers of this state are highly intelligent. They read the daily papers, the farm papers, the weekly reviews. Their wives are active club workers. They are well posted on current events. The day after the President left the state the markets dropped and today corn is selling in Iowa for 10 cents per bushel, wheat around 30 cents, and hogs at 3 cents. Taxes are due and unpaid. The farmer cannot borrow a dime from any bank—what few banks there are left—and the silly idea that a speech, which took Hoover three weeks to write, rewrite, and revise, would change the opinion of the farmers with the known facts staring them in the face is ridiculous. It isn't being done this year.

The farmers of Iowa as well as the small merchants and business men know the difference between elephant's feet and poker chips. J. W. MILAM.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—If Roosevelt and Garner are elected, this country will be governed by crackers and hill billies from the south, prairie dogs, desert rats and sons of the wild jackass. The progressive states in the north and middle west contribute most of the federal revenue and possess the business brains to continue the winning fight inaugurated by President Hoover to restore prosperity. A vote for Roosevelt and Garner is a vote to have hard times continue during the next four years. H. B. F.

WHY BUSINESS IS BETTER.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Mr. A. G. Larson, under date of Oct. 6, states business in his line is showing a slight pickup. There is a good reason for that. He sells optical goods, and the men and women looking for jobs have probably found it necessary to change to glasses in their search. If Hoover is reelected, Mr. Larson's firm could profit by increasing their manufacture of microscopes and high power binoculars. A. BERGSETH.

INCIDENT ON THE HIGHWAY.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—The black kitten that "M. V." picked up on the Indiana highway Monday and chloroformed was thrown with two others from a Cadillac car containing a man and a woman on Sunday afternoon.

Our car happened to be in back of the Cadillac and all of a sudden, without slowing down or driving off the pavement, the woman threw the kittens out the window.

We nearly upset in swerving to miss them, but they ran directly across the pavement and no doubt one or more was injured, as traffic was very heavy.

The woman was not the least concerned after doing this terrible and inhuman act, but the sight of those little kittens thrown out the window and hitting the pavement will never be erased from my memory.

It was impossible for us to stop, for it would have meant the colliding of many cars in back, but I do know if that woman gets what was wished on her by us, she'll pay—and pay plenty. PEARL L. WINN.

WHY HE'S LATE TO WORK.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The new feature which has started in THE TRIBUNE recently is entirely responsible for my arriving late at my place of business on each day since it has started. Breakfast simply cannot be completed until the ball and chain and I have determined who is the brighter half of the family by reaching the correct solution on "Minute Mysteries" by H. A. Ripley.

And, by the way, who is this guy Ripley? Don't you think that his talent for covering facts under a lot of nonessential words is equal to that of any of the major candidates on any of the major political parties? He makes you dig for it and I suppose that is where the fascination in the game lies. A. L. DECKER.

FUN FOR THE OFFICE.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Keep up the good work on the "Minute Mysteries." We have quite a time here at the office. Most of us read the day's story en route and put off turning to page so-and-so until 10 o'clock. There's a lot of competition to see how many make the grade on a correct solution.

J. C. MURPHY.

RETURNING TO THE CHARGE.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The raucous razzberry in bounteous plenitude has been my portion since you published my little jape anent "change and rest" some days ago. But I should like to ask my critics one question, if I may: In the event that Gov. Roosevelt is elected President, what are they going to do for a job during the period of at least two years in which industry undoubtedly will further curtail production and expansion while gauging the ultimate effect upon it of the anti-corporation, soak-the-rich, and tariff meddling programs which he and his party admittedly endeavor to initiate? I am vitally interested in the answer to that one myself. WAYNE COLLINS.

UNFAIR!

Menomonie, Wis., Sept. 30.—I have been a reader of THE TRIBUNE for many years, and noted your editorial entitled "Dry Killings Continued" on Sept. 26.

It seems that your paper is outstanding in being unfair to the cause of prohibition. News that is favorable to prohibition, temperance, and law enforcement is nearly always given but little space in your paper, and I have never seen an editorial in your paper with reference to wet killings, of which there are many.

You are doing grave injustice to a just cause, and to many people who are supporting those things that are finest and best for this nation.

METHODISTS GO SOCIALISTIC ON 'POLICY' REPORT

Rock River Conference Takes Radical Step.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dixon, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—With the unanimous passage today of the socialistic report of the committee on public policy the Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church embarked on what is admitted to be the most radical venture of its ninety-three years of history.

Only slight modifications of the text of the report were made following its presentation to the conference by Dr. Harris F. Rall of Garrett Biblical institute. The principal change eliminated reference to the failure of "the major political parties" to produce in their platforms more than "vague generalizations which show no essential difference in position and no clear proposal for remedy" in the economic situation.

It was pointed out by Dr. H. P. Magill, general secretary of the International Council of Religious Education, that the retention of this clause, by implication, would be an obvious indorsement of the Socialist party.

The Rev. Dr. A. M. Pennewell, pastor of the Ravenswood Methodist church, also attacked the clause condemning the Republican and Democratic parties. He asserted that President Hoover's economic leadership is adequate for present needs. Dr. Pennewell's mention of President Hoover was greeted with applause. On the other hand, when the Rev. M. J. Mumford of Cortland attempted to defend Democratic economic leadership he was greeted with uproarious laughter.

Socialistic Phrases.

Among the phrases pointed out as evidence of the socialistic nature of the report were the following:

"We cannot hold any order as Christian which is organized upon the principle of competition.

"No economical or social order is right or sane which bids an individual or class or nation to seek its salvation in selfish efforts or isolation at the expense of others.

"We call attention to the great racketeering alliance which includes predatory business, corrupt labor leaders, venal officials, and organized crime."

The report throughout stressed a recommendation that "service" instead of "profits" be the impelling motive in the social order.

Follows Ohio Lead.

The passage of the report by the Rock River conference is in line with admitted leaning toward socialism by increasing groups of Methodists throughout the country. Recently the Ohio conference passed a statement of position similar to the one proposed today, while the New York Christian Advocate, official Methodist publication, recently urged Methodist study of Socialist principles.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Chicago area, who is presiding at this conference, when asked the effect of the report on political preferences of Methodist pastors and laymen, replied that each has the right to make "whatever political affiliations he thought best to uphold the statement of our position."

Fisher Defends Prohibition.

Following the passage of the public policy report the conference turned its attention to prohibition. The subject of prohibition and politics was discussed at a round table session by the Rev. Fred D. Stone of the Irving Park Methodist Episcopal church. Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university declared that prohibition had done much to preserve the peace during the depression.

"Any one who has followed the statistical curves since prohibition can scarcely avoid feeling that now is a very poor time to give up prohibition," said Prof. Fisher.

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Eldridge Rand Herron of New York, who had climbed some of the highest mountains in the world, was killed today when he fell 461 feet from the top of the great pyramid.

Herron reached Suez this morning on the way back from the Himalayas, where he was a member of an expedition which attempted to scale the towering Nanga Parbat. He motored here to see the pyramids and had intended to rejoin the ship at Port Said.

The ancient pile of the great pyramid challenged him and he began to climb. Many tourists do it with the assistance of native guides and it is not difficult, although sometimes the great blocks of sandstone crumble at the edges.

Climbing the pyramid should have been easy for Herron, who went nearly 23,000 feet up the steep slopes of Nanga Parbat, but somehow he slipped and plunged to the bottom.

DEMOCRATS SING VICTORY HYMNS AT SPRINGFIELD

Horner Tears Into Record of His Opponent.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Packed to the very doors of the state arsenal, a capacity crowd here tonight heard the Illinois state Democratic candidates sing triumphant hymns of victory which they predicted for their party on Nov. 8.

The entire country is going Democratic, said these confident candidates, and the crowd whooped it up for that sentiment.

The three headline orators of the evening were selected so as to present a rounded perspective of the November chances.

Walsh on National Issues.

Thus United States Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts talked on the issues of the national campaign; Judge Henry Horner of Chicago, the candidate for governor, spoke for the state ticket, and Congressman William H. Dieterich of Beardstown, who is contesting the senate seat of Otis F. Glenn, delivered the "coup de grace"—the "summation of Republican wrongs."

Amity was the key word of the meeting. The chairman was State Representative Michael L. Igoe of Chicago, who was a candidate for governor last April. Mr. Igoe was defeated by Judge Horner; he now is one of the ardent supporters of the entire ticket.

The picture was enlarged when, with a few words expressing the very thought of unity, Mr. Igoe introduced Bruce A. Campbell of Belleville, the third contestant in the gubernatorial primary, and Campbell promised and Igoe clapped assent to "work ten times as hard for Judge Horner as I did for myself."

Great Reception for Horner.

Judge Horner himself was given a tremendous reception when he stepped to the speaker's stand in midevening.

The candidate for governor repaid this enthusiasm by ripping into the past administrations of his opponent, Len Small. Small, Horner charged, raised the cost of government 300 per cent during the first four years of his two terms. He outlined for his listeners his program of tax reduction, prohibition repeal, aid for the farmers, and kindred planks.

Senator Walsh's address was a condemnation of the Hoover administration with the choice phrases reserved for the evils of prohibition.

Pot Shots at Farm Board.

Mr. Campbell introduced the following state candidates: Thomas F. Donovan, candidate for lieutenant governor; Edward J. Hughes, candidate for secretary of state; Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, candidate for auditor; John C. Martin, candidate for state treasurer; Judge Otto Kerner, candidate for attorney general, and Martin A. Brennan, candidate for congressman at large.

EARL BEATTY HERE

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Admiral Earl Beatty, first sea lord of the British admiralty, whose late wife was Ethel Field, the daughter of Marshall Field, arrived in Chicago yesterday with his two sons, Lord Borodale and Peter Beatty. Ronald Tree, Lady Beatty's son by a previous marriage to Arthur Tree, son of Judge Lambert Tree of Chicago, accompanied them. They are staying at the Drake hotel.

A dispatch on Wednesday from London said that Lady Beatty's will left $1,000,000 each to her husband and her three sons. She died last July 17 at the age of 59.

"I am in Chicago on business in connection with my wife's estate," Admiral Beatty said. "I shall be here three days and then will return directly to New York. Perhaps next year I will return for a longer visit."

Admiral Beatty was named first sea lord for his success in the battle of Jutland in 1916. When he married Lady Beatty in 1901, the same year of her divorce from Arthur Tree, Admiral Beatty had already distinguished himself as a service officer in the Sudan and Boxer uprisings.

2 PLEAD GUILTY TO MURDER IN ELGIN HOLDUP

Henry Atkinson, 24 years old, of Oak Park, and Donald Skene, 32 years old, of Chicago, pleaded guilty yesterday in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva to the murder of Herman Holtz, bookkeeper of the Cities Ice Cream company of Elgin, in an $800 robbery on July 31. A third defendant, Harold McClellan, 25 years old, of Elgin, pleaded guilty as an accessory to the crime. The pleas were made before Judge Frank W. Shepherd.

The trial was halted and the men pleaded guilty after the confessions of Atkinson and Skene were admitted into evidence. Judge Shepherd dismissed the jury and set Saturday for sentencing the defendants.

Holtz, according to testimony, was fatally wounded as he stood with his hands in the air in the ice cream plant. Atkinson, angered because keys given him by Holtz failed to open the safe, shot the bookkeeper, the confessions said. McClellan was charged with planning the robbery.

A fourth defendant, Edward M. Ryan, a former Chicago Municipal court bailiff, was granted a severance. He was charged with being an accessory for driving Atkinson and McClellan to a Madison, Wis., hideout after the crime. Atkinson and Skene later went to Seattle, Wash.

OAK PARK 'COON KNOWS OWNER; POLICE RELIEVED

A number of persons appeared last night at a showup held by the Oak Park police to claim a raccoon which was found Wednesday by Policeman Lambert Barsema at Jackson boulevard and Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. Mrs. Dottie Fawcett, 709 South Home avenue, triumphantly carried the captive away. The animal drove all other claimants away with bites and scratches, but submitted docilely to Mrs. Fawcett's caresses.

Mrs. Fawcett said the raccoon was one of two which escaped Saturday night from her home. The animal had traveled only two blocks in four days.

News of the find brought many callers to the Oak Park station during the day. Among them was Paul Pechukas, a janitor at 492 North Austin avenue, Oak Park, who wanted to mate his pet male raccoon with the runaway, which is a female.

"Absolutely no!" said Chief of Police Benjamin Barsema to Pechukas. "This one has caused us enough trouble without breeding more of them to injure the morale of my men."

PENSIONED WAR NURSE IS KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Miss Hildred Van Anberg, 39 years old, 3507 Walnut street, a Red Cross nurse during the world war, was killed yesterday and four others were injured in an automobile collision at Cicero avenue and the Sauk trail, Richton Park, just west of Chicago Heights. The other car was driven by John Stepanovich, 66 years old, 187 East 25th street, Chicago Heights, who suffered a scalp injury.

The companions of Miss Van Anberg were Mrs. William Riall, 30 years old, 3507 Walnut street; her daughter, Joan, 4 years old, and her brother-in-law, Russell Miller, 23 years old, of Kankakee. Miss Van Anberg was pensioned on her return to America after she fell on the gang plank of a ship in New York harbor and suffered an injury to her spine.

The death of Miss Van Anberg and one other yesterday brought the Cook county motor toll for 1932 to 886. The other victim:

Bernadino Tonti, 50 years old, 1013 South Wood street. Died in the Peoples hospital several hours after he was struck by a truck on the Halsted street bridge over the drainage canal.

Lloyd Otto, 7 years old, of Black Oak, Ind., was killed yesterday in East Chicago by a truck driven by Frank Boenig, 64 West 111th street, who was not held.

Mrs. Emma Stagg, 47 years old, of Hammond, Ind., was killed by a Michigan Central train at Maywood avenue in Hammond last night.

SHOT CLEANING PISTOL.

Jerry Thompson, 33 years old, 2514 Sheffield avenue, was shot in the leg while cleaning a revolver yesterday afternoon.

ATTORNEYS FORM COMMITTEE TO SUPPORT HORNER

Group Claims Backing of 3,000 Lawyers.

In support of the candidacy of Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, a group of more than 100 Chicago attorneys has organized the lawyers' independent Horner for governor committee. This committee plans to take an active part in the campaign, placing the jurist's qualifications before the entire state.

The attorneys, many of whom are Republicans, have sponsored the Horner candidacy in a letter which has been sent to all lawyers in Cook county and in a pamphlet that has been prepared for distribution to all lawyers in Illinois. In these communications the committee stresses its belief that Judge Horner is the best qualified candidate presented to the people of the state for many years.

Leaders Issue Statement.

Attorneys John S. Miller and George Warner Swain are co-chairmen of the committee. In a statement issued yesterday announcing the organization of the committee they said:

"The forms of government and law are less important than the character and ability of the men who administer them. The great need of the people of Illinois is honest and capable administration of their government.

"A group of Chicago lawyers of various political affiliations, who know and admire Judge Horner and are familiar with his high qualifications, have organized a committee to sponsor his campaign for governor, believing that he is the best qualified candidate who has been presented to the people of this state for many years. This committee already has obtained the support of more than 3,000 lawyers in Chicago and throughout the state."

On Executive Committee.

Members of the executive committee, besides Attorneys Miller, Swain, and Charles O. Parker, secretary of the organization, are Warren B. Buckley, Homer H. Cooper, Amos C. Miller, Henry G. Miller, Conrad H. Poppenhusen, Alexander F. Reichmann, Henry F. Tenney, and Ednyfed H. Williams.

Another organization that added its indorsement to Judge Horner's candidacy yesterday was the Parkview Civic league, of which Charles Rudolphy is president. Resolutions adopted by the league state the belief of its members that he has proved his ability as an executive.

Harry L. Tate, principal of the Whitney Elementary school and president of the Teacher Voters' association, announced that he had obtained the promise of Len Small, Republican candidate for governor, to appear before the teachers at a massmeeting to be held Oct. 28, and that Judge Horner had agreed to be present at a similar massmeeting, the date for which has not been set. Mr. Tate said the place of the meetings had not yet been decided.

DIES OF FALL FROM TREE.

Michael Reinowski, 3257 North Ridgeway avenue, died last night of injuries he suffered Sept. 3, when he fell while sawing a limb from a tree.

Rheumatism Goes Swollen Joints Vanish

NEW MEDICINE EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

If you suffer from crippling rheumatic aches and pains, Neuritis, Lumbago, lame knotted muscles, swollen inflamed Joints, it's because your system is full of dangerous and irritating poisons that cause these rheumatic symptoms which every year make thousands helpless. What you need is RU-MA, the new internal medicine, and need it right now.

RU-MA acts on the blood, liver and kidneys and helps expel these dangerous poisons from the system through the natural channel of elimination. Only an internal remedy can do this; that's why external treatments only give temporary relief.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop—RU-MA eases pain first day and is one remedy that rheumatic sufferers can depend upon as a safe and quick relief from their stiffening, crippling lameness and torturing pain.

We have so much confidence in RU-MA that we offer a $1.00 bottle to any rheumatic sufferer with guarantee of money-back if it does not free them from all aches and pains of rheumatism

WALGREEN DRUG STORES

DANDRUFF
A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get plain, ordinary liquid Arvon from any drug store (it won't cost you more than thirty-five cents), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

MARKS BIRTHDAY

EAMON DE VALERA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 13. — President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State arrived in London this evening from Dublin to resume an economic peace parley with the leaders of the British government. The conversations open tomorrow and involve land annuities, the oath of allegiance, and the tariff war.

De Valera was accompanied by James Geoghegan, minister of justice, Sean MacEntee, minister of finance, and Conor Maguire, his attorney general. The party was met at the railway station by Secretary for Dominions J. H. Thomas; Malcolm MacDonald, representing his father, the prime minister, and John W. Dulanty, the Free State high commissioner in London.

After conversing a few minutes in the train, Thomas and De Valera posed for photographers. A small group of Irish enthusiasts were present to cheer De Valera, waving huge green, yellow, and white Republican flags. The president of the Irish Free State will be 50 years old tomorrow.

Priest Kidnaped in Mexico; Held for $8,000 Ransom

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 13.—(AP)—A dispatch from Guadalajara today said bandits at the town of Penjamo had kidnaped a priest, Father J. Jesus Cornejo, and were holding him for 25,000 pesos ($8,000) ransom, which could not be raised. The dispatch said members of the chamber of deputies at Guadalajara had asked the governor to expel two priests from the state.

BARE $1,250,000 STOLEN STOCK AND BOND PLOT

4 Held After Attempt to Dispose of Securities.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Four men were held tonight in an investigation of suspected attempts to dispose of $1,250,000 in bonds and stocks, the loot from robberies of banks and financial institutions in half a dozen cities, including Chicago and New York.

First degree larceny warrants were sworn out in Buffalo today for two of the men, Michael Verga of Detroit and Louis Epstein of Cleveland, who were suspected by private detectives and Cleveland police of attempting to dispose of $32,000 worth of the securities.

Two Others Also Held.

Two more men, one a resident of Cleveland and the other a North East, Pa., business man, were also being held.

The warrants against Verga and Epstein were sworn out by Edward M. Miller, vice president of the M. & T. Trust company, Buffalo, which was robbed last Sept. 23. Investigators said some of the securities found after the arrest of Verga and Epstein were stolen from the Buffalo institution.

Other securities found, private and Cleveland detectives said, were stolen from the People's Trust and Savings bank, Chicago; a broker's house in New York; the M. & T. Trust company of Buffalo, N. Y.; the Gerard Trust company of Philadelphia, robbed of $100,000 last June 10, and a Detroit financial house.

Believe One Man a Dupe.

The investigators said it would be several days before all of the securities are traced.

Deputy Detective Inspector Joseph Sweeney said Verga may have been connected with a national ring disposing of stolen stocks and bonds. He said Verga, traced here yesterday from New York via Columbus, Cincinnati, and other cities, apparently operated by trading stolen securities for those of bona fide title.

Just what part the others may have played was uncertain, Sweeney said he was informed by private detectives, but the Pennsylvania man was believed to have been an unwitting dupe.

The $32,000 worth of securities, Sweeney and other detectives said, were found in the possession of Epstein after he and Verga met here. The pair were apprehended on a downtown street corner. Detectives then went to the home of the second Clevelander, where he and the Pennsylvanian were arrested.

Sweeney said the second Clevelander admitted knowing Epstein and had been approached by the latter regarding purchase of the securities.

COL. JULIAN L. SCHLEY APPOINTED GOVERNOR OF PANAMA CANAL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—President Hoover today accepted the resignation of Brig. Gen. Harry Burgess as governor of the Panama canal and appointed Lieut. Col. Julian L. Schley to succeed him.

It was said at the White house that the resignation of Burgess will become effective Oct. 20. No reason was given for the resignation, although it was pointed out that his term would end ordinarily within a month or two.

The appointment of Col. Schley, it was said, follows a custom of many years of advancing the engineering officer of the canal to the governorship when a vacancy occurs. Col. Schley now holds the engineering post there.

ILLINOIS WOMAN ACTS AS ENVOY TO STOCKHOLM

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—A woman is now functioning in place of a United States minister abroad in an important foreign capital for the first time in history.

She is Miss Frances Elizabeth Willis, at Stockholm, Sweden, and is one of two women in the nation's entire foreign service, the other being Miss Constance R. Harvey, vice consul at Milan.

The absence of John Motley Morehead, American minister, now en route to this country, and of others above her in rank made Miss Willis chargé d'affaires, with full responsibilities to discharge all duties and functions of the head of the mission in Sweden.

She was born in Metropolis, Ill., but of late years has resided in California. She entered the foreign service in 1927, was vice consul at Valparaiso and Santiago, Chile, until 1931, when she was commissioned a secretary and assigned to Stockholm.

HUNT TWO MEN IN $25,000 SWINDLE OF ELGIN BANKER

Elgin police yesterday sought two men known only as Lawson and Martin for questioning concerning the $25,000 swindle of George M. Peck, 39 years old, president of the Elgin City Banking company. Dan Keene, 36 years old, of 2728 Pine Grove avenue, Chicago, arrested as a third man implicated in the fraud, was questioned yesterday at the Elgin jail. Mr. Peck, a civil war veteran, charged Lawson disappeared with $15,000 given him for the purchase of stock. Martin and Keene obtained the rest of the money on promises to recover the money from Lawson, the banker said.

BATTLE IN COURT TO HALT FEDERAL CALIFORNIA LOAN

Taxpayers Are Opposing 40 Million Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The District of Columbia Supreme court within the next few days will become the scene of a determined legal effort to prevent the Reconstruction Finance corporation from sending 40 million dollars of federal money to California to join the 165 millions already spent on Boulder dam and the 60 millions advanced last Saturday for the San Francisco bridge.

The recently filed suit of taxpayers to restrain the corporation from advancing a loan of 40 millions for construction of the Los Angeles Boulder dam aqueduct is scheduled for argument tomorrow or early next week. The corporation's answer in the form of a motion to dismiss the complaint was filed at the court yesterday.

Hold Aqueduct Not Necessary.

The injunction suit was undertaken by a group of taxpayers in the southern California metropolitan water district, which embraces Los Angeles and a dozen other communities. They argued that the aqueduct which would bring water nearly 300 miles from Boulder dam was not necessary since existing water facilities in the district may be expanded to provide adequately for future needs. Further, they contended, in order to make the aqueduct a "self-liquidating project" under the relief law, water rates or taxes will have to be raised to prohibitive levels in the district to be served.

In its motion to dismiss the complaint the corporation asserted that the court has no authority to restrain disbursement of the 40 million dollar loan "because this suit is an attempt to interfere with the functions of an instrumentality and agency of the federal government."

Claims Sole Jurisdiction.

The corporation likewise contended that it alone has jurisdiction to decide whether a project is "self-liquidating" and that it is "not subject to the authority of this honorable court in respect thereto." As a "fact determining agency of the government," the corporation held, its "exercise of discretion is not subject to judicial review."

It was also argued that the facts set forth by the plaintiffs were not sufficient to warrant action against the corporation, and that the complaining taxpayers have not sufficient interest in the matter of the loan to entitle them "to the relief prayed for."

More Capital Advanced.

Meanwhile, the corporation announced that $6,000,000 was deposited in the treasury as capital for the agricultural credit corporation and branches which will serve Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas.

The main regional office is at St. Louis, with branches in Chicago, Kansas City, and Pine Bluffs, Ark. Thus far $24,000,000 has been placed in the treasury subject to call of the agricultural credit corporations for loans to farmers and stockmen.

Loans totaling $124,563,620 thus far advanced by the corporation for self-liquidating projects are expected to furnish 81,500,000 man hours of direct employment, according to figures quoted today by Director Harvey Couch in a speech before the national conference on construction.

Mr. Couch blamed municipal, state and local officials for failure to provide more employment through federally financed construction projects. He declared that only 100 legally eligible applications for self-liquidating projects have been received by the corporation, and added that "if the funds provided by the relief act are to be effective in relieving unemployment public officials must make application for projects which come under the scope of the law."

R. F. C. LOAN HOPE SPEEDS UP PLANS ON WATERWORKS

City Engineer Myron B. Reynolds was encouraged yesterday from the fact that the Reconstruction Finance corporation has agreed to advance $580,000 to Wilmette for construction of new waterworks, and ordered plans speeded for a new Chicago pumping station to replace the old 14th street, Harrison street, and Ashland avenue stations.

Mayor Cermak said before he left for his European tour in the summer that the R. F. C. would be asked for funds with which to build a modern and efficient station in place of the three old pumping stations. Rumors that the federal corporation was unfavorable to advancing the funds for the project caused work on plans to be slowed down temporarily.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't set at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches, and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. ©1932 C. M. Co.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR RESULTS!

HERE are the names, addresses, photos, and the facts about recent want ad experiences of people who have used the Chicago Tribune Want Ad Section to rent apartments and rooms, sell autos, recover lost articles, and to do the host of jobs that Tribune Want Ads can do.

All of these experiences are brand new, up to date. None of them has ever been printed before.

It's easy for the Tribune to get these testimonials—because satisfied customers are glad to tell the facts. Read the testimony of these satisfied Tribune Want Ad users—and then remember:

The cheapest want ad is the costliest if it fails to do the job.

Without public confidence in the medium which prints your want ad, the most attractive offer will go unheeded.

For twenty years the Tribune has built reader confidence in its want ad columns by maintaining a strict censorship over them. The Tribune does not permit the reader's confidence in all advertising to be undermined by the questionable operations of a few advertisers.

Vigilantly this newspaper guards its columns against misrepresentation, extravagant claims, sharp practices, and fraud. It does not force reputable advertisers to work under such a handicap and so increase their cost of doing business.

The Tribune also has built up the confidence of its advertisers in its want ad columns by insisting that all advertisers enjoy equal opportunities, pay promptly, and at regular card rates.

It offers no secret rebates.

It does not allow free reruns, except for reasons stated in its rate card.

These are some of the reasons why the Tribune is the preferred advertising medium of reputable want ad advertisers.

—why the Tribune gets better results and gets them more quickly than any other Chicago newspaper.

—why the Tribune during the first nine months of this year, as it has for the last 20 years, printed more want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

When you have any job that a want ad can do, phone it to the newspaper that can do the job quickly and at low cost—the Tribune. Call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser.

Apartment!

"On August 1st nearly half the apartments in our 60-apartment building at 863 Buena Avenue were vacant. At that time we began using Tribune Want Ads. Our most recent want ad ran in the Tribune September 23rd. Three persons answered it, and one of them signed a lease. Our building now is 100% rented."

MRS. FLORENCE C. CARTER
134 N. La Salle St.

Apartment!

"On Thursday, September 22nd, our want ad ran in the Tribune offering a six-room apartment at $40. Twelve people answered the ad that day. One of them rented the place."

MRS. C. FLUEGEL

Apartments!

"During the last two weeks in September, I used three want ads in the Tribune to advertise five-room apartments at $40. The ads pulled seventeen inquiries. Three apartments were rented."

IRA H. REICHMAN

Apartment!

"The third person to answer our Tribune Want Ad, which ran September 18th, rented our furnished apartment. We always get results from our want ads in the Tribune."

MRS. GUS JOHNSON

Apartments!

"I have been using Tribune Want Ads for many years to rent kitchenette apartments in my buildings. My most recent want ad appeared September 19th. Six prospects answered it and I rented two apartments."

BRUCE BARNET

Apartment!

"Following our usual custom of placing a want ad in the Tribune to advertise our apartment for rent, we ordered a want ad for September 18th. The day the ad ran three people answered it and one of them rented the apartment."

MRS. E. DAUSER

Apartment!

"My first experience with Tribune Want Ads was on September 17th. I offered a four-room apartment for rent at $27.50. Eleven people answered the ad. One of them rented the apartment."

HANNAH BONDESON

Apartment!

"On Saturday, September 17th, I ran a want ad in the Tribune to rent a one-room kitchenette apartment. The day the ad ran four people called and I rented the apartment to one of them."

M. CHERNOFF

Apartment!

"Following my usual custom of using a Tribune Want Ad when my four-room apartment is vacant, I placed a want ad in the Tribune on September 17th. Eighteen people answered it. The next day one of them rented the place."

PETER BALDASSANO

House!

"We had no trouble finding a tenant for our six-room house with garage at $45 a month. Our want ad in the Tribune on September 10th brought inquiries from nine people. One of them rented the place quickly."

MRS. ELIZABETH BALOUGH
1740 Jarvis Ave.

Apartment!

"During the last week in September we advertised a six-room apartment for rent in the Tribune. Five people answered the ad, one of whom rented the apartment. This is the second time a Tribune Want Ad has rented our apartment."

BRUCE KAPUSTKA

House!

"During the second week in September I advertised a 5-room house for rent in the Tribune Want Ad section. Nineteen people answered the ad. Two days later one of them rented my house."

A. L. ATKINS
4364 Elston Ave

Automobile!

"When I decided to sell my De Soto sedan I placed a want ad in the Tribune. The ad ran September 18th. The third man to answer the ad bought the car."

SAMUEL P. KAISER
4428 Madison St.

Apartment!

"We placed a want ad in the Tribune the third week in September offering a four room apartment at $36. Twenty-six people answered the ad. One of them rented the apartment the day after the ad ran."

MARIE BAKOS
5801 S. Albany

Automobile!

"On September 11th I placed a want ad in the Tribune offering an almost new '32 Ford coupe. Twenty-five people answered the ad. I could have sold it to the first prospect the day the ad ran, but waited until the next day until I had talked to all the prospects, and found a buyer who would pay the price I asked."

CLIVE ENOCH
2311 Farragut

Automobile!

"Our want ad in the Tribune offering to sell a '29 Chevrolet coach ran for three days starting September 14th. Twenty-four people answered the ad. We sold the car for cash."

MRS. ANNA SORLING

Business!

"For several months I had tried to sell my rooming house, but it was not until I placed a want ad in the Tribune on September 18th that I found a buyer. The third prospect to answer my ad bought the place. I have used Tribune Want Ads to rent rooms for 40 years."

MRS. JENNIE LIPPERT
3228 W. Adams St.

Business!

"I wanted to rent the repair shop in my garage. A Tribune Want Ad in the Business Opportunities columns brought four replies. The first prospect to call rented the shop."

WILLIAM GERLIB
647 Chicago Ave.
Evanston, Ill.

Dogs!

"We had a litter of Boston terrier puppies to sell but didn't believe that we had a chance to dispose of any of them. We had never before used want ads but decided to try our luck with a Tribune Want Ad. The ad ran September 11th. Much to our surprise we got sixteen replies and sold two puppies"!

MRS. WILLIAM BOEHM
5847 Justine St.

Lost & Found!

"On Tuesday, September 13th, 'Pal,' our daughter Marjorie's pet French bull terrier, disappeared. When he did not return by Thursday I phoned a want ad to the Tribune. The dog was returned by a Tribune reader on Friday, September 16th, the same day the ad ran."

MARJORIE, the daughter of MRS. GEORGE PALEY
7550 Bartow Ave.

Lost & Found!

"I lost a pearl pin, a family heirloom, on Tuesday, September 14th. I phoned a want ad to the Tribune immediately. The ad ran the next day. My pin was returned by a Tribune reader.

MRS. ALAN J. ALTHEIMER
1352 Madison Parkway

Rooms!

"I have owned rooming and boarding houses for eleven years. During that time I have used Tribune Want Ads with much success. For example, I had a want ad in the Tribune on Friday, September 9th, offering room and board. The first two people who answered the ad became tenants in my house."

MRS. J. GARCEAU
5326 W. Monroe St.

Rooms!

"When my room became vacant, I placed a want ad in the Tribune as is my custom. As usual, I got immediate results. The ad appeared in the Tribune Saturday morning. The second person to call that day rented the room."

MRS. B. DZUR
2625 Ballou St.

Rooms!

"September 14th I advertised a room for rent in the Tribune Want Ad Section. That day eleven people called. I rented not only the room advertised but another one as well. I received inquiries for several days after the ad ran."

MRS. WILLIAM HOWE

Exchange!

"I placed a want ad in the Tribune Barter & Exchange column offering to swap a fine billiard table for a good used car. I got eight replies to the ad. As it turned out, I made a $400 sale to one of these prospects"!

CHARLES GERALD
Mohawk Billiard Supply Co.
159 N. Paulina St.

Fixtures!

"We have been using Tribune Want Ads in our business for fifteen years. We get better results from Tribune Want Ads than from want ads in any other newspaper. The Sunday Tribune is as near to a 'sure thing' for getting new business as we have found. Our Tribune Want Ad of September 18th pulled ten inquiries. We closed three deals for store fixtures, which is about the average."

THEO. M. BLUMENTHAL
Chicago Store Fixture Exchange
1708 S. State St.

Office Space!

"On Saturday, September 10th, we ran a want ad in the Tribune offering office space for rent which included special services and privileges. The following Monday we rented the space to a Tribune reader."

CATHERINE JANKA
Hartzler Service Corp.
5665 W. Madison St.

Rooms!

"My room didn't remain vacant long after my want ad ran in the Tribune September 4th! In three days fifteen people answered it. I rented the room the day the ad ran."

MRS. HENNING JOHNSON

Equipment!

"When I decided to sell my white-washing outfit I placed a want ad in the Tribune. The ad ran early in September. The outfit was sold to the first man to answer the ad the day it ran."

T. IVERSON

Furniture!

"I've learned my lesson about selling through want ads. I spent $2.52 to advertise a maple bedroom suite in one Chicago newspaper for a week. At the end of the week I still had my suite on my hands. Then I spent $2.40 for a Tribune Want Ad. Fifteen people answered the ad. I sold the suite to the first prospect the day the ad ran."

MRS. NAT. S. GREEN
4846 Greenview Ave.

Real Estate!

"We ordered a want ad for seven insertions in the Tribune describing a seven-room house for sale. The ad ran beginning September 4th. We received thirty replies in all. Ten of them were from persons who were able to pay cash in full. The others wanted to exchange. We sold the house."

JOHN J. KERN
John J. Kern & Co.
1520 Devon Ave.

Rooms!

"A Tribune Want Ad certainly got results for me in a hurry! I advertised a housekeeping suite for rent in a Tribune Want Ad on September 18th. The first person to call rented the suite!"

MRS. PAULINA HORN,

Equipment!

"Our business of selling office equipment and furniture of all kinds has been advertised in Tribune Want Ads every day for many years. The reason is that we get better results from Tribune Want Ads."

G. H. OTTO
Office Furn. Clearing House
236 W. Lake Street

Motorcycles!

"On September 18th our regularly scheduled want ad ran in the Tribune. The ad pulled twelve replies. We made six sales. We are using Tribune Want Ads every week and getting good results."

H. RIEDEL
Central Motorcycle Inc.
1331 W. Jackson Blvd.

Rooms!

"Fifteen persons answered my Tribune Want Ad in which I offered a housekeeping suite for rent. The suite was rented to one of these prospects the day the ad ran."

MRS. T. BRAZELTON

Salesmen!

"These days Help Wanted want ads in any newspaper ought to be able to pull inquiries, but still that doesn't mean they get results. GENERAL HACKS FOE WITH AX AT DINNER; MAY DIE

Attack Stirs Capital of Manchukuo Regime.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Li Hi-hsun, staff officer of the Manchukuo privy council, was probably mortally wounded today when he was hacked with an ax while at dinner by Gen. Chen Shieh-quan, who succeeded Gen. Ma Chan-shan as governor of the Heilungkiang province.

Gen. Chen is also a member of the privy council. He accused Li of forcing him to resign the governorship. The attack threw the government circles of Henry Pu-yi's régime into consternation.

Li Yi-hsun is expected to die. Recently Gen. Chen was relieved as governor of Heilungkiang under circumstances which were not explained.

Chinese Troops Facing Death.

NANKING, China, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The desperate plight of Chinese military forces in Manchuria was grimly described today in a statement by the war office of the national government.

With winter coming on 300,000 volunteer troops opposing the Japanese in the three Manchurian provinces "face death from starvation, exposure, or at the hands of the Japanese," the statement said.

Chinese "who refuse to accept Japanese domination on their native soil" are wearing cotton uniforms in the bitter weather which already has begun. Many of these are in rags and there is no winter clothing to be had.

Their only food supply they obtain by raiding Japanese stores and Manchurian villages, but "because of the continued warfare thousands of villages have been deserted and crops have not been planted."

"It may become impossible to continue the great struggle," the war office said.

Seek to Rescue Captives.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Abandoning their efforts to deal otherwise with Chinese insurgents at Manchuli, the Japanese today prepared to take military action in an effort to rescue 300 Japanese and Corean captives held at Manchuli and Hailar.

The authorities realized that an attack might provoke the insurgents to take reprisals against the prisoners, but army headquarters said the present situation must be ended because the Chinese hold the entire Chinese Eastern railway line from Hailar to Manchuli.

In their drive against 30,000 insurgents in the Tungpien district Japanese and Manchukuo troops today came within ten miles of Fushun, where there are seven American Catholic missionaries. They were scrupulously careful not to endanger the Americans, military reports said.

Lynch Slayer of British Woman.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Oct. 13.—(AP)—An infuriated crowd last night lynched the Chinese bandit accused of killing Mrs. C. T. Woodruff, an Englishwoman, yesterday as she tried to prevent the kidnaping of her three children. The bandit was strung up on a tree where the kidnaping occurred. Later his head was cut off and stuck up on a pole as an example.

"LIKES TO LIVE RIGHT"; STEALS $31,000 TO DO IT

CRIMINAL COURT.
Clifton Andrews, burglary, sentenced to one year to life in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Leslie Riley, 36 years old, 7100 South Shore drive, never drinks, smokes, plays the races, and hasn't taken out a girl in years. Yet every penny is gone of the $31,000 he has embezzled in three years from the Cadillac Motor Car company, 2301 South Michigan avenue, where he was employed as an accountant, he told Lieut. Ed Kelly and Sergt. Arthur Wachholz at the detective bureau last night.

"I liked to live right," said Riley, a bespectacled man of studious appearance, in explaining his embezzling. "I liked to take in the opera two or three nights a week during the season. I liked to drive an expensive car and wear fine clothing and read good books. That was the way I spent the money."

Riley confessed to the forgery of a series of pay checks for small amounts. He was detected when a number of pay vouchers were found in his desk last September while he was away on a vacation.

"I'm ready to go to the penitentiary and be a model prisoner," announced Riley as he settled down in his cell with a recent novel.

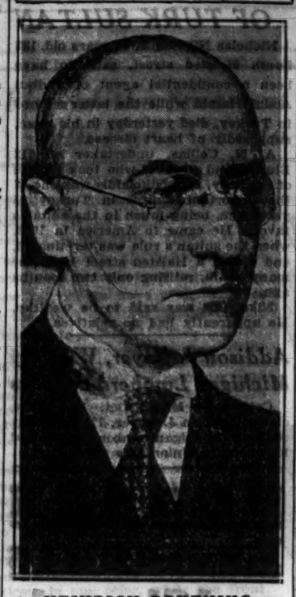
REPORT DENIED



HEINRICH BRUENING.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(AP)—An official denial was issued today of reports that former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening is to succeed Frederick von Prittwitz und Gaffron as ambassador to the United States.

Japan to Return Debuchi as Ambassador to U. S.

TOKIO, Oct. 14 [Friday].—(AP)—The foreign office announced today that Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi definitely is returning to his post at Washington, D. C., about the middle of December. There had been reports when the ambassador left Washington several months ago that he would not resume his post. The ambassador is going shortly to Manchuria to survey the situation there, and early in November he will return to Japan. He will go to the United States by way of Siberia.

FRANCE, BRITAIN PONDER GERMAN PLEA FOR ARMS

MacDonald and Herriot Have Private Talk.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 13.—For five hours today Premier Edouard Herriot of France, Prime Minister MacDonald, and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon had a heart to heart talk at 10 Downing street on the problems of the German deadlock on armaments.

There was an utter lack of formality about the conversations—there was not even a table in the room where the ministers exchanged views on Germany's claim to equality in armaments and on the wider aspects of the disarmament conference.

Brief Communique Issued.

Thus, no notes could be taken conveniently as to what passed between them. This evening the following communique was issued:

"The conversations continued in a very friendly spirit until 6:30 p. m. and will be resumed at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning."

It is understood that the progress of the conversations was satisfactory. There are reliable indications that the meeting will be followed by fulfillment of British proposals for a conference of the four powers—Britain, France, Germany, and Italy—over Germany's request, with the possibility that Switzerland will be the meeting place.

No definite decisions emerged from today's talk, however, the object of which was to exchange ideas rather than to reach formal decisions.

Considerable ground was covered by the heads of the two governments. According to French sources tonight it was suggested that the agreement between the ministers does not go much further than the two principles which had been enumerated with great force by Norman H. Davis, United States delegate to the disarmament conference—namely: no rearmament by Germany and no one-sided revision of international treaties.

Herriot Conciliatory.

It is understood that Herriot showed a conciliatory tendency toward Germany's claim for equality providing that France is given adequate pledges regarding her security. The French premier is anxious to gauge how far Britain is prepared to give guarantees over and above those in the covenant of the league of nations and the Locarno treaties.

MacDonald's chief concern was to secure Herriot's assent to holding the postponed four conference and tonight indications are that the British and French views on this point are reconciled, subject to a change of venue from London to either Geneva or more probably Lausanne.

A full statement on the problem will be issued tomorrow when the conversations end.

It was emphasized during today's discussions that when the four do meet in conference they will all be equally at liberty to discuss freely and entirely on their merits any proposals which may then be put forward from any quarter. No door will be closed.

Acts to Resume Parley.

GENERA, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Arthur Henderson of Great Britain, president of the world disarmament conference, decided today to convene the conference bureau Nov. 3 and to recommend resumption of the sessions of the general commission during the week of Nov. 21.

Learn of Marriage of Mrs. Lois Field Meeker

From Santa Fe, N. M., came word yesterday of the marriage in Albuquerque on Aug. 20 of Mrs. Lois Field Meeker of Santa Fe and Dr. Wallace E. Brown, former Fort Collins, Colo., veterinarian. Mrs. Brown is the former Mrs. Lawrence A. Meeker of Chicago and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Field of Santa Fe, formerly of Haverford, Pa., where the Feld-Meeker wedding took place on Nov. 9, 1915. Mr. Meeker is a son of Mrs. George Walker Meeker of 1411 State parkway. He was married to Miss Ruth Campbell on June 27, 1927, and they are residing in New York.

OUSTED RECTOR TELLS HOW HE ASSISTED GIRLS

But Appeal Is Dismissed; Argues Own Case.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The Rev. Harold F. Davidson, who was ousted as rector of Stiffkey growing out of charges that he had conducted himself immorally with young women, today lost his appeal before the judicial committee of the privy council. He appeared before the committee personally to argue against the findings of the diocesan consistory court.

THE REV. H. F. DAVIDSON. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

The grounds of the Rev. Mr. Davidson's appeal were: First, that the chancellor's judgment would prevent any clergyman from speaking to a strange woman or even sitting in a taxi with one of his lady parishioners; second, that the chancellor had erred in the law by permitting witnesses called by the prosecution to be cross-examined by counsel for the prosecution; and, third, that the chancellor had committed a legal error in considering and rendering judgment upon charges alleged to have occurred over five years before the date of service on the complainant.

The rector was appealing on points of law. His previous appeal, on points of fact, already has been dismissed by the judicial committee.

The rector today told the committee that on the second day of his trial two girls stopped him and asked him for a light while he was walking home late at night. The rector said that they told him that they had lost their jobs and that their landlady had turned them out because they were unable to pay their rent.

"Despite the fact that I was followed by detectives, I took them to my place and said, 'You can sit down for a couple of hours and have some tea while I write letters,'" the Rev. Mr. Davidson exclaimed.

"Before the kettle was boiling one of them had fallen asleep on the bed, and instead of stopping a couple of hours, they stayed until morning, when I gave them 75 cents so that they could buy breakfast. That's the sort of thing I have been doing since I was 18."

The rector again denied that he had been guilty of immorality. In dismissing the appeal the committee ruled that the chancellor had not committed any error in the law.

NEW YORK MAYOR OPENS FIGHT TO SAVE 85 MILLION

Public Budget Hearings Begin; McKee Cheered.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Joseph V. McKee, New York City's acting mayor, who has been blocked in almost every move for municipal economy, demanded today budget reductions totaling between 75 and 85 million dollars to save the city's credit.

The executive who succeeded Mayor Walker when the latter resigned under fire of the Seabury charges won the cheers of the taxpayers at the first public hearings on the tentative city budget. Mr. McKee, however, intimated that public cheers were about all that he expected to accomplish in his drive for municipal reforms.

The budget hearing was well attended. There were representatives of a score of civic organizations, who came to demand drastic cuts in the proposed $614,648,000 budget. There were Tammany proponents equally anxious to see that no major reductions were ordered. There were casual onlookers—and there was Mr. McKee, soon to be dethroned.

Offers Plan to Save 85 Million.

The acting mayor's plan, presented in the form of a resolution, held that the board of estimate members would be held responsible if the city found itself in future financial distress because of the failure to reduce expenditures. The threefold McKee plan to save about 85 million dollars follows:

1. By taking from the budget every dollar not absolutely necessary for the proper functioning of the municipality. He proposes a saving of 35 million dollars.

2. Through a modification and adjustment of salaries in the higher brackets a saving of $18,500,000 is proposed.

3. He proposed a modification of the present scheme of financing the construction of rapid transit lines through the issuance of short term securities, a saving of $31,750,000 being estimated.

Asks Slash in Salaries.

Mr. McKee, in his specific recommendations, asked for the reductions by the board of the salaries of the members of the board of estimate by 25 per cent, reduction of salaries of all department heads to $12,000 a year, and elimination wherever possible of the city's expensive automobile service.

The plan of the acting mayor, at the conclusion of the session, was referred to other members of the estimate board, the finance department and the board of transportation for study before it is submitted at the final meeting tomorrow.

The acting mayor held no false optimism that he will be able to accomplish his economy aims. This was indicated when Paul Blanshard of the civic affairs committee arose to voice his approval of the McKee proposals.

"We'd like to say three cheers for Mayor McKee," announced Mr. Blanshard.

"That's about all the mayor will get out of it," drily responded Mr. McKee.

Representatives of the civic committees had come to protest against the amount of the tentative cuts in the budget, the total amounting to only $16,717,000. After Mr. McKee's resolution had been offered they had their say. Their suggestions ran the scale of public opinion.

Mr. McKee voiced disappointment that the second of his proposals—the salary reductions for all grades above $2,000 a year—had previously been defeated. He also indicated that he was apprehensive that the Tammany controlled majority of the board would further block proposed salary cuts.

Two of Acting Mayor McKee's proposals already have been ordered so far as concerns the departments directly under the mayor's control. He has ordered all heads of these departments to reduce their salaries to $12,000 a year and he has ordered virtually all department automobiles put under control of the department of plants and structures. The surplus cars, under the McKee plan, will be sold.

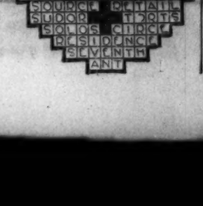
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



PRISON CAMP LEADER TELLS HIS OWN STORY

Denies Cruelty Caused Youth's Death.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 13.—(AP)—George W. Courson, who was in charge of Sunbeam prison camp, told a jury today that if Arthur Maillefert was tortured it was by his own defiant will to escape, and when he strangled in the sweat box he was his own executioner.

Mrs. Julia Maillefert of Westfield, N. J., mother of Arthur, wept as she listened to Courson. William Maillefert, Arthur's brother, left the courtroom as Courson lowered his 285 pounds into the witness chair and licked his lips preparatory to answering the first question. Maillefert was serving nine years for robbing a filling station.

Courson said he gave Maillefert fatherly advice, pleaded with him "to do better," asked him to stop causing trouble; later tried to restore life in the body taken from the sweatbox. Solomon Higginbotham, a former guard, now on trial with Courson on a charge of murder, also denied cruelty to Maillefert. The defense then rested.

Courson's Story of Taunts.

"On the morning of June 1," Courson said, "Road Foreman Denmark brought Maillefert to camp. Jersey (Maillefert) said: 'Captain, I done served my sentence. I don't intend to hit another lick.'

"I told him 'No, sir. Your time is not made. You were sentenced here for nine years, and my job is to see you do it.'"

"I've served my time," was the only response he could get to efforts to reason with the boy, Courson said.

"If you don't kill me you're yellow," he said Maillefert told him.

"I told him I must be yellow then," the former guard said, "because I was not going to kill him.

"I asked him if he was sick or anything and he said, 'Not a thing wrong.'"

Courson said he sent Maillefert back to the work party then. But Maillefert was brought back again in the afternoon. He said he told the prisoner, "I was going to have to put him in the sweat box," but said he called a physician to determine whether anything was wrong and the doctor "had seldom seen a better body on a man."

Youth in Sweat Box.

That night, Courson said, he heard Maillefert trying to cut his way out of the sweat box with a knife. He said all he did about that was to post a guard to prevent Maillefert from escaping.

"I'm going home," he said Maillefert told him next morning.

"No, you're not," Courson said he replied.

"Well, I'm going to hell then," Courson said Maillefert answered.

"I want you to be comfortable," Courson said he told the prisoner that morning after having him placed naked in a barrel held close to his shoulders and neck by boards and straps. He said he allowed the boy the freedom of the camp yard while wearing the barrel.

The afternoon of June 3, Courson related, Maillefert freed himself from the barrel and ran into the woods, but was captured.

His Version of Death.

Courson then said he had stocks made for the youth's feet. Maillefert was put in the sweat box with a chain around his neck, stocks holding his feet. Courson said he advised Maillefert at that time "to try to do better."

A little while later, Courson added, a prisoner came to tell him Maillefert had indicated by signs he planned to hang himself.

"I called Lige Simmons [another convict] and told him to open the box," Courson said, "and he hollered, 'Cap'n, he's gone done it.'"

"One time I thought we had brought him back," Courson said in telling of resuscitation efforts. "He got warm."

Courson admitted he had whipped Maillefert once, but said it was done to make him give up a saw with which he had cut his shackles. He said he did not strike hard.

Courson testified he delayed putting Maillefert in the sweat box as long as possible because he believed a sweat box was a "disgrace to any road camp."

CUBAN DOCTORS CLAIM DISCOVERY OF TYPHOID CURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Oct. 13. — Five Cuban physicians, who for months have been seeking a specific treatment and cure for typhoid fever, today announced the discovery of an anti-toxin serum which they claim will make the terror of typhoid a thing of the past.

The doctors announced that fifty-two patients, who had been injected with this serum, had recovered perfect health in an average of from two to ten days, according to how soon the treatment was started after the diagnosis had been made.

Hospital Used for Tests.

Las Animas hospital, which is controlled by the sanitation department, was the scene of the recent typhoid experiments. It is the same building where yellow fever was finally conquered by Maj. W. C. Gorgas of the U. S. army in 1901.

Two weeks ago Dr. Juan Roman, chief of the clinic treating typhoid cases, himself was attacked with the disease. He insisted that he be treated with the new serum. Forty-eight hours after the first injection his temperature dropped almost to normal and there was a decided improvement in his general condition.

The physicians said that usually three injections, two or three days apart, are sufficient to achieve complete recovery. In none of the fifty-two cases treated was there any instance of failure, the doctors claimed, nor did the patients receive any other treatment. The first favorable symptoms, it is declared, are a desire to sleep, marked rest and relief from nervous excitement, an approach to normal temperature, a lower pulse and general improvement.

Death Rate Is 65 Per Cent.

The importance of the discovery, it was pointed out, may be judged from the fact that 13,000,000 people throughout the world were attacked by typhoid in 1931, with a 65 per cent average death rate. About 100,000 of these 13,000,000 were in the United States.

The physicians, who announced the discovery of the serum, are Drs. Felix R. Guardiola, Abelardo Gonzalez, Manual Mendez, Francisco Leon, and Enrique Conde, all of Havana.

N. NIKOLAIDIS, 65, DIES; ONCE AGENT OF TURK SULTAN

Nicholas Nikolaidis, 65 years old, 133 South Halsted street, said to have been a confidential agent of Sultan Abdul Hamid while the latter reigned in Turkey, died yesterday in his room, supposedly of heart disease.

A. N. Collias, undertaker at 612 Blue Island avenue, who took charge of the body, said Nikolaidis was one of the important figures in Turkey 25 years ago, being much in the sultan's favor. He came to America in 1908, when the sultan's rule was terminated, and owned a Halsted street hotel for many years, retiring only two months ago.

Nikolaidis was said to be wealthy. He apparently had no relatives.

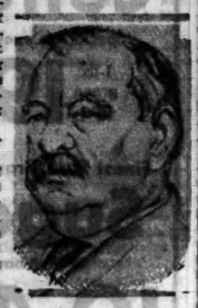
Allan Nevins Pens Biography of Cleveland

Praises Useful Record as President.

"Grover Cleveland," by Allan Nevins. [Dodd Mead & Co.]. Pub-

ALLAN NEVINS, the distinguished author of "Fremont, the West's Greatest Adventurer," and the general editor of the American Political Leaders series, has written a fine and disinterested appreciation of one of America's most sterling characters and an outstanding President.



GROVER CLEVELAND.

Grover Cleveland, President of the United States two different times, from 1885 to 1889 and from 1893 to 1897, was the son of a Presbyterian preacher. He was, by the death of his father, denied the advantages of a college education, but he became a clerk in a law office and was soon admitted to the bar. During the civil war he and his brothers drew lots to see which son would stay home to support the mother. Cleveland's care of his mother during these war years was to be later the grounds for intense vituperative abuse by political enemies.

Cleveland became Democratic candidate for district attorney, but was defeated. Later he was made sheriff and finally mayor of Buffalo. In this capacity he attracted a great deal of attention by his businesslike reorganization of city government and his honest and fearless application to the problems of maladministration and extravagance. Following his success as mayor came his appointment to the position of governor of New York. Here again, as in the mayor's office, he distinguished himself by his honesty and undeviating interest in public affairs. He encouraged the passage of a good civil service law.

In 1884 the Democratic party had been out of office for more than twenty years. The Republican party at this time was split and disorganized, made even weaker by the party of independents known as the Mugwumps. The advantage therefore was in favor of the Democratic party. On a platform of radical reform in administrative, civil service and financial departments Cleveland was nominated, without the support of Tammany. The Republicans nominated James Blaine and the campaign that followed, according to the author, was one of the most exciting and bitter in the history of American politics. As President of the United States, Grover Cleveland left a record both memorable and enviable. He was, according to the author, impeccably honest, constructive, stubborn, courageous without, however, the vision and foresight, the imagination and diplomacy that might have made him even greater.

This biography, besides being original and scholarly, is a comprehensive record of the age in which Cleveland lived. The problems of the day that were burning and significant issues to Cleveland and his contemporaries are analyzed with an extraordinary penetration into the workings of the American political machine. Finally the portrait of Cleveland, from birth to death, his personal as well as his political life, is presented fully and vividly.

New source materials that have not been available to earlier biographers of Cleveland were open to Allan Nevins. Among the original manuscripts consulted by this author are the manuscript diary of Wilson, the postmaster general under Cleveland, letters from Cleveland to his sister when he was a young law attorney in Buffalo and later just before his marriage in the White House, the correspondence that passed between Tammany Hall and Grover Cleveland and many of Cleveland's letters from all periods of his life to all sorts of people and on all topics, and finally a secret document concerning the Wilson tariff act of 1894.

These documents with the accompaniment of contemporary records from varied sources and later historical writings about the period are combined to furnish a picture of Cleveland and his age that is new and compelling.

Allan Nevins in his summary of Cleveland's character and his gift to the American people says, "What did he accomplish for his time? Perhaps few men think of him as a great constructive force in American affairs. Yet four striking achievements must always be associated by history with his name. He restored honesty and impartiality to government. He planted deep in the American mind the idea that special privilege and the interference with free economic life which the bloated protective system represented ought to be abolished. His invincible determination alone saved the nation from the abandonment of the gold standard. By his treatment of the Nicaraguan, Hawaiian, and Venezuelan problems he taught the American people that in their handling of foreign affairs conscience ought always to be the one dominant force."

An interesting and important biography is "Grover Cleveland," written in a readable and flowing style. No doubt many other biographies of Cleveland will be written, but it is difficult to conceive of one more definitive than Allan Nevins'.

Five of the Smartest French Gloves with Paris Chic to Their Finger Tips

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS, — [Special.] — One of the mightiest factors in the new fall fashions is the velvet glove. It has created a family of its own, and accordingly a thousand-and-one versions. New fall gloves have evidently been in the know, for they fit the fashion situation to a T.

In the sketch today are some of the gloves that have the new Paris chic to their finger tips. In the upper right hand corner is an eight button length suede slip-on glove that has two black velvet godets shirred on at either side. These godets are puffed out at the sides. In the center of the sketch at the left is an eight button length slip-on, from Chanel, slightly flared from wrist to top in ribbed corduroy velvet. At the right and below are the velvet gloves that created a sensation chez Lucile Paray. In six button length they flare slightly at one side. The back of the hand is entirely in one color, while the front is in another. Those shown in the sketch are black with white. Brown with beige is also seen, and another attractive combination is that of Bordeaux red, the season's pet color, with grège.

In the lower corner of the sketch is a black velvet wrist length glove that fastens on one pearl button. It is trimmed at the top with rick-rack braid; also in velvet. Lucile Paray showed this glove with her wool day frocks that were velvet trimmed.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Are you tired of your long fixture cords for sundry table and floor lamps? Once these cords made possible individual lighting and were in high esteem. Today they are looked upon as more of a nuisance than anything else. Convenient outlets have taken their place—and such a convenience they are. Extra outlets installed in every room where they are needed cost little, and there is no reason that their installation need affect your present decorations. An electrician will quote costs and give you suggestions.

Lutherans Reduce Annual Budget at Philadelphia Meeting

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 13.—(AP)—A reduction of $400,000 in the annual budget of the United Lutheran Church in America was approved today by delegates to the church's biennial convention, after prolonged and spirited opposition.

Acting on a recommendation of the executive board of the organization, the convention voted to reduce the yearly budget for the next three years from $2,400,000 to $2,000,000.

Criticizing the recommendation affecting next year's budget, the Rev. Dr. S. W. Herman, pastor of Zion church, Harrisburg, Pa., described it as a "decidedly backward step" to be taken at this time.

William H. Hager, lay delegate from Lancaster, Pa., said he felt the reduction should not be considered as "a retreat" but a "coming down to earth."

Prior to consideration of financial matters the convention reelected the Rev. Dr. Frederick K. Knubel of New York president of the United Lutheran Church in America for his eighth term. Dr. Knubel, who is 63 years old, has been president of the body since its organization in 1918.

Great Concert Opens Season of Symphony

Stock and Orchestra Win High Praise.

Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor; first concert of the forty-second season, Thursday, Oct. 13, at Orchestra hall.

THE PROGRAM:

Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Opus 21.....
..... Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
Symphony No. 5, E Minor, "From the New World," Opus 95.....Dvorak
Rondo, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," Opus 28.....Strauss
Bacchanale and Finale from Overture to "Tannhäuser".....Wagner

BY EDWARD MOORE.

THEY say that the disclosure will be a surprise to Mr. Stock; that he said nothing about it, perhaps thought nothing about it at the time. But a historian, looking through back files of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, discovered that Mr. Stock's first program after he was appointed conductor on April 14, 1905, contained the "Tannhäuser" Bacchanale; also that it was on the program when he first joined the orchestra as a viola player on Oct. 25, 1895, when the late Theodore Thomas was the conductor.

Not that Mr. Stock has not conducted it plenty of other times. In fact, the whole program classifies among the familiar and therefore popular music. One particular passage, however, remains as Mr. Stock's own, unique, unshared. When at the end of the Bacchanale the orchestra picks up the Finale, there is a bit of his own orchestration, simply constructed perhaps, but one of the cleverest things he ever did. It is one of the thousands of details which, added up into a total, make the Chicago Symphony orchestra one of the foremost musical organizations of the world.

It is always a great event when the orchestra starts a new season, and years of attendance upon such events have never dulled the emotion appertaining thereto. Last night was perhaps more poignant than ever. There seemed to be an air of sincere affection about Orchestra hall which made my unfailing admiration for a great conductor and a great orchestra less like a voice crying in the wilderness than it might have been on certain other occasions. Perhaps the music itself conquered. It should have. The radiant glamour of the Mendelssohn overture, the sunniness of the "New World" symphony, the comic drama of "Till Eulenspiegel," with Till poking his face out of the music after he was supposed to have been hanged, not to speak of the colors and pulsations of the "Tannhäuser" excerpts, made up a program to conquer any one.

As a matter of statistics, the orchestra, because of financial conditions, numbers ten less than last year, and there are several new members. Among them are Robert Quick and Charles Zika in the violins, F. Boos and Schull Lipschutz among the basses, Ralph Dye, who plays both flute and piccolo, and Lionel Sayers, dealing with the percussions. O. Wemhauer, bass; M. Wintrich, timpani, and W. Frank, horn, have been retired on pension since last season. A new seating arrangement puts the second violins on the left side of the stage behind the first violins, and brings the viola down to the first row on the right side, a change which last night seemed a decided improvement as a matter of balance.

With all its changes and new memberships, the Chicago Symphony orchestra remains a great organization, and those who go to Orchestra hall to hear the program repeated this afternoon will find it so.

Velvet Frock Is Not Practical as Office Wear

Antoinette Gives Tips to Business Gals.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There are few women on whom velvet is not flattering. I can't think at the moment just who these few women might be. But there is a consciousness in my mind of dislike of seeing velvet on certain women I have seen. Come to think of it, it isn't the velvet so much as the poor quality added to the inappropriateness of the time it is worn that fathered this prejudice.

Velvet is going to be worn much this year. A better quality of velvet is introduced into many of the new garments. There is still, however, that sleezy, spotty type of frock on the market that I bring up here because I see this worn by girls at business. Far be it from me to deny any girl who earns her own board and keep any of the pleasures that dress provides her.

After all, business women are permitted to look pretty ravishing these days. They can wear silks and satins and tweeds and sweaters and blouses and all kinds of pretty dudads to freshen up the trim last year's frock. But chiffons and velvets just do not seem to belong in the daytime wardrobe. They're not practical and they make the girl look not practical, and employers still demand efficiency from their employes, no matter how fair.

A wealthy, smart woman wouldn't dream of wearing a chiffon or velvet frock shopping, or to a committee meeting, or going to a salon appointment. The day calls for certain types of things, the afternoon and evening for others. At the smart luncheon tables you never see this misappropriation of evening or afternoon materials. Silk frocks, patterned or plain, tweeds, jerseys, and that type of thing are worn. They have the look of appropriateness that makes them smart.

And that's the thing in mind in introducing velvet and chiffon into this chat today. They can look so blowsy for daytime wear I don't like to see girls spoiling the otherwise good impression they would make.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

AN OLD CASE.

"This must have been interesting, professor," said Reynolds, looking up from Fordney's case book.

"Which one, sergeant?"

"The death of Lord Heatherwait. Feel like telling me about it?"

"Surely, son," settling himself in his easy chair. "As you see, I was in England at the time, visiting Capt. Bacon of Scotland Yard. Gail, Heatherwait's valet, phoned the Yard one night stating his master had committed suicide.

"We found the old gentleman, a bloody dagger clutched in his right hand, his pajamas and dressing gown soaked with blood, lying on the floor of the library. The gas jet in the fireplace was partially opened and Gail believed he intended turning the gas on himself and then decided the knife would be quicker. It was. Pierced his heart . . . he died instantly. By the way, the burners in the fireplace were warm.

"The valet claimed to have found the door to the room locked and, thinking something amiss, went out and around to the side and through the opened window, discovered the tragedy. The door was locked on the inside when we arrived.

"Heatherwait's threat to end his own life, if it ever became necessary to sell his estate, was well known. His property was heavily mortgaged."

"What position was the body in, professor?"

"Why—let me see—" he replied with a chuckle. "Lying on its left side and the left arm—O——"

"Now tell me who MURDERED the old fellow," interrupted Reynolds.

HOW DID REYNOLDS KNOW?

Hammond Library Chief Heads State Association

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—James A. Howard, Hammond library head, was elected president of the Indiana Library association here today. Miss Florence L. Jones, in charge of reference work in the Indianapolis library, was elected vice president. Howard announced plans for an all day conference in Indianapolis within two months of new officers, members of the legislative committee and outstanding librarians of the state, at which time a definite plan will be adopted for obtaining "a square deal" in the January session of the state legislature. Howard also wishes to determine whether if the library boards should be abolished as threatened, it is the general desire that libraries be governed by the school city or the civil city.

Tufted Satin Handbags Are a Sensation

Go with Black Afternoon Costumes.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

JUST when the prowling shopper decides there simply can't be any bigger or better bags to tuck under her arm, along comes a new collection of knockout models that are so tantalizingly desirable that the aforementioned shopper is in a state of jitters until one or more of these clever new ideas belong exclusively to her.

Bag makers must have been working overtime thinking about new combinations, new colors, new decorative devices that conceal clasps and frames, and clever new creations for afternoon bags—for instance, the quilted bags, quite the most ingenious inspirations any fashion wise designer could send out for capricious female approval this season.

These tufted or quilted models are made of satin; they look just like the soft, downy quilted comforts that you snuggle your chin under of a cold winter night. You wear them with your dull black afternoon costumes, and some of the more pretentious designs could easily go out of night with your pet evening ensembles of velvet. Glittering marcasite clasps provide the swanky contrast, and these gleaming lovely clasps do grand things for pin calfskin, silky black antelope, as well as the satin and silk models.

Brown, that very rich, deep brown, is used for some of the smartest street hangbags you have ever seen. And, just to be different, some enterprising and imaginative designer made a lot of new shapes and sizes and then accented all this brown glory with sparkling clasps of marcasite, and the result is breath taking. Some of them are tremendously fetching as the correct handbag for the popular gray costumes that are taking the shops by storm.

Linings or the fittings of the newest bags have been treated royally this year. Extras, the coin purses, a flashing expanse of mirror, and the clever divided sections for all the excess accessories which all shoppers carry around with them as indispensables, have been edged or piped with the narrowest line of either silver or gold—and most of the attached makeup mirrors are designed with a portion of the glass cut out, thus assuring the absence of the usual finger-print clew—a small but very important improvement greatly appreciated by the fastidious bag collector.

Chromium glitters on a lot of good looking handbags for daytime wear. One pouchbag with an unusual capacity is brilliant with balls and handle of this bright stuff that always stays bright. Copper is running around some very unusual wine red and tobacco brown bags, and there are some forest green suedes and fabrics that are finds indeed, liberally decorated with motifs, clasps, balls, squares, circles, and oblongs of copper.

The gal who carries "important papers" and a flock of notes and a pencil or two, and needs capacity as well as fashionable smartness in a handbag, will cheer gratefully for some outsized felt creations that are super-pluperfect models. You can buy them in wine red, green, brown, and black. They are big, swagger affairs that are perfect with severely tailored street clothes, or not so tailored things. They are fitted with the inevitable zipper; the note pad and pencil and a compartment for the usual supply of cigarets are situated by themselves, immediately under the outside flap. All this is yours for a ridiculously low price mark, a sum that will leave you almost stunned with its modesty and restraint.

Invitations Issued for Hooker-Rockefeller Rites

New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Invitations to the marriage of Miss Blanchette Hooker and John D. Rockefeller III, were sent out today by Miss Hooker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elon Huntington Hooker of Greenwich, Conn. The wedding will be held at the Riverside church, late in the afternoon of Nov. 11. The engagement of the couple was announced in August of this year.

Engagement of Miss Marion McFadden Told

To Be Bride of J. P. Hume Next Spring.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. PARMALEE J. M'FADDEN of 219 Lake Shore drive announces the engagement of her daughter, Marion, to James P. Hume of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Hume of Washington, D. C. The wedding is planned for next spring.

Miss McFadden went to Miss Porter's at Farmington and made her debut at a dinner dance on Jan. 6, 1926, at the Palmer house, one of the first large social affairs given in the new hotel which was opened in December of that winter.

Miss McFadden is the youngest of Mrs. McFadden's three attractive daughters, the other two being Frances, who for two years has been managing editor of Vogue, and Eleanore, the eldest, who, with her husband, Edward P. Lay, lives on a farm in Westchester county, New York, about half way between Kisco and Greenwich. Mr. Hume, who is a lawyer, and his brother, Charles, who is with one of the banks, live at 185 East Chestnut street.

Mrs. McFadden was Marion Poole and is a sister of Mrs. Leverett Thompson, Mrs. A. Rosecrans Baldwin, and Ralph H. Poole, of Chicago; and of Ernest Poole, the novelist, and Abram Poole, the painter, both of New York.

Society Attends Symphony Concert.

Familiar faces at the Chicago Symphony's opening concert last night at Orchestra hall gave evidence to the fact that society is assembling in town again after summer holidays and that that loosely termed period, "the winter season," is really getting under way. In the box tier, which was filled except for a few boxes whose owners are still vacationing, and on the main floor were scores of fashionable music lovers who have been patrons of the concerts for many years.

Formal dress, of a type less elaborate than the costumes we used to see at the opera, was worn by most of the women. Miss Marion McFadden, who was accompanied by her fiancé, James P. Hume, wore a stunning black chiffon gown with a trailing orange scarf and a cloth of gold wrap studded in orange.

Mrs. Waller Borden, one of the most consistent of the concert-goers, wore black lace and chiffon under a black velvet wrap. With her in her box were son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Pirie and Mr. and Mrs. E. Harris Brewer. Mrs. Pirie wore a high waisted white crêpe dress and an abbreviated jacket with bands of fox on the short sleeves and Mrs. Brewer wore a graceful gown of chiffon patterned in soft shades of blue and gray with a floating shoulder cape of the same material.

Many Others Have Guests.

Mrs. Fowler McCormick, who was hostess in Harold F. McCormick's box, wore a dinner dress of black lace with a V neckline and elbow length sleeves. With her were her little son, Guy Stillman, and Dr. Earl Carlson. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Bissell's box guests

AFTER 5 O'CLOCK

By Elizabeth Corbett

One Man? Gay Hours? Lonely Freedom? Eleanor Adams, successful young executive in her own business, faces these questions after five o'clock when her day's work is done. And her final solution is unusual for a woman of practical affairs. "Eleanor herself," says the New York Times, "is a delightful person, who quickly enlists one's sympathy in her difficulties." What are you doing after five o'clock? How about a date with this novel

Do you know the young Mrs. Meigs, a "grand old girl" of eighty who refuses to be put on the shelf? "As an old lady she is quite unmanageable; as a personality she is delightful," says the New York Herald Tribune. This novel is in its ninth printing and has been on best-seller lists for a year. ANNUAL TRIBUNE COOKING SCHOOL FEW DAYS AWAY

Interest Is Even Greater Than That of Last Year.

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

With women all over Chicago thinking increasingly in terms of pies and puddings, salads and soufflés, as the second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE School of Cookery, opening its doors Oct. 25, looms up a little over a week away, big culinary discussions reach our ears.

June brides of last spring's vintage, mothers who were belles in the gay and naughty nineties, and grandmothers who rolled out multitudes of pies and pulled miles of taffy in the days of covered wagons and land grabs, are each claiming the blue ribbon for the gastronomic delights conjured up in their day. In fact, the way it looks now, it will have to be Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood herself, nationally known foods authority and conductor in cooperation with Mary Meade, cooking editor of THE TRIBUNE, of this year's cooking school, who will have to decide the merits of the case.

For instance, enter the chummy apartment of little Miss Newly Betrothed, and watch her point with pride to gleaming waffle irons, the gayest and lightest of pots and pans, her own crisp fly-away kitchen frocks and aprons, and, most convincing of all, a soul stirring pie, a batch of feathery biscuits and a mysterious ice box creation ready to delight the eye and gladden the tummy of the lord of the house when he barges in, demanding to know when he eats—and what?

Once Full Time Job.

Then there's the other side. For what, the ex-belles of the nineties demand, of the days when a summer's efforts meant hundreds of cans of fruit, battalions of jam glasses and a whole cellarful of pickle crocks? When pies were baked by the dozens in great brick ovens, carrots, turnips and apples came in by the barrelsful to cool their heels in the basement for the winter season? When families were big, pocketbooks slim and housewives thrifty? Those were the days, they maintain stoutly, when cooking was truly an art and made no claims to being a science; when families could eat their fill and lay plumpness to heredity, and when women took up housekeeping as a full time career.

Whereupon grandmother should put in her two cents' worth. But oddly enough, it's often the grandmothers who turn modern first and come to back up their kitchenette-minded granddaughers. My little silvery haired hostess of yesterday, for instance. Here was her reply to the queries of this questing reporter:

"Cooking in the good old days? My dear, there weren't any good old days—not in the kitchen. Just plenty of hard work and lots of 'overtime.' Why, look at the clothes we wore! High, stuffy collars, yards of skirts and petticoats with rods of dust ruffles, absurd leg-o'-mutton sleeves that had to be unbuttoned and tucked up when we worked—even aprons that meant hours of ruffling, cross-stitching and tucking.

Utensils? No Comparison.

"Utensils? Heavy black iron, most all of them. So heavy to handle, hard to clean and uninspiring to work with. No turning on of switches for us. There was always the fire to lay in the cook stove, and unregulated ovens sent many sadly burned dishes out of the kitchen through the back door.

"Foods cost about the same then as now, but big husky families were the style and big families meant heavy work besides all the cooking. And the time we used to spend on fussy cooking tricks! We should have been spanked. Why, I've even seen my mother put on four different upper crusts on a pie and whip them off again because she couldn't get just that right curly shell edge to the rim.

"Recipes, too," my hostess reminisced. "One had to be a magician or else learn by hundreds of failures just what was meant by 'butter the size of an egg,' 'flour to make just right' and 'enough egg to raise.'

"And, you know," she concluded, "it's fine recipes, short-cut methods, first rate equipment and good schools all over the country that are making fine cooks out of young girls today and teaching them what it took us years and lots of expense to learn for ourselves."

So there you have it. But whatever we may think in our secret souls about the respective merits of the warmly smiling pie we just took out of the oven and the ones which used to sit all too temptingly on the porch shelf out at grandma's, we'll grant that there is always room for improvement and plenty of space in our files for new methods, up to the minute tips on entertainment and the last cry in recipes, and it is these attractions offered by Mrs. Chitwood, together with a unique program of entertainment sponsored by Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, and the presentation of valuable household equipment prizes that promises to make this year's TRIBUNE school of cookery an even greater success than that enjoyed by Chicago women in 1931.

The first four sessions of the school will be held on the four consecutive afternoons starting Tuesday, Oct. 25, at the Trianon ballroom, 6201 Cottage Grove avenue. On four consecutive afternoons, starting Tuesday, Nov. 1, sessions will be held in Guyon's Paradise ballroom at 4000 Washington boulevard. The Aragon ballroom, at 1100 Lawrence avenue, will be the scene of the four final meetings, held consecutively beginning Tuesday, Nov. 8.

CLYDE M'COY.

Stars of the stage and radio will appear during the entertainment periods of The Tribune School of Cookery which opens Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 25, at the Trianon ballroom. Among them are Wendell Hall, the Red Headed Music Maker; Clyde McCoy, director of the Drake hotel orchestra, heard over W-G-N, and Evelyn Rasmussen, petite dancer from the Ideal Dancing Studios. Two other ballrooms will be used for the school, the Aragon and Guyon's Paradise.

OYSTER STEW.

1 slice onion
2 stalks celery
2 sprigs parsley
Bit of bay leaf
4 tbsp. finely ground crackers
1 pint oysters
3 tbsp. butter
Salt
Dash paprika

Scald the milk with the onion, celery, parsley, and bay leaf and add the crackers. Heat the cleaned oysters in their own liquid until the edges curl. Combine with milk and season with butter, salt, and paprika. Serve immediately. Yield: Five servings.

Introducing Australian Trombone, New Vegetable

A Vista, Cal., rancher proposes to introduce a new vegetable to Americans. Through an importation of seeds from Australia he has started growing the Australian trombone or gramma, shaped like a crooked handled gourd. The rind is thin, the meat is solid and looks like cheese and the cooking process is similar to that for squash or pumpkin. Some of the grammas weigh 20 to 30 pounds. The vegetable is stewed, baked or used in pies.

Pickle Shortage in 1933 Is Forecast by Packers

Pickles may be scarce before the 1933 crop is harvested and processed, according to a report of the national pickle packers which shows that the million bushels of pickles grown for commercial packing this year is 80 per cent less than the 1931 yield. Prices may increase, the manufacturers indicate, although they report that there is a four million bushel reserve awaiting a market. In 1930 growers delivered 7,656,000 bushels to pickle factories.

Veal, Pork Chops, Steak at Lower Prices Now

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states: "Shoulder of veal for roasting, pork chops, and round steak are recommended as economical meat buys in Chicago retail meat stores over the coming week-end."

COOKIES FIND FAVORED PLACE IN LUNCH BOX

Young School Goers Like Crisp Variations.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Whee—mother's makin' cookies!" Name me the time when such a discovery, staged by a young tousle headed Sherlock who has followed his nose to the source of all things spicy and good, does not bring the family running and—mysteriously—the neighbor children dropping in. For cookies are—always have been—universal favorites. And these fall days, with lawn and fireside parties for grown-ups and growing-ups, every week occurrences, and with that daily question mark, the school lunch, yawning for a final touch of crusty, crunchy sweetness, the mother-cook with a wide and tempting assortment of cooky inspirations up her sleeve and all kinds of recipes in her kitchen cooky files, is one to be eyed with envy.

Good for School.

Cookies made of good, chewy oatmeal or bran, and cookies given extra food and health value by the addition of fruits, finely chopped nuts, and molasses are good school goers. Much better, in fact, than cakes and puddings in some ways, for exciting playground games sometimes demand that the final course be eaten on the run and, whether served at home or at school, cookies make topnotch running companions. For no matter what the game or the hurry, cookies are too crunchy and crisp for many crumbs to slip down without chewing.

But to get down to cups and spoonfuls. Oftener than not the cleverest cooky makers own but a few basic recipes—and have all the gay variations and odd quirks packed away on a special cooky shelf in their brains. For instance, what can you do with that simplest and best sugar cooky recipe of yours? First, there are numerous odd shaped cutters to start the variations on the way. "Gingerbread men" don't have to be of ginger bread, you know, and the whole of Noah's animal family may be purchased in cutters for a song.

Or the variation may come through tricky additions to the batter itself. Finely rolled peanut brittle—one-half cup to a standard recipe—may be stirred in at the last and will make an unusually delicious, nutritious cooky. All kinds of nuts, chopped preserved melon rinds, minced candied fruits, and shredded cocoanut give intriguing flavors and mysterious textures.

Ties Up with Lessons.

One interesting mother I know, as far as is possible, ties in the types of food she sends each week with the countries her little girl is that week learning about in her geography lessons. Small Betty, enjoying the game, explains each week's foreign specials to her friends and it works into quite an educational feature before the school year is over. Cookies make excellent opportunities for going foreign. Norwegian berlinerkrandsers, Scotch lace cakes, and Greek tcheureks are just a few of the many possibilities.

Now for a special favorite of my cooky jar:

WALNUT FLORENTINES.

1½ cups sugar
¾ cup butter
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla or almond extract
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup medium brown sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 egg whites
1 cup finely chopped walnut meats

Cream the sugar and butter together, then beat in the eggs and one teaspoon of flavoring. Sift the flour before measuring, then sift again with the baking powder and salt. Stir the flour into the first mixture, beating until smooth. Turn the mixture into several large shallow greased dripping pans and spread to one-quarter inch thickness. Sprinkle with the chopped nuts. Now whip the egg whites until stiff but not dry, and gradually beat in the brown sugar and the one-half teaspoon vanilla. Continue beating until the mixture is quite heavy, then with a spatula or a rubber plate scraper spread it over the surface of the cooky mixture. Place the pans in a moderately slow oven (330 degrees F.) for half an hour or until well baked. Cool, then cut in two inch squares or in narrow three inch bars. Store between layers of waxed paper.

Canning Season Isn't Over for Economical Housewives

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

The canning season is not yet over for housewives who realize that preserving surplus foods is an economy. Cabbage, carrots, and beets, turnips and rutabagas, grapes, pears and onions are the best illustrations of market bargains this week.

Grapes have just gotten to their marketing peak in Chicago. For the last week Chicagoans daily have been buying nearly five million pounds of grapes for juice or preserves. California grapes are selling for approximately the same as a year ago, retail, but Michigan's crop is retailing for 25 to 30 per cent below 1931.

Cabbage from Wisconsin.

If cooking or squeezing grapes is a job already done, then possibly the cabbage trucked in from Wisconsin will interest housewives as a source of kraut material at about a cent a pound.

Peaches have practically passed out of the picture, but pears and plums and Hyslop crabs still offer variety for the table or for the shelves. A few raspberries, California and Colorado melons and bog harvested cranberries also offer tempting menu changes.

Horseradish Roots Are In.

One indication that fall is here is found in the bunches of dry horseradish roots hanging in grocery stores. The bundles usually contain about five pounds and are worth about ten cents a pound retail. Ground up and thinned with vinegar the horseradish adds zest to meats and other cooked foods.

Potatoes are so low in price that one can purchase a peck of the best northern cobblers for 15 to 18 cents, while the more elite baking types are not more than 30 cents a peck. Turnips and rutabagas have not been purchased in any great quantity in Chicago stores as yet since they are known as a cold weather commodity. Turnips can be found at two bunches for five cents.

PUMPKIN PIE.

1 tsp. each ginger and cinnamon
¼ cup boiling water
1¼ cups strained pumpkin
⅞ cup brown sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
½ tsp. salt
1 cup milk, scalded
2½ tbsp. orange juice

Mix the spices and boiling water. Add this with sugar, eggs, and salt to the pumpkin. Stir to blend thoroughly, then add the hot milk and orange juice. Cook the mixture over hot water until thoroughly heated [about 5 minutes]. Pour into an unpricked pastry shell. Bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] 15 minutes, after which reduce to slow oven [300 degrees F.]. About 50 minutes are required for baking.

BEAN AND CORN PACK SMALLER; TOMATOES GAIN

Decreases in string beans and sweet corn, and increases in tomatoes and cabbage for kraut being stored in canned or manufactured state, from 1932 crops, are shown by surveys of the canning and manufactured foods industry. In sweet corn the reduction from 1931 is reported to be about 55 per cent and about 45 per cent lower than normal.

The tomato crop used for canning or in commercial preserves in the United States is estimated at 25 per cent greater than in 1931. The total of 1,227,400 tons is 5 per cent less than the five year average preceding 1931. An increase in kraut packing in New York state is largely responsible for the heavier manufacture as compared to 1931.

'SWEET' APPLE CIDER SHOULD BE SOUR TO BE GOOD!

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Strange as it may seem, "sweet" apple cider should be sour, too, if it is to be good, according to Dr. W. A. Ruth, chief in pomological physiology at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Apple cider, like pumpkin pie, is such an essential part of the fall season in this climate that the lovers of this beverage deserve the best product possible, he believes.

There's a reason why good apple cider must be both sweet and sour, Dr. Ruth explained. If its sugar content is high while its acid content is low, it is insipid. On the other hand, if its sugar content is low while its acid content is high, it is too sour.

"Good cider also should have body; that is, it should not be thin. It should have the characteristic apple aroma. It should have a slight astringency, which produces its 'bite.'

"The proper combination of ingredients usually can be obtained only by blending varieties. Sweet varieties with a high aroma, like Grimes and Delicious, can be mixed with sour varieties. Astringency can be added by mixing in a very small proportion of crab apples or market-ripe apples of varieties high in tannin at that stage.

"Cider with good body and aroma can be made only from fully-ripened fall or winter apples. Apples picked for market or stored are usually too green and should be ripened under conditions which will insure ventilation of the fruit in a warm room."

were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell and Mrs. Richardson Dunham. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, the latter in black lace under a chinchilla wrap, occupied their main floor seats close to the stage in the center aisle. Not far from them were Alfred H. Granger, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Henry Little, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, and Mr. and Mrs. William Spencer.

Among others in the boxes were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke, Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence Houghteling, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Dempster, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine Jr., Miss Helen Gurley and Dr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson.

Art Institute Reception.

Cards are out for the annual reception of the Art institute on Thursday, Oct. 27, from 3 to 5:30 o'clock, always one of the notable social affairs of each season. On the cards is a list of the clubs and societies that will receive at the reception, with the galleries in which they will be designated.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson and Mrs. C. Phillip Miller will represent the Antiquarian society and Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster and Mrs. Herbert H. Bradley from the Fortnightly will receive and serve tea in gallery 25; Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Miss Eleanor Holden and Miss Anna Lynch from the Arts club, Mrs. F. Stanley Rickcords, Mrs. John P. Wilson and Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon from the Contemporary club, and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster from the Friday club will receive in gallery 48; members of the Renaissance club and the Association of Arts and Industries will have a tea table in gallery 30; in gallery 52 Mrs. William E. Wright, Mrs. Paul Shorey, and Mrs. Townsend McKeever will receive for the Chicago Drama league; members representing the Tuesday Art and Travel club, the Arché club and the Musicians' Club of Women will preside in gallery 27, and committees from the Chicago Woman's club, the Municipal Art league, the Chicago Woman's aid and the Art Institute Alumni association will receive in gallery 45.

Change Date for Cradle Ball.

The committee in charge of the tenth annual Cradle ball has changed the date from the 29th of this month to Monday, Nov. 7. The Olivet institute benefit is scheduled for the same night, but the two affairs will not conflict, for those who want to attend both can go first to the Olivet one—the opening of "When Chicago Was Young"—and then go on to the Cradle ball at the Drake hotel for supper after the performance.

Mrs. Howard Fenton is general chairman of the committee and among her co-workers are Mrs. William L. Hodgkins and Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy from the Chicago Cradle auxiliary, Mrs. Henry Dawes of Evanston, Mrs. Frederick H. Scott, and Mrs. Buckingham Chandler of Winnetka and Mrs. Robert E. Wood of Highland Park.

Society — Republicans, Democrats, and Socialists (yes, there are quite a few of the last named in society)—will learn about the National Economy league tonight at a meeting at which Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, chairman of the league, will talk, starting at 8 o'clock in the Drake hotel ballroom.

Preceding the meeting Mrs. Waller Borden is entertaining about thirty at dinner at the hotel for Admiral Byrd. Some of the others who will have dinner guests at the hotel, later attending the meeting, are Mrs. William A. Nitze, Mrs. Alexander F. Stevenson, and Mrs. Robert Peacock.

The tea that the Service club is giving on Monday is to be held at Miss Letitia Channon's residence, 222 East Chestnut street, instead of at Mrs. Stanley Zaring's, 1250 Lake Shore drive, on account of Mrs. Zaring's illness.

A gay and informal cocktail party that was a welcome home to his wife was given Wednesday by Aldis J. Browne of 70 Cedar street. Mrs. Browne and their young daughter, "Chou Chou," who probably will be called Elizabeth by her teacher and classmates now that she has entered the first grade at the Francis Parker school but who always has been "Chou Chou" to her family and friends, had just arrived at home that day from having spent the summer at Osterville, Mass. Aldis Jr. is a sophomore at Yale this year and Secor, the other son of the family, is at the Middlesex school at Concord.

Miss Edith Cummings returned yesterday from a summer abroad to the Lake Forest estate of her mother, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings. She has been away since the early part of July and was a member of the James Simpsons' house party in Scotland during the hunting season before going to France for several weeks. Mrs. Cummings intends to keep her Lake Forest house open for several weeks before coming in to her apartment at 1550 State parkway.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair also returned to Lake Forest yesterday from their summer travels in Europe and are to occupy the Lake Forest residence of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow Jr. for about six weeks.

Mrs. John L. Dole and young Peter Dole and Mrs. Dole's sister, Miss Jane Dunham, are leaving today to motor to Warm Springs, Ga., where Mrs. Dole has taken Lee Pattison's house for the winter. Little Johnny Dole, who is greatly improved in health, will go down on the train with his nurse to join his mother and older brother.

Mr. Dole and Mrs. Dole's mother, Mrs. Wirt S. Dunham, who plans to stay at her Wayne estate all winter, will go to Warm Springs for Christmas. Miss Dunham is going to New York for a visit later in the season.

Interesting Items About Travel.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Taylor are returning today to their apartment at the Ambassador East from having spent the summer at their residence at Nantucket.

Mrs. James R. Montgomery of 229 Lake Shore drive has gone to Mobile, Ala., for a fortnight's visit with Mrs. Charles C. Dawes.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Zabriskie of Aurora, N. Y., are at the Drake hotel for a week, seeing old friend of Mrs. Zabriskie's, who is the former Hazel Everingham of Chicago.

Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers Jr. is in Paris after having spent the summer at St. Jean de Luz and plans to live there this winter. Her older daughter, Corina, has entered Miss Freville's school at St. Jean de Luz, and the younger one, Adela, will remain with her mother. Mrs. Rogers may come to Chicago for a fortnight's stay after she has gotten her new apartment settled in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bischof are spending the last few days of their honeymoon with John B. Ryerson at Cooperstown, N. Y., after having been in New York City and the Virginia Hot Springs since their marriage on Sept. 22. Upon their return early next week they will be at home at 73 East Elm street. Mr. Ryerson came to Chicago for their marriage which took place in Lake Forest where Mrs. Bischof's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Harrington, had a house for the summer.

Ayer Family Returning.

Walter Ayer has returned to the Ayer apartment at 232 East Walton place and Mrs. Ayer will arrive tomorrow from their summer estate at Bar Harbor. Their daughter, Miss Janet Ayer, is not expected to arrive until Monday. Their son, Robert McCormick Ayer, is away on a cruise around the world.

A betrothal of interest here as well as in New Orleans, where it was announced last Sunday, is that of Miss Rosa Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bird Freeman of New Orleans, to Lieut. Charles Keller Jr., corps of engineers, U. S. army, son of Gen. Charles Keller, corps of engineers, U. S. army, retired, and Mrs. Keller of Winnetka. Miss Freeman made her debut in New Orleans last year, having graduated from Hollins college in Virginia the year before. Lieut. Keller, who is living in Brookline, Mass., now, was graduated with honors from West Point in 1930, the same year that his father's class held its fortieth reunion there. The wedding is to take place in December.

Mrs. William O. Green, Mrs. Langdon Pearse, Mrs. Hermon B. Butler, Mrs. Godfrey Atkin, Mrs. Ballard Bradley and Miss Dorothy Stirling are among the women interested in a lecture to be given tonight at 8 o'clock at the Winnetka Masonic temple by Norman McClintock, eminent naturalist. The lecture, which will be illustrated with moving pictures, is sponsored by the Winnetka Garden club.

Hoovers Hold Reception for Supreme Court

President Shakes Hands of Thousands.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—President Hoover stood in the blue room of the White House tonight and shook so many hundred hands his own grew limp and large with the pressure.

Something like 4,000 invitations had been issued for this, the judiciary reception, and something like 4,000 lawyers and their wives must have accepted, judging from the jam that thronged the executive mansion for the largest party yet given during the Hoover régime.

The members of the Supreme court, those scholarly gentlemen who are reputed to be bored by society, were the guests of honor and the eight who came early and stayed late seemed to be having a right good time. The ninth, Justice Brandies, whose health forbids him from much going about at night, was absent.

Chief Justice Hughes led the line past Mr. and Mrs. Hoover. Evening found him still smiling with satisfaction over the morning ceremony when he presided at the laying of the corner stone of the new Supreme court building. After him came seven associates, all, of course, in formal evening dress, instead of their austere robes of rustling silk, in which they do their work.

After them came Guy H. Thompson, president of the American Bar association, whose 55th annual convention now in session here is the reason this particular reception was stepped up from its secondary customary place in the center of the midwinter social program. Then came Lord Reading, England's distinguished guest at the convention, and M. Paul Reynaud, France's celebrity.

And then came lawyers, barristers, attorneys, judges, and law clerks in one never ending procession. And their ladies.

But the fashion reporters had little to write about tonight.

"Every time I recognize a face," one lamented, "I recognize the gown, too. Nobody has new clothes."

Mrs. Hoover was in a last year's model, a gown that looks gray but which the experts name gunmetal with sequins. The wives of the cabinet members had the "pink satin with fur," the "pale blue satin with a train," etc., that were news last year. Mrs. Chapin, wife of the new secretary of commerce, wore a white satin gown that was new to Washington—for she is new to Washington.

Clothes, however, preoccupied the conversation. More than one lovely lady gurgled to Chief Justice Hughes, "And are those gowns you men wore at the corner stone ceremony this morning really warm? They looked so cold."

The chief justice gave assurance that he was okay.

The silken skull caps which the solemn justices perched on their heads this morning as a gesture of protection against the cold winds [well, one can't wear a silk hat with an academic gown] came in for kidding. You can tell what a gay sort of party it was when I say that people dared to kid United States justices.

"I'll never come to court to hear you talk," a lady wagged a playful finger at Justice McReynolds, the bachelor justice, "if you ever wear that nasty little hat again."

"Madame," Justice McReynolds winked as he handed down the decision, "that wasn't a nasty little hat; that was a beret."

And in that merry mood the men who will sit in dignity tomorrow on the highest tribunal in this country wandered about.

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

The light topped bodice on this dress will certainly please the young girl for whom it is made. Red linen with plain white linen, plain pale blue piqué with a blue and white dotted piqué, and green and white challis print with plain white are effective combinations.

The pattern, No. 2702, comes in sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 10 requires 2¼ yards of 35 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Events on the Stage

R. H. Burnside, the stage director who produced many spectacles in the New York Hippodrome, will spend the winter preparing an elaborate entertainment for the period of Chicago's Century of Progress. This will be his first work of the kind since his historical pageant "Freedom," arranged for the Philadelphia sesquicentennial exposition six years ago.

Mr. Burnside states in his announcement:

"This production will be an enlarged edition of the biggest show ever given at the New York Hippodrome, although different in plan and style. The program will include not only vaudeville and circus specialties, but also a series of spectacles and tableaux depicting the western migration of the pioneers who crossed the country to open up the west. American actors will be given preference, but many foreign novelties will be imported. The entertainment is scheduled for a run at a downtown theater in Chicago starting next June. I have already issued a call to scene builders, stage mechanics, chorus drill masters, stage director and theatrical technicians for a meeting in New York at which my plan will be outlined."

Mr. Burnside has been in Chicago making preliminary arrangements and recently returned to New York. On Nov. 14 he will launch a play by Ian Hay, called "Lucky in Love," on a Broadway engagement. After its première he will begin intensive work on his show for Chicago.

The fifteenth annual ball of the Theatrical Mutual association will be held in the Merry Garden, Sheffield and Belmont avenues, next Monday night. The proceeds will be used in the organization's sick fund which is available to ailing or needy theatrical workers whether members of the association or not. C. C.

Our Country Is Interested in Our Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Yesterday in quoting Dr. George Hastings' address made before the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs in Seattle, Wash., we had not space for all the pithy statements he made, drawing the community into the care of our country's children.

Among other things he said: "No one can take the place of parents, nor anything supplant the home, but parents alone and single handed cannot guard the public health, or the water supply, or the milk supply upon which the health of their own children depends.

"Kindergartens, schools, recreation, playgrounds, sanitation, and safety measures have become community responsibilities. Parental responsibility must move into the field of community responsibility. My child has become our child." There's a thought to widen our horizons.

And here's another: "It has been said that man's problem today is not adjustment to nature, but to man. Man has measurably conquered the elements, distance, isolation, the wilderness. He must now build more effective human relationships. This is at the heart of our politics, education, statesmanship, and modern community living." And then he goes on to give figures:

"A committee of the White House conference reported that there are approximately 45,000,000 children in the country. Of these, they found several millions with a variety of handicaps and special needs.

"A pessimistic writer in the Scientific Monthly, thereupon, indicts current civilization's handling of children and challenges us on what the modern age has done for childhood.

"What this critic overlooks is that 35,000,000, or seven-ninths of all the children were found to be sound and reasonably normal, and that 1,500,000 are specially gifted. While some millions are handicapped mentally and physically, many of the handicaps such as sickness and improper feeding are remedial. American children, normal and handicapped, present a whole series of challenges to us."

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Norman of 7100 South Shore drive announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Vivian, to Eugene Wilson Macoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Hartwell Macoy of 6746 Jeffery avenue. The marriage took place on Sept. 24 at the University Disciples of Christ church. Mr. and Mrs. Macoy will reside at 6751 Jeffery avenue.

A World's Record

MORE than three thousand births without a single loss of either mother or child! That is the official Piatt County record of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, in fifty years' family practise in Illinois.

No wonder mothers have such entire confidence in giving little ones Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin!

If you have a baby, you have constant need of this wonderful preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs. A child who gets this gentle stimulant for the stomach, liver and bowels is always healthier. It keeps children's delicate systems from clogging. It will overcome the most stubborn condition of constipation. It builds them up, and is nothing like the strong cathartics that sap their strength and energy.

A coated tongue or bad breath is the signal for a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Children take it readily, for it is really delicious in flavor. Taste it! Take Syrup Pepsin yourself, when sluggish or bilious, or you are troubled with sick headaches and no appetite. Take some for several days when run-down, and see how it picks you up.

It is a prescription preparation which every drug store has ready; in big bottles, just ask anywhere for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister, Rachel, are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London, asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Caroline's body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. Neil realizes that Natasha will be under suspicion. She refuses to account for all her time in London. Neil goes to London and checks up on Natasha's movements there.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

A NEW WILL.

Tilbury came out and stood beside Neil. The man's face was pinched and wan, his voice still a husky croak.

"Good evening, sir. No news, I suppose? I 'ad 'oped the police would 'ave got on to some clew, but there's nothing in the papers, is there?" Out of the darkness his red rimmed eyes peered, anxious and strained.

"No, nothing. There seems very little to go on. Are you sure you received no sort of clew from Miss Bundy's telephone call?"

"O, that, sir!"—with mysterious contempt. "Well, now you've mentioned it, I may as well tell you we're neither of us satisfied it was Miss Bundy at all. Beastly bit of luck the connection was so bad. Con thinks—mind, she may be wrong—that it was another woman pretending to be Miss Bundy. You understand, trying to make it seem she was alive when she wasn't. Maybe she spoke low on purpose so we couldn't be sure who it was; but I own it sounds a bit far fetched."

"There's something I think you ought to know about, miss."

Neil was too outraged to reply, but fortunately at this moment Natasha appeared with Crabbe carrying her small trunk. Tilbury stood aside and presently withdrew, but his pale eyes till the last followed the girl with pointed fixity. What he had meant to convey was only too plain. With his whole soul Neil wished he had left everything else and concentrated on finding out the true circumstances of the telephone call. Probably the police had already done so, but that did not help now. Besides, what was the truth? The uncertainty was torturing. . . .

Crabbe was saying in a low voice: "There's something I think you ought to know about, Miss. You remember last Wednesday afternoon when you and Mr. Starkey went to Exeter? Well, Miss Bundy had her solicitor down here to draw up a new will. Mrs. Hickson and Pritchard acted as witnesses."

Natasha glanced quickly at Neil. "So that explains it!" she whispered. "You know the man we thought looked like a lawyer? But why should she change her will, and why the cook and Pritchard instead of Crabbe—or them?" She nodded toward the house.

"I can't say why she didn't want me for a witness, Miss, but I do know she sent Mr. and Mrs. Tilbury out. They went to the Cheddar Gorge—or so they said."

This was another poser. As they drove off, Neil said: "Crabbe, of course, couldn't act as witness if he were to receive a legacy, and I should think he would benefit a little, seeing he's been in service so long. I must say, though, this is extremely suggestive, her making a new will only two days before her death. I thought all along she was frightened of having a fatal attack of blood pressure—but she could hardly have anticipated what did happen."

"Unless she knew of some secret enemy, which certainly seems fantastic. . . . No, as I told you before, poor Caroline had left her money to a research fund. She frequently said so. I can't think what this change can mean."

She did not seem deeply interested, and scarcely spoke again till the car stopped at the Gorge.

"Have you got your statement for the inquest clearly in mind?" he asked as he set her down.

"If the truth comes out—as it may do any moment—they won't have to question me closely. Good night—and thank you for all you've done."

What had he done for her except to dig up facts calculated to rouse suspicion? That the police themselves would find those facts did not ease his conscience, which pricked him still more when it came to giving a carefully audited account of his day to the Gisbornes. A heavy silence followed his recital. Rachel's eyes were filled with apprehension. Her brother stared hard and delayed comment for several oppressive minutes. Finally he spoke.

"So Carrie hurried about town hoping to get in touch with her. I suppose the question now is, did she or did she not succeed?"

"Giles—how can you!" cried Rachel reproachfully, while Neil heard himself saying: "I see no reason to doubt Natasha's word. No one appears to have seen them together."

Gisborne went on ominously: "That alligator bag was lost or stolen some hours before Carrie met her end. If it had not been valuable, she would not have wasted so much energy to recover it. Yet you declare it contained only papers."

"I didn't say 'only papers.' I once happened to catch sight of what looked like one of Bundy's manuscripts. There may have been something besides—or the manuscript itself may have been regarded as precious. I'm personally inclined to the latter opinion."

"You are probably right. The poor woman had a bee in her bonnet which would account for many of her exaggerated ideas. Ah, well!" he sighed, "she's dead now, unfortunate creature—God knows by whose hand; and so, as it can't possibly matter to her any longer, I may as well tell you the silly reason for her quarrel with me. Not that it can shed the least light on her death. I wish to heaven it could!"

"It all begins with something which happened shortly before Christmas," said Gisborne. "It seems this photographer fellow, a complete stranger at the time, came to Carrie to ask if he might take some rather de luxe views of the ruin up there, which, as you know, has a certain local interest. The pictures were to be placed on sale in his shop window, for the benefit of tourists. Well! Carrie gave him permission, saying she would like copies for herself, but although the views were taken, a couple of weeks went by and she heard nothing more. Finally, passing the shop, she went in to inquire about them. She laid great stress on this, holding it as a proof of the man's honesty that he never attempted to seek her out.

"Apparently there was something queer about them, which he could not account for, and for which he took no responsibility. On her insisting, he showed them to her, most unwillingly—or so she believed. He brought out the plates, and there again on every single one was the same defect or peculiarity. As I saw the photographs myself, I can describe it to you. Quite simply, it consisted of a transparent but fairly distinct shape or figure superimposed on the landscape, always in the same spot. The effect was much what one sees in X-ray pictures. In my opinion, it was the result of sheer trickery—but I'm going too fast.

"To explain what it meant to Carrie, I must tell you a bit about her father. Old Theodore in his last days—some would say his dotage—nurtured a pet theory concerning the Glebe house. There has always been a tradition that in former times an underground passage or tunnel connected it with Glastonbury abbey. He believed that with the closing up of this passage a certain relic of great interest had been shut from human ken. Carrie, it appears, had held an open mind on the subject, but she was incapable of treating any idea of her father's with disrespect."

"Nothing you or I would call foundation. To begin with, it was a theory he played with half seriously—I've often heard him discuss it—but toward the end of his life it was confirmed by spirit communications supposed to emanate from his dead wife. He dabbled a bit in spiritualism. He took pains to conceal the fact, fearing his colleagues' ridicule, but he did certainly experiment with a medium in the person of a little village seamstress. This woman—Mrs. Spencer—employed what is known as the direct voice, and issued messages which impressed Bundy very deeply. Carrie was diffident about the whole business—so much so that when her father and the seamstress both died within a few months of each other she let the matter drop entirely.

"Now you can see how she felt when this unknown photographer, who apparently had never heard Theodore Bundy's name, turned up with his weird pictures. She was thunderstruck, confronted by a miracle. She saw in it a manifestation of her father's intelligence employing the first handy instrument to remind her of her duty."

Cracker Jack Pleases Sheep at Ardle Grove

But the Prizes Create a Problem.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

When Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. McGlashan motor back to town from a day in the country, nine times out of ten their pockets are bulging with cracker jack or popcorn. For Mr. McGlashan is never content to leave Ardle Grove farm, just east of Frankfort, before his 3,600 sheep are fed, and it's a great temptation to gather up a handful of the delectable looking confections that go into the feeding troughs.

Flocks of sheep coming in across the hills just at sundown, breaking into a run as the idea of the evening popcorn feast becomes more acute—the scene is reminiscent of rural England.

For years popcorn—with candy as an occasional treat—has been the bill of fare at Ardle Grove farm. And it's the only farm anywhere [this on good authority] that provides its barnyard boarders with such a royal menu. Cracker jack until recently offered variety, but so much difficulty was encountered with the prizes—doll furniture, automobiles, whistles, and horns—that came through in the freight car shipments, it had to be dropped from the menu card.

Mr. McGlashan's friendship with Henry Eckstein is responsible for this strange bill of fare. Years ago when he heard of the tons of cracker jack and popcorn going to waste because of some slight imperfection such as scorching, he persuaded Mr. Eckstein to let him try it on his sheep and cattle. Ever since it has been arriving by the freight car load.

Ardle Grove farm means more to Mr. McGlashan, however, than sheep and cattle and popcorn. It's his best hobby. He was born under the stalwart elms that shade Manager Joseph Scott's house today and in spite of the business interests that have made a "gentleman" farmer of him these many years, there's never a place he enjoys as much. The spirit of it is written into the few lines that appear on a wooden plaque tacked on one of the elm trees:

"A puritanic quiet here reviles
The almost whispered warble from the hedge
And takes a locust's rasping voice and flies
The silence to an edge."

It was in 1857 that Mr. McGlashan's father and mother, fresh from Scotland, chose the original section of the 850 acres for their home. Ardle Grove was selected as the name after Mrs. McGlashan's favorite country estate in the land of the heather.

Those were the days when prairie schooners were making their way to the west along the old Sauk trail that cuts the farm in the middle. Robert Kinzie, relative of John Kinzie, camping overnight, liked a spot on Hickory creek so much that he stayed and built himself a log cabin. Mrs. John Kinzie describes the parties in this cabin in her book "Waubun," now almost extinct. William McKay has one of the few remaining copies.

Long after the Kinzies were gone the cabin remained as a landmark on the McGlashan farm. In fact it was only a few years ago that it was destroyed by storm.

"I don't date back quite that far," said Mr. McGlashan the other day, "but I remember well the big covered wagons that used to pull off the trail into the farm for the night. I grew up on stories about New England anti-slavery families who hurried west about 1854 to settle Kansas before the southerners got control. 'Kansas or Bust' was the sign on their wagons.

"It's of interest to go even farther back than that, however, and speculate about the Indians that traveled this country," he went on to tell. "The old Sauk trail was a main thoroughfare to the Indians' four sacred spots in the middle west. One of these was Pipestone, Minn., where they found the peculiar red sandstone that played such an important part in their religious and ceremonial life. Another was Prairie du Chien, the great council place of the Indians and still a third, Rock Island, the American capital of the red man. Here the braves of the various tribes came to take tests worse than any college examination of this day and age. The fourth place was Fort Massie on Canadian soil, the sacred burial ground of the Indian."

Make-Up Chief Changes Men Into Animals.

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 13.—The tale of Circe, modernized, is being made at Catalina by Paramount; it is called "Island of Lost Souls," by H. G. Wells, and has to do with the activities of a modern doctor who can change men into pigs, boars, dogs, apes, wolves, just as did the ancient sorcerers. Wallie Westmore, the makeup man, is having a lot of work to get all the players needed in makeup for these odd rôles. He says he enjoys it.

Westmore plans in his mind, and then draws his conception of how each makeup will look when completed. Then, once he has created the makeup, it is handled by a crew of five of his trained men, who must spend an hour apiece daily redoing the physiognomies of the ten men playing animal rôles.

In casting for these rôles, Westmore insisted that he be allowed to choose the different types, to get men as nearly as possible with a resemblance to the general contours of the faces of the animals to be prepresented. Conformation of the jaw seems the most deviating and necessary thing to consider in making selections.

It is for this film that Kathleen Burke, the Chicago girl, was chosen for the rôle of the Panther woman. Already she fears that the title may cling to her and hamper a later career in films.

The last of the season's Catalina Island expeditions are the "Island of Lost Souls" and "Let's Go" stories. Part of the former is being filmed aboard the chartered steamship Covina. Earle Kenton is directing the unusual story, which has Charles Laughton, Dick Arlen, Leila Hyams and Miss Burke heading the cast. "Let's Go" is a motorboat thriller in which Bill Haines, Madge Evans, Cliff Edwards and Conrad Nagel are playing.

Cora Sue Collins, that cute baby who plays with Norma Shearer and has just finished "Silver Dollar," has been subjected to so many movie wedding scenes recently that she has gotten interested in the subject of brides. She promptly went home and made a wedding gown for her kitten, Cuddles. The form fitting effect was gotten by using an old white sock for the body of the gown, with a train and veil made of a pair of lace dollies. Cuddles is useful as well as ornamental, as she sits by at breakfast and eats the egg Cora Sue snoops down to her, which Cora Sue does not like. Cora Sue is author of that immortal classic line, "There's No Such Thing as Too Much Ice Cream."

Did you know that in all those catchy cartoon comedies the lines drawn are all curved? Even the doors and fences, in the animated pictures, the angles are curves. Curved lines blend together when a rapid succession of pictures are displayed to indicate movement, but if the lines are straight, with corners and angles, the movement would be very jerky.

Boy Wants an Apology for Slap in Public

He Was Drunk and Girl Struck Him.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

He, 23, and she, 21, attended a party. Bad gin was served. The boy got frightfully lit. Made an exhibition of himself talking loud, singing loud and looking a painful sight. The girl tried to lure him away from the party. He refused to come.

She tried again. He made a verbal pass at her that infuriated her. She gave him the palm of her hand across his face. She feels the sting of it yet, she testifies. But what the youth said to her was insulting and thoroughly unwarranted by any conduct on her part in their year's friendly relationship.

An older woman present who saw the incident said aloud: "Good for you, girl! If a few more of you girls would have the courage to reprimand boys that way we'd have a better behaved crop of them at parties!"

That remark burned the boy up! Also, the fact that others witnessed the slap in the face! He did call the girl the next morning, however, and apologized to her for his insulting remark. Explained he did not know how he ever could have said such a thing. But told her he thought an apology was coming from her, too, for making the scene she did. Also, for not telling the older woman that never before had he been in such a condition. He's afraid she will go around telling that he is nothing but a drunken beast, as the woman has a tongue in her head.

The incident is done and over now. The less said about it, the better. Nothing would be gained did the young woman go to the older woman and explain that the boy's behavior was the result of one lapse from sobriety. Better let it drop so far as she is concerned and pray she will forget the incident.

Whether an apology is due or not for the public face slapping, it would not hurt to tell the boy you might have handled the reprimand with less publicity. He probably feels like a worm and needs a lift. Only don't spoil the good of the lesson by "crawling," now.

You shot home your demand for respect. So draw down the shutters on the unfortunate occurrence and let the boy's future conduct be your guide.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Blind Man Needs Clothes.

"I wonder if you can get some clothes for a blind man who sells articles at a corner in the loop. He has a family to provide for and is very needy and deserving. He needs an overcoat, size 40; some flannel shirts, size 15, and some woolen socks, size 10½. His wife, who is ill, needs a pair of low heeled shoes, size 5, and raincoat, size 38. MRS. M. M."

Selling novelties on the streets nets a precarious living for this blind man and consequently he is unable to provide the necessities for himself and his wife. He makes a brave effort, however, and deserves any assistance you may be able to give him.

Rich Soil First Need of Winter House Plants

Potting Confines Roots to Small Area.

BY PAUL POTTER.

This is the season when flowers are being put through a "hardening" process to transfer floral beauty from the outdoor garden to the indoors.

For the last two weeks or so the geraniums, lobelia, lilies, ferns, and other plants that have been in the yard have been developing in specially protected spots to be moved into the living room window boxes.

Of most importance in this transfer is the securing of a rich soil. Plants grown in pots or boxes secure their nourishment from such a small area that the dirt should be the best obtainable as the winter house plant season starts.

Many gardeners find the answer to their soil problems in mixing three parts of loam, one part decomposed organic matter, such as peat moss, composted material or leaf mold, and one part sand or sifted coal ashes. Florists also carry good potting soil for those unable to secure a "home made" mixture.

Little can be judged from the appearance or texture of the soil as to the food value it contains except that the soil should be dark in color and loose enough to encourage root growth. In such cases as those in which used garden soil is taken for the house plants, it is well to add small amounts of commercial plant food. In the potting process the soil can be mixed with the plant food. Successive applications may be made about every six weeks.

Loves a Blonde.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a blonde. We quarreled. Later, we talked to each other, but when I ask her to go out with me she always has an excuse.

College Club Tea.

The Chicago College club will give a tea this afternoon for Patricia Collinge, Tom Powers and Philip Faversham of the cast of "Another Language."

JUST think of it! 44 ways to serve Eatmor Cranberries . . . ruby-red cocktails, succulent pies, delicious salads . . . including this famous "10-minute" recipe for Cranberry Sauce (Stewed Cranberries)—

Boil 2 cups of water and 1½ to 2 cups of sugar together 5 minutes, then add 4 cups Eatmor Cranberries. Boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from fire when the popping stops, and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool.

We will gladly mail to you free our new Eatmor Cranberry recipe book.

CUT RATE CABS MAY BE GRANTED TRIAL PERMITS

Aldermen's Proposal Is Approved by Mayor.

A proposal to put a limited number of cut-rate taxicabs on Chicago streets, operating under a tariff lower than that prevailing in New York, was advanced yesterday by three members of the city council and approved by Mayor Cermak.

The aldermen were James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the local transportation committee, which controls taxicab regulation jointly with the committee on traffic and public safety; John Toman [23d] and Oscar F. Nelson [46th]. They will recommend to the public vehicle license commission, of which Deputy Police Commissioner John H. Alcock is chairman, that the Public Taxi Service company be granted a temporary permit to operate 11 cabs, pending public hearings by a council subcommittee on a proposal to revamp taxicab regulatory ordinances.

Reveal Proposed Rates.

The Public company cabs would charge 15 cents for the first one-third mile, and 5 cents for each additional third of a mile traveled, it was stated by Lee Daniels, attorney for the company, who conferred with the aldermen on the proposal. The present standard taxicab rates in Chicago are 25 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents per half mile thereafter.

Before Aldermen Bowler, Toman, and Nelson made their recommendation to Police Lieutenant James Killackey, secretary of the vehicle commission, they consulted Mayor Cermak. They reported back to Attorney Daniels that he approved the proposal.

Harassed by Police.

Deputy Commissioner Alcock said the vehicle commission will take the recommendation of the aldermen under advisement. During the summer the Public company applied for a permit to operate its cabs and was refused. It has since been operating out of a garage in response to telephone calls, the drivers refraining from cruising the streets in search of passengers.

Attorney Daniels charged the company's drivers have been harassed by frequent arrests on the part of police, who charge them with operating taxicabs without a license, despite the fact that their cabs bear no meters.

In refusing the Public company a license Deputy Commissioner Alcock said that the commission could do nothing else in view of the so-called "hidden" taxicab monopoly ordinance, which requires newcomers in the taxicab field to submit proof that additional cabs are needed in the city. Attorneys for the Yellow and Checker Cab companies appeared before the commission to dispute this.

The council repealed this ordinance last August by a vote of 40 to 6 after it was learned that it had rested unnoticed on the city statute books for nearly two years.

A short time later a number of aldermen switched their votes and rescinded the repealer by a vote of 27 to 18, restoring the regulation.

SEEKS DIVORCE

MRS. JULIA DAVIS ADAMS.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Julia Davis Adams, daughter of John W. Davis, presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket in 1924, today filed suit for divorce against William M. Adams, New York. They were married at Lattington, Long Island, Oct. 13, 1923. A property agreement was made out of court, dated Sept. 28, 1932. She charges cruelty and asks authority to resume her maiden name, Julia McDonald Davis.

Sues Claire Windsor for $100,000, Granted Divorce

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Marion Young Read, who has pending a $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Claire Windsor, motion picture actress, was granted a divorce today from Alfred C. Read, a broker who turned actor after separating from his wife. The name of Miss Windsor, previously designated by Mrs. Read as the "other woman," did not occur in the testimony upon which the decree was granted.

STAGG TO QUIT AS DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Boilermakers Also Want Revenge.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 13.—There is one thing fairly well understood around the Purdue football precincts. That is that Wisconsin, no matter how good it might be as the result of the tonic injected by the good Dr. Spears, will have to be trimmed here Saturday afternoon.

That usually is the feeling before any football or other kind of struggle, but in this case it is just a bit different. The Badgers have been somewhat of a local nuisance before Purdue homecoming crowds and the Boilermakers don't want it to happen again.

Badgers Gum Up Works.

In 1926 Wisconsin was held to a nothing to nothing tie here, which probably was considered a moral victory for Purdue. In the 1929 homecoming affair the two teams deadlocked again, this time by 19 to 19. In 1930 the returning alumni suffered the scare of their lives when the Badgers succumbed only by the slim margin of 7 to 6. And then at Madison last fall the Badgers dealt the most unkindly blow of all. They knocked Purdue dizzy with an unexpected 21 to 14 defeat.

It's that 21 to 14 affair that is steaming up all the employes and townsfolk just now. If Wisconsin had not accomplished on that afternoon what nobody thought it could, Purdue would have had a better claim to the 1931 Big Ten title which finally was distributed three ways.

Forego Scrimmage.

More because of the respect he has for Doc Spears' knack of turning up good teams than because of the formidable 34 to 0 score rolled up against Iowa last week, Coach Noble Kizer of the Boilermakers regards the impending struggle as the "hump in the road" to a Big Ten title or share thereof.

"Spears has a way of pepping up his charges for every game and that's what you must look out for," declared the ex-Notre Dame line man as he sent his varsity squad through a rehearsal this afternoon. He banned a final scrimmage, however, out of fear that fresh bruises might be the consequence.

What is going to carry Purdue over the "hump" in the road—if it is carried—is a line that is one hundred per cent tough and a back field capable of anything permitted under the rules. The line was pretty good last year and the few necessary changes haven't weakened it to any appreciable extent. Its work against the Gophers proved this much.

Horstmann for President.

Banners are already being hoisted hereabouts proclaiming Roy Horstmann the outstanding full back in the middle west, a claim generally recognized last fall. His current bid for recognition was strengthened last Saturday when he matched up with Jack Manders, the Gopher full back who is conceded to be quite a guy at crashing through. Each fellow had 14 turns at carrying the ball. Horstmann finished with a net advance of 54 yards against 32 for the Minnesota star.

Horstmann is a rather interesting fellow, aside from his football labors. He lives at Mishawaka, Ind., but was born at Aurora, Ill., Dec. 6, 1910, and just why one of the nearby colleges didn't sign him the next day is a puzzle. Since then he has grown into 179 pounds of brawn. He's an electrical engineering student and a bug on radio. Has his own amateur code station at home under the license of W9AEM. He also wears glasses at all times, except when playing football. He doesn't have to see then. He just feels his way.

Then There's Pardonner.

Another deadly item Wisconsin will have to watch if it is to succeed on Saturday is Paul Pardonner, the Boilermaker quarter back, who strolls around the campus wearing, among other things, a funny hat that looks suspiciously like a French beret. Pardonner hails from Middletown, O., which makes two reasons for keeping the spot on the map. The other is Charley Root, the Cub pitcher. Pardonner is a good ball carrier, excellent as a pass receiver, good on defense, and an accomplished drop kicker.

Still another fellow the Badgers must reckon with is Paul Moss, an end from Terre Haute, Ind. The boy is quite a punter, as conference teams already know, and a standout as a pass receiver. He's also a pretty fair country ball player and open to offers from any major league club.

Old Boys Return.

The game itself is only a part of what has been planned for the homecomers. There will be more action than offered by a street carnival. Degrees are to be conferred on two of Purdue's sons. Ten old boys who as youths were members of the first Purdue championship team in 1892 have promised to return.

The '92 gridders are J. M. Studebaker Jr., South Bend, Ind.; Jessie Little, Lowell, Ind.; James R. Hudelson, Chicago; J. A. Thompson, Edinburg, Ind.; O. C. Ross, Indianapolis; S. M. Kintner, Pittsburgh, Pa.; L. A. Downs, Chicago; Leon Crowell, Portland; Grant Williams, Connersville; and H. C. Buschman, Indianapolis.

ILLINOIS' SPIRIT IS ON UPGRADE, BUT HOW COME?

Nobody Can Tell You Why Team Is Better.

BY STEWART OWEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 13.—The setting has been arranged very neatly here at the University of Illinois for an upset of more or less startling degree when the Illinois football team clashes with Northwestern in the Illini's 23d annual homecoming game on Saturday.

Illinois may not win. In fact, it's more than probable that the Illini won't win, but there is a feeling prevalent that they will give the Wildcats the stiffest battle Northwestern has had for a long, long time. The feeling is not confined entirely to the student body and the townspeople. Out on the stadium field there seemed to be more spirit, more alacrity and considerable more ability than an Illinois team has displayed since 1929.

Zuppke Perks Up.

And down in the catacombs under the concrete stand, where the coaches take their showers, the atmosphere was not quite as blue as it has been in recent years. If you try to find out just what this near optimism is based on you'll find everybody is willing to admit the team must be better than that of 1931, largely because it would be impossible for any team to be otherwise.

But whatever the theory advanced, there is no doubting that there is a better spirit prevailing in the Illini camp.

Whether the spirit is a result of improvement in the team or whether the improvement is a result of the better spirit, it is impossible to ascertain. Zuppke himself admits that the team has a better spirit than his last two squads.

Team Spirit Good.

"If they win a couple of games they may be good before the season is over," he said. "Right now they're awkward; they're handicapped by injuries; and many of them are playing in positions they're not accustomed to, but they have aptitude and I think they'll develop.

"If they play a good game against Northwestern and a good game against Michigan, then they'll be all right. But if they get some bad breaks and look bad at the start they may not recover, like last year's team.

"They look more like football players. They're not as big as most conference teams—in fact, they're not as big as last year's team—but, then, that squad was a bunch of fatties. They were all overweight. They couldn't move fast. This bunch is smaller, but it's faster and it's more alert."

They're All Strangers.

Zuppke's chief problem, he points out, is trying to teach a lot of sophomores positions with which they have never had a speaking acquaintance. His line will be made up almost entirely of men playing their first year of college football and several of those will be starting at positions at which they have never played.

If Ack Bodman, a veteran guard, is unable to start—and it seems likely that he may be held out of the Northwestern game because of injuries—the Illinois line will be made up of sophomores from the left end to the right tackle. Ivan Schustek, a junior, will play right end, but he can hardly be called a veteran, having been only a reserve wing man last season.

Julius Hoeft, a Chicago boy, will start at left end in place of Fred Frink, the star of last year's team, who is nursing a torn ligament. Hoeft was a back in his high school days and has been converted into an end, simply because there isn't anybody else to play the position.

What! No Vets?

Red Gragg of Streator, will start at tackle, a position with which he is familar only because he played it against Bradley last Saturday after two scrimmages. Originally he was a full back. Barton Cummings, a sophomore from Rockford, will play the other tackle and Chuck Bennis of Lincoln, will be at center. Both were ends in their prep school days.

August Kowalski of Chicago and Bob Hladik of Congress Park, will be the guards, if Bodman doesn't start. Neither has played guard before, but Kowalski will put a little weight into the center of the line.

And that's Illinois' varsity line.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY ARNOLD OSS.
[As told to Wilfrid Smith.]

The greatest thrill I ever got from football? Well, that's a bit difficult to answer. There's a zest to playing that makes all games memorable. But I suppose one's happiest memories are those of games won.

ARNOLD OSS.

I believe the Michigan game of 1919, which Minnesota won, 34 to 7, is clearest in my memory. For one reason that was my first year on the varsity and it was the third game in which I started as a regular. For another, I scored a touchdown in the fourth quarter on a run through the entire Michigan team, during which I reversed my field several times and had the satisfaction of running around Butch Froemke, Michigan halt back, whom I had known since our high school days in North Dakota.

That Run Around Froemke! There's the Real Thrill.

I suppose I was thrilled to have played on a team in my sophomore year which beat Michigan, but I remember best my run and Butch Froemke, who couldn't catch me.

We had a good team that year and at one time thought we would win the conference championship. In my first game we defeated Wisconsin, 19 to 7, but in the second game in which I played, Illinois, which was to win the title with six victories and one defeat, beat us, 10 to 6. Ralph Fletcher, as I remember, kicked the point after the touchdown and the field goal. That was our second licking of the year and definitely put us out of the title race.

Then we prepared for Michigan, our last opponent. We stopped off at Jackson, Mich., on the way to Ann Arbor and there Dr. Williams, our coach, gave us a sequence of plays with which we started the game the next day and which had much to do with our early rush to a lead.

But I don't want to digress. The thrill of that game before more than 20,000 people at old Ferry field—and that was a big crowd in those days—was in the fact that I was playing against Michigan. And Butch Froemke. I came to Minnesota from Lidgewood, N. D. There I had played against Froemke in high school. During the summer of 1919 there was a lot of kidding between Froemke and myself over the Minnesota-Michigan game.

Goes Through Tackle for 70 Yards and Touchdown.

I had made several good gains against Michigan during the game, but the thrill came in the fourth period. I took the ball deep in our territory, about our own 30 yard line, and hit between Michigan's left tackle and left end. Then I cut back to my left and ran diagonally to the middle of the field. There I reversed again and started across the field. My last change of direction carried me around Froemke and the other Michigan backs and I finished a 70 yard run to the goal.

Believe me, that run gave me a thrill and most of all because I had outrun my North Dakota prep rival. I weighed 178 then, which is my weight now, but I could cover 100 yards in 10 1-5 seconds.

Arnie Oss, one of Minnesota's greatest half backs, almost became the first athlete in the history of the school to win nine varsity letters. In his sophomore year he participated in football, basketball and track. Because of illness he did not earn a track letter in 1921 although he might have done so except that he wished to be in the best of condition for the 1921 football season. That fall he was unable to finish the season because of an injury, but he received a letter. At the end of his university career Oss had eight varsity letters.

Oss ran the quarter mile on the track team and while he was beaten for the Big Ten championship, he was one of the best runners in the conference, consistently covering 440 yards in 49.1 seconds, which was a very good mark a decade ago.

Oss is now 33 years of age. He is married and lives in Minneapolis. He has two children, a boy and a girl.

Forget Football! Tap Slot Machines for Charity Fund

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—The committees and promoters are making desperate efforts to round up a few more dollars for the relief of the destitute as winter approaches. Hardly a prize fight or wrestling match is presented now which does not promise some share of the gate receipts to charity. Presumably the colleges will be invited to arrange another program of charity games for organizations which are trying to succor the poor.

NEWTON D. BAKER.

Unfortunately, this sort of thing has been going on since the fall of 1930 and the pickings have diminished in proportion to the increase of want. There were customers who bought tickets for the relief of the unemployed in 1930 who could use some relief themselves at this time.

The sport industry, including intercollegiate football, has been the most liberal donor of all. The sport business can afford to be, for it is under no expense for advertising. The contributions which it has made correspond to the appropriations which other industries spend for space next to pure reading matter.

How About Other Sources?

There are several potential sources of big revenue, however, which Mr. Newton D. Baker and the other altruists who are trying to raise money have ignored, possibly on fastidious moral grounds.

There is a great traffic in lottery tickets in the United States even during the time of poverty. The Irish Free State hospitals' sweepstake sells large numbers of coupons to Americans at $2 each. Various Canadian and German lotteries, based on English horse races, Cuban government drawings, and occasional native American lotteries which are strictly fakes, are sold to Americans either by and through agents or through the mails. The amount of money which is drained off by lotteries is not to be ascertained, but it would take hundreds of Jack Curley's wrestling matches and Humbert Fugazy's nonchampionship prize fights to produce an equal sum.

Morally, however, the lottery is wrong, and it would never do to compromise with statutory sin, even with the mitigating motive of saving people from starvation. Illinois, Maryland, Kentucky, and Florida have legalized a phase of this sin by permitting parimutuels to operate at their race tracks. There is absolutely no difference in moral principle between this form of gambling, under state supervision, and a lottery gamble similarly conducted. But legally there is a great difference. So the money goes to help the deserving destitute of other countries, which will be a great consolation to destitute Americans.

Slot Machines Get Big Play.

There are also in operation in this country during the year of the political campaign, when the local organizations of both political complexions have unusual need for money, an extraordinary number of quarter slot machines. These machines are operated by a racket, and they are to be found not only in New York but in every other city which I have visited in the last year. This includes Los Angeles, which is one of our most sanctimonious cities, and little straitlaced cities in New England.

The racket receives a third of the money which the machine drains from the victims; the proprietor of the saloon, hotel, or cigar store receives a third, and the local politicians receive a third, part of which they turn over to their organizations for the expenses

OHIO VETERANS FIGURE THEY'LL UPSET MICHIGAN

They Did It Last Season, So Why Not Again?

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 13.—Ohio State's veterans—there's only one sophomore on the first eleven—this afternoon continued their arduous preparations for Michigan's Wolverines when they come to town Saturday. These veterans remember the game last year at Ann Arbor. Then, as now, Michigan was favored to win, but the Buckeyes rushed through the line and around ends until they won, 20 to 7.

These old timers want to know why most fans think Michigan will win. Last year the Bucks stopped Harry Newman, the Wolverines' passing and running quarter back. They also checked Fay, Heston and Everhardus, not to mention Bill Hewitt, the full back, whose job this year has been taken over by Jack Regeczi, sophomore triple threat back.

Have Buckeyes Gone Back?

Ohio State admits that Michigan's victories over Michigan State and Northwestern indicate that Coach Kipke has an excellent team. But the Buckeyes do not see how that team can be better than the 1931 eleven, whose only loss was to Ohio, and which tied for the conference title. To admit that Michigan is better than Ohio would be to admit that the Buckeyes have gone back in one year instead of improving.

Strangely enough, although Ohio State has won only six games in 28 played with Michigan (two were tied), Ohio has taken three out of the last four. Sam Willaman started his coaching duties here the same year Harry Kipke assumed command at Michigan. In 1928 Ohio won, 19 to 7, and repeated the next year, 7 to 0. In 1930 Michigan won, 13 to 0, and that victory was as typical of Michigan's style of play as its victory last week over Northwestern.

Michigan Banks on Punting.

Ohio's coaches are preparing for this offense. They have told their protégés that Michigan will first attempt to kick Ohio back into its own territory. In the Northwestern game last Saturday Michigan was able to skip this part of its routine, for the Wildcat backs fumbled and gave Michigan possession of the ball in Northwestern territory.

Once within the scoring zone, Michigan will depend on the running of Fay, Everhardus, and Heston, interspersed with forward passes by Newman, for its points. In 1930 both of Michigan's touchdowns came in the second half and started with first down forward passes. Unexpected plays, coupled with excellent blocking on the offense and uniformly consistent defense, contribute to Michigan's strength. Opponent's errors, four times out of five, are capitalized by Michigan.

All this and more the Ohio coaches have told their players. They have used the practice periods this week to learn defenses against passes. Carl Cramer, whose individual work at Ann Arbor last year in his first Big Ten game accounted for Ohio's victory, has drilled on punting and passing. It is not expected he will carry the ball as often as in the Indiana tie game last week. Carroll and Keefe, who will start in place of Capt. Lew Hinchman, who is injured, will shoot off tackles with Mike Vuchinich hitting the line. But it is defense which causes most worry.

Carnera Floors Stanton 11 Times; Knocks Him Out

Camden, N. J., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Primo Carnera of Italy tonight knocked out Gene Stanton, Cleveland heavyweight, in the sixth round of a ten round bout. Carnera forced the battle from the start and floored Stanton eleven times. A dozen spectators were cut and bruised when temporary bleachers collapsed during the preliminary bouts, throwing several hundred fans to the floor of the 114th regiment armory.

TOO OLD?

A. A. Stagg, athletic director and football coach at the University of Chicago for 41 years, is retired by board of trustees under rule which provides members of the faculty must resign on reaching the age of 70.

Stagg's Career Parallels Development of Football

BY ARCH WARD.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, who came to the Midway when it was only a field of goldenrod, has been told he is too old to carry on for the University of Chicago as sports leader. If his retirement from active coaching becomes permanent, football will have suffered its second severe loss in less than two years. Knute Rockne was the other.

Mr. Stagg has served the University of Chicago as athletic director and football coach since it opened its doors in 1892, a record without parallel in sport.

When Stagg arrived at Chicago, Rockne was a three year old boy in Norway. Robert Zuppke, who has been one of his principal Big Ten rivals, was only getting a good start in grammar school. Noble Kizer of Purdue and Harry Kipke of Michigan, whose teams will encounter the Maroons this season, had not been born. Jim Corbett had just won the world's heavyweight boxing championship from John L. Sullivan.

Worked for Good of Athletics.

Stagg's ability as a coach is universally conceded. He held his place in times of gridiron prosperity and in depression. But it has been as a sincere and effective crusader for sportsmanship and high standards in amateur athletics that he became nationally prominent.

Stagg was born Aug. 16, 1862, in West Orange, N. J., the fifth son of eight children, a descendant of colonial stock, both sides of which had fought in the War of the Revolution. Though young Stagg lived within 16 miles of New York, he did not see that city until he was as many years old. He spent his summers cutting hay on the salt meadows of Newark bay, labor that toughened his already strong physique.

Eighteen years old when he finished district school, he worked his way through Orange High school by tending furnaces, lawns and gardens, and doing odd jobs. In the autumn of 1883 he entered Phillips-Exeter academy to prepare for Yale. His capital amounted to $21, and during three months of the winter his food, which consisted of bread and milk and a portion of round steak once a week, cost him 16 cents a day.

Set Strikeout Record.

Planning to go into the ministry, he entered Yale in 1884, preceded by a considerable reputation as an athlete. He pitched the Blue team to five successful baseball championships, between 1886 and 1890. He was captain of the team in 1888, and that year set a record of 20 strikeouts in a game against Princeton. In 1884, 1885, 1888, and 1889 he was a member of the Yale football team, being chosen in the latter year as end on the "all-America" team selected by Caspar Whitney. Stagg was unquestionably the greatest college pitcher of his time and though he was offered sums regarded as fabulous in those days by professional baseball teams, he steadfastly refused.

After one year in the Yale Divinity school, Stagg decided that he lacked a gift for public speaking and was therefore not fitted for the ministry. He became a member of the faculty of the International Y. M. C. A. training school at Springfield, Mass., having concluded that his life work lay in developing high traits of character in young men.

There his success in coaching baseball and football won him wide attention, and when Dr. William Rainey Harper organized the University of Chicago, Coach Stagg received one of the first appointments. He accepted a position as associate professor of physical education at the projected university and thus became the first athletic coach to be given academic rank.

When Candidates Were Few.

In his early days on the Midway, Stagg had only a handful of candidates for football, and like many other coaches of the period, he himself occasionally played with the team. The first team, in 1892, played 13 games against high school and college opponents with Capt. Stagg at quarterback. In 1894 the Maroon eleven was the first eastern team to venture to the Pacific coast, for Stagg was an early advocate of intersectional games. He was a leading factor in the organization of the Western conference in 1896 and a guiding spirit in the formation of its code. He is now the senior

SUCCESSOR

METCALF, IOWA STATE, TO TAKE PLACE IN 1933

Veteran May Go On Coaching.

Stagg's Record

THE 40 year football coaching record of Amos Alonzo Stagg at the University of Chicago follows:

Games—	Won.	Lost.	Tied.

His Big Ten football record:

Games—	Won.	Lost.	Tied.
218	124	78	16

Amos Alonzo Stagg, whose name has symbolized athletics at the University of Chicago for 41 years, will retire from his position as director of athletics at the close of the current academic year, June 30. His successor will be Thomas N. Metcalf, now chairman of the department of physical education and director of athletics at Iowa State college.

Announcement of the impending change was made at the university yesterday following the October meeting of the board of trustees.

Stagg's Retirement Automatic.

The appointment of Prof. Metcalf as the second director in the history of Midway athletics disclosed the fact that Mr. Stagg's retirement is automatic under a university rule which fixes 70 years as the age limit of full time faculty members. Discussions looking to the appointment of a successor began last spring, it was revealed. Mr. Stagg is the only athletic director and football coach Chicago has had. He came to the university the year it was founded.

Appointment of a football coach will be made on the recommendation of the new director.

Rules at the university specify 65 years as the age of retirement, it was pointed out at the Midway yesterday, with the provision that the university may reappoint older faculty members on a year to year basis up to a maximum of five further years. Mr. Stagg's 70th birthday occurred during the present academic year, last Aug. 16. Announcement of the impending retirement of Dr. Shailer Mathews, dean of the university's divinity school, who will be 70 next May, also was made following yesterday's board meeting.

Create New Job for Stagg.

Following a precedent which enables the university to appoint faculty members past 70 to perform special services, the university has created a special post for Director Stagg as chairman of the new committee on intercollegiate relations, which he has accepted for a period of at least one year following his retirement as chairman of the department of physical education and director of athletics.

In this capacity he will be the university's official representative in intercollegiate bodies dealing with athletics. With this post he may also combine that of director of student relations for the committee on development of the board of trustees, in which capacity he would do considerable speaking before alumni and other groups.

May Continue as Coach.

The possibility that Mr. Stagg may receive the appointment as football coach is not necessarily precluded by his retirement as athletic director, University officers said yesterday. Football coaching may be interpreted as special service having no relation to faculty status.

Mr. Stagg's acceptance of the position as chairman of the committee on intercollegiate relations, however, is tentative beyond one year. In a statement issued by the university publicity office yesterday, accompanying the statement of the board's action, Mr. Stagg said that he did not intend to give up coaching football. Mr. Stagg's statement follows:

"According to my present feelings, I expect to be good for 15 to 20 years more of active service. I went into athletic work because it offered the largest opportunity for service through contact with young men. No scheme of life which removes that contact would meet with my ambitions.

"I have no protest to make in lining up in conformity with principles, for

Iowa State Gives Metcalf Release; Veenker Gets Job

Ames, Ia., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Thomas Nelson Metcalf, appointed to succeed Amos Alonzo Stagg as athletic director at the University of Chicago, tendered his resignation from a similar post at Iowa State college today.

Prof. M. D. Helser, chairman of the Iowa state athletic council, in announcing acceptance of Metcalf's resignation, said he will go to Chicago at "a considerable increase in salary." The exact amount was not given.

George Veenker, who came to Iowa State as head football coach last year, will succeed Metcalf as athletic director. The post was offered to him by the athletic council when it accepted Metcalf's resignation.

Metcalf was pleased with his appointment, but had little to say regarding his future plans at Chicago. He will remain here until next June, at which time Stagg's retirement becomes effective.

INDIANA SCENTS ITS 1ST TRIUMPH OVER IOWA IN AIR

And They Say Hawkeyes Have Other Ideas.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 13.—The old revenge or grudge motif is being used down here to afford joyous anticipatory thrills to Indiana university alumni prior to the Hoosier homecoming which will be celebrated Saturday in connection with the Indiana-Iowa football contest.

A peep into the record book is all one needs to be convinced that there is nothing phoney about this Hoosier smacking of the lips, as Saturday's prospects are viewed. Maybe you didn't know it, but Indiana never has defeated Iowa in all the years the two institutions have been members of the Big Ten.

Last year the Indianans thought they were going to break through, but the best they could do was escape from Iowa City with an 0 to 0 tie, many saying it was because they had been softened up by Notre Dame in a hard fought 25 to 0 affair the preceding Saturday.

Their Feelings Were Hurt.

Physically the Hoosiers weren't much hurt in the clash with Iowa, as witness the fact they came back a week later and beat Chicago, 32 to 6. But their feelings were hurt and Saturday will afford the first opportunity for balm.

But getting back to the all time history of the Indiana-Iowa feud: The series began here in 1912 and saw Indiana trimmed, 13 to 6, which wasn't so bad when compared with what happened when the Hoosiers journeyed to Iowa City in 1913. They led with their chins to the extent of 60 to 0.

Indiana didn't get over the 1913 jolts for seven years. The series was resumed here in 1920 and Indiana again was defeated by one touchdown, 14 to 7. Then followed another distressing journey to Iowa City, in 1921. Iowa triumphed by a mere 41 to 0.

And why, you ask, do Indiana partisans now think that their great moment has arrived in re Iowa? Well, you don't have to go back any farther than last Saturday to find the biggest source of optimism.

Ohio Tie Encourages.

Last Saturday Wisconsin didn't have to do such a sight of bearing down to defeat the Hawkeyes, 34 to 0. And that same afternoon Indiana was tying the confident Ohio State lads, 7 to 7, in a contest in which many experts held the Bloomington warriors had outplayed their highly touted Buckeye rivals.

Iowa didn't score a point in any of the four regular conference games last season and was shut out in its bobtailed phase of the charity game. In fact, the Hawks only scored seven points last year.

All these statistics are known to the Indiana football squad, of course, thus greatly adding to their incentive. The Hoosiers not only will be striving for victory day after tomorrow. They will be in their battling so that it may not be bandied about the football world that they are the players against whom Iowa scored a point.

Iowa Has Some Idea.

This is written in Bloomington, where the Indiana point of view is on every side. In Iowa City, doubtless, the heavy chatter will be on the fact that no Indiana team ever has beaten an Iowa outfit. Last year, Iowa, discouraged but courageous, stopped a team just as confident as the one to be met Saturday.

The Indiana workout today centered about the forward pass business. The first and fourth Wisconsin touchdowns against Iowa last Saturday were made on long forward passes. Since in the Gene Opasik-Fitz Lyons pass combination Coach H. yes has a pair which rates high in the forward pass technique, the Hoosier teacher is confident that he can produce some tossing equal to that of Joe Linfor, who fooled the Hawks last week.

Stagg Retired; Metcalf Is New Sports Head

I have tried always to base my life on principles. I feel too young and aggressive to step altogether out of my particular work, and, frankly, I am not content to do it. Whether I remain at Chicago or go elsewhere, I wish to be active in the field of coaching."

"The university has the greatest regret that two of its distinguished members have reached the retirement age," President Robert M. Hutchins said last night, in commenting on the approaching retirement of Dean Mathews and Coach Stagg. "Though they have worked in different fields, their endeavors have had much in common. They have exerted a notable influence in their long and distinguished service."

Metcalf at Ames Eight Years.

Metcalf, who will assume the position of chairman of the department of physical culture and athletics and director of athletics at the university July 1, 1933, has been professor and head of physical education and director of athletics at Iowa State college, Ames, Ia., for the last eight years. He is 42 years old.

A native Ohioan, Director Metcalf received both the bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees at Oberlin college in 1912. As an undergraduate he was a versatile athlete, competing in football, basketball, and track. In the latter sport he established a new Western conference record in the two mile run at 9:42.8, and an Ohio conference one mile record at 4:25.6. Before going to Iowa State his record of coaching and physical education work included successive careers at Oberlin, Columbia university, and the University of Minnesota.

Coached at Columbia.

For two years after his graduation at Oberlin he was coach of football and track at his alma mater. His 1912 football team won the Ohio title. Entering Columbia university in 1915 as a graduate student of educational psychology, physiology, educational hygiene, and physical education, he coached the Columbia football team in 1915, 1916, and 1917, and the Columbia track team in 1917 and 1918. His Columbia football team of 1915 was undefeated.

Returning to Oberlin in 1918 as acting director of physical education, he coached the Oberlin football team in 1919, 1920, and 1921, and the track team for four consecutive years, 1919-'22. His football teams of 1919 and 1921 and his track team of 1921, were Ohio champions.

In 1922 Mr. Metcalf accepted a professorship of physical education at the University of Minnesota, where he directed the professional courses in physical education and also served as head coach of track and freshman football coach. He became professor and head of physical education and director of athletics at Iowa State in 1924.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

CHARLES DORAIS, football coach at the University of Detroit, has sounded a new note in sports psychology.

He admits that dressing room pep talks before the game and between halves are pretty much the bunk. Players keyed up to the point where they gladly would die for dear old Rutgers are not physically prepared to give their best efforts, he claims.

"The trouble with most football men is that they go into the game tightened up as if they were frozen," Dorais recently stated. "They set their jaws, their muscles and their minds. They work as hard fighting themselves before the ball is snapped a sthey do fighting the other team in actual scrimmage. Ability to relax is what makes great football players."

Dorais, who, with Rockne on the receiving end, threw the passes that bewildered the Army in 1913, ranks with Struldreher and Carideo as the greatest quarter back Notre Dame ever has had. He received his gridiron schooling under Jesse Harper and later was associated with Rockne in coaching the Notre Dame squad.

Rockne was a great dressing room orator. His pupils accepted dressing room talks with all the Billy Sunday pyrotechnics as a vital part of the game. It is interesting to find a man so intimately associated with Rockne such a thorough apostate.

The consistent success of certain coaches has been attributed largely to their ability to rouse a team and keep it tingling. Many of them have been credited with turning underdogs at the half into roaring lions in the closing periods.

Now comes a student of this particular school of psychology who says it is wrong in principle. Relaxation it seems is the thing.

There may be something to Dorais' idea, at that. Remember Jimmy Crowley when he was playing with the Four Horsemen at Notre Dame? You will recall that he always looked relaxed. He stood around in a careless sort of way, often leaning against the goal post when his team was deep in its own territory. He at times seemed oblivious to the goings on.

But as soon as the ball was snapped he went to work and for the next few seconds he was dynamite. He could do more playing and still finish fresher than the fellows who always were conscious that success or disaster hinged on every move.

Dorais says that because of his belief in the importance of relaxing he does not attempt to inspire his teams before a game or between halves.

"I assume that they have the right spirit and that they are going to try to win," he explained. "My talks deal with scientific aspects of the game, the details of what I expect them to do rather than with the importance of upholding the honor of the university. I would like to have them go on the field believeing that every game was just another hard scrimmage with a crowd in the stands instead of worrying about the tremendous importance of their individual efforts.

"My theory worked to perfection in a game we played with Georgetown a few years ago. We took a sound whipping in the first half. We not only were behind in the score but looked like a lot of clowns. It was the most important game of the season and the boys were so tightened up they couldn't do anything right. They were pressing, as they say in golf.

"Between the halves I knew the players expected a fiery speech. One of my coaches started to tell them a few things, but I stopped him. I told him they were too tense, that the only hope of victory was to get them relaxed.

"We sat around the dressing room doing nothing in particular until the referee came to warn us that the second half would start in three minutes," Dorais went on. "Then I said to the squad in effect:

"Fellows, don't take this game so seriously. The fate of the world isn't at stake. Football is just a game. It isn't war. The sun is going to shine tomorrow whether we win or lose. Go in there and have some fun in the second half. If we have to get licked, what of it? We are due to lose a football game and this seems to be the one. We really couldn't expect to go on winning forever."

Stagg Career Parallels Rise of Football

The great athletes he has coached have been legion. Among them are Clarence Herschberger, Walter Kennedy, Tiny Maxwell, Mark Catlin, Walter Eckersall, Walter Steffen, John Schommer, Hugo Bezdek, H. O. Page, Nelson Norgren, Paul Des Jardiens, Pete Russell, John and Harry Thomas, H. O. Crisler, Charles McGuire, and Kenneth Rouse, all in football, and James Lightbody, Binga Dismond, Ira Davenport, Le Roy Campbell, and Ned Merriam in track.

Stagg is credited with many innovations in the strategy of football, ranging from the scheme of numbering players for the convenience of spectators to formations which have been widely copied. His early shift plays were almost universally imitated, as were the tactics of his driving game, built on cross blocking, which he originated.

He was one of the earliest exponents of the forward pass. Most recently his inventions have been the "flanker" and "whirlwind shift" plays. Coach Stagg also originated the first lettermen's club, the "Order of the C," which annually brings 300 former Maroon athletes back to the Midway for a banquet.

MAROONS DRILL UNAWARE THAT STAGG RETIRES

Completely unaware of the impending retirement of Coach Stagg, which was announced late in the afternoon, the University of Chicago football team yesterday ran through its last serious drill in preparation for the game with Knox on the Midway tomorrow. Stagg gave no indication of the fact and appeared to be in good spirits.

Two Games Sunday End Midwest League Season

Two games will conclude the Midwest Baseball league's schedule Sunday. At the Chicago Heights ball park, the Chicago Heights A. A. will meet the Speranta Boosters for the championship of the league and the Robert M. Sweitzer trophy. The Spencer Coals, winners of both the title and trophy last year, will meet a team of northwest side major and minor league players in the Portage park district's annual homecoming celebration at Portage park.

Big Ten Leaders Regret Retiring of A. A. Stagg

Comment from the leading athletic authorities of the Big Ten last night, following announcement of the retirement of A. A. Stagg as director of athletics at the University of Chicago, was:

Fielding H. Yost [University of Michigan athletic director]: Mr. Stagg's wise counsel will be greatly missed in the Western conference. It would be difficult to find any one able to leave behind a more enviable record of service to society.

Robert Zuppke [University of Illinois football coach]: Coach Stagg is truly one of the real builders, with no idea of showmanship. He represents the real spirit of the game, not the circus side. I hate to see him go. He with G. Huff and Yost have helped to make the conference what it is. Who ever his successor is I don't think he will be as good as Stagg.

George Huff [University of Illinois athletic director]: There are so many good things to say about Mr. Stagg. For one, he was probably the greatest force in college athletics for the things that are worthwhile. We never have had a contract with Mr. Stagg or the University of Chicago, always playing all of our games since the organization of the conference under verbal agreements. I am truly sorry to see Mr. Stagg leave the rank of athletic directors.

Nelson A. Kellogg [Purdue university athletic director]: Mr. Stagg always has been a stalwart for all that is best in amateur competition. After personal contact with him for more than 30 years, I have come to feel that he is a part of the Big Ten.

Maj. John L. Griffith [Western conference athletic commissioner]: Mr. Stagg is the greatest single influence for good in college athletics that football has ever developed. He was one of the greatest of all coaches, and in my opinion still is. He probably developed more new plays than any other football coach. His loss will be irreparable.

Noble Kizer [Purdue football coach]: In my limited time as a coach I have come to recognize Mr. Stagg as one of the greatest masters of defensive football play as well as an all around constructive force in maintaining the game on a purely amateur basis.

L. W. St. John [Ohio State university athletic director]: Mr. Stagg in his 41 years of service has done more than any other man to build up intercollegiate sports, football in particular. The Big Ten, as well as his achievements at Chicago, are a monument to his genius and years of service.

BIRDS FORSAKE WOODS; GATHER IN LOWLANDS

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the wooded tracts in Chicagoland are, for the most part, quiet and lifeless because song birds have gone south, what they lack in activity is more than made up by the marshes these days.

Just before the recent storm in northern Illinois, which brought a great rush of water fowl from the north, we spent an afternoon in the Nippersink valley northwest of Chicago, hunting jacksnipe and checking on the bird life of the lowlands. Beginning a short time before sundown we made the following record of the interesting bird happenings from a position close to a small pond:

Birds Come to Roost.

4:25 P. M.—The blackbirds are beginning to show up. A small flock has just swooped over the pond making a terrific racket. Their flight immediately started the 20 odd mallard decoys to broadcasting.

4:29—A jacksnipe, probably one which we flushed, shot at and missed, is now in the sky and headed our way. It has come from some muddy spot along the Nippersink.

Pheasants Start Talking.

4:40—The pheasants are talking away in the weed patch to our right. Must be gathering for their night roost. What a racket!

4:43—The crows are having a regular cat and dog fight across the marsh in a thick patch of oak timber. At last we have located their roost around here.

4:44—Another jacksnipe and he almost knocked off our ears as he darted by. We were so upset that we didn't even get the 16 gauge to our shoulder.

A NEW IDEA
IN MADE-TO-MEASURE CLOTHES!

FOUR WAY COMBINATION!

The Four Way combination is especially planned to appeal to men who, through sheer force of habit, have always bought ready to wear clothes and who have never had the pleasure of wearing a suit that has been tailored to their individual measure. This new plan enables a man to see precisely what he is about to buy.

Read Carefully the Details of the Royal Tailors FOUR WAY COMBINATION Plan

1. There are thirty-four different models in the new Royal Fall and Winter suits and overcoats. These models are on display, finished in detail, permitting you to visualize precisely how your new suit will look according to the model you prefer.

2. After you have selected your model, you are shown scores of newest and smartest fabrics. You select that shade and pattern which you like best. You also specify extras such as pockets or flaps or lining that you desire and which add to your satisfaction.

3. After your choice of model and fabric, your measurements are taken by expert tailors. Until you have been fitted by Royal Tailors, you can never appreciate the meaning of flawless fitting and faultless tailoring.

4. Before you select your cloth, you make it plain what price you want to pay. Quality of fabric, linings and refinements in tailoring determine the variation in Royal price. A complete assortment of fabrics is shown at every price.

ROYAL TAILORED CLOTHES

PRO CLUBS VOTE TO BOOST LIMIT TO 22 PLAYERS

Make Room for Few of Many Newcomers.

The National Professional Football league has decided by a telegraphic vote to increase its player limit for each club from 20 to 22, effective this week. This restores the 1931 limit, which was reduced as an economy measure last winter.

The change was unanimously approved largely because never before in the history of the league have as many men sought tryouts as this year. Many of these were nationally known college players and practically all were stars in their own territories.

Packers Best Example.

Considering the National league as a whole, it is estimated that only 10 per cent of these newcomers get contracts and another estimate is that of those signed only half will ever reach the stage where they will be in a position to demand top salaries. These prospects generally have better than the average ability and have had the advantage of expert coaching for a limited time. Consequently the obvious answer is that the majority haven't enough ability and experience to compete in professional football.

A glance at the roster of the Green Bay Packers, who meet the Bears at Wrigley field Sunday afternoon in one of the outstanding games of the season, and who won the National league championship for the last three years, bears out this point of experience.

The majority of players who won the title for Green Bay in 1929 had completed one year or more in the league and today, with three pennants won, many of these men are still the bulwark of the squad, holding their positions in the face of continual competition from college stars. New candidates, it has been proved, must have something besides ambition, strength, speed, and courage.

Packers Have Veterans.

The men on whom Green Bay has depended for seasons and against whom collegians have had no success are:

	Pro. yrs.	Packers.
Jugger Earpe	11	11
Verne Lewellen	9	9
Lavie Dilweg	7	6
Claude Perry	6	6
Tom Nash	5	5
August Michalske	7	4
Johnny Blood	7	4
Burdis McCrary	4	4
Cal Hubbard	6	4
Paul Fitzgibbons	7	3
Rudy Comstock	7	2
Dick Stahlman	7	2
Wuert Engleman	3	3
Nate Barragar	3	2

During the last three years 150 men, mostly stars in college, were given tryouts, but only a comparative few were good enough to secure contracts.

Irish Reserves Score Twice on Regulars

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's varsity football squad went through an impressive offensive scrimmage this afternoon, but the fourth team scored twice on flukes.

The reserves took a lateral pass and a fumble which had not touched the ground to score touchdowns. However, Nick Lukats, George Melinkovich, and Ray Brancheau pounded away for five touchdowns for the varsity.

Drake will use a variation of the Minnesota shift, coming out of the huddle, and will then go into a variation of the Warner wing back offense. Notre Dame is familiar with the Warner system, but may have trouble with the tandem shift used by the Bulldogs.

Drake will arrive tomorrow about noon and will practice in the stadium in the afternoon. Five thousand Indiana Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls will be guests of the university.

Just Tap Slot Machines for Charity Fund

Inasmuch as the slot machines are bound to operate, the same authorities who permit them to do so might respond to an appeal to their charity and agree to cut in the destitute unemployed for a share of the money. It is very easy money, and if Mr. Baker's organization were to make a determined bid for a portion of it the revenue should far exceed the percentage which will be derived from all the charity football games this fall. The machines are grinding all the time and are impervious to the weather. Football games may be adversely affected at the gate by snow, rain, or cold, and also by a couple of untimely defeats of one of the contesting teams.

Be Sure to Make Arrangements.

If you do not think the local authorities would be able to cut in Mr. Baker's fund for a share of these slot machine receipts, you just try to operate one in your cigar store or hotel lobby without making the necessary arrangements. If you do the local authorities will wreck your little cigar store or hotel lobby within 30 minutes and move you into a little room in the jail house. You positively cannot run a slot machine without making arrangements. They usually are made, wholesale, by the racketeers who run the racket, but they must be made.

I am not familiar with the conditions in other cities, but in New York it would boost the fund for the unemployed tremendously if Mr. Baker's committee were to be given one day's business out of every week in every saloon in town. Here again the collecting could be done by the local political organization, because you positively cannot run a speakeasy unless you get permission.

Just an Easy Million.

The price of drinks in the New York saloons is 50 cents for ladies and 75 cents for gentlemen in the afternoons and $1 flat for both ladies and gentlemen after 6 p. m. At these prices, and in defiance of the depression, the saloons are crowded regardless of the weather. In fact the meaner the weather, the better their business, and if Mr. Baker's committee should be awarded one day's business per week from all the saloons he would pick up a million dollars much more quickly than he ever will chiseling 10 per cent off nonchampionship fights, wrestling bouts and football games.

I quite realize that all these activities are extra legal and morally distasteful to Mr. Baker. But they go on, anyway, and the U. S. government was not too moral to demand a share of Al Capone's profits from precisely the same sort of enterprises. Moreover, ten slightly soiled dollars will buy just ten times as much coal and clothing and food as a morally pure dollar derived from a football game.

In the Wake of the News

CHICAGO'S MAROONS.

CHICAGO'S Maroons, the 41st football eleven coached by A. A. Stagg at the University of Chicago, are creating high hopes among victory-hungry alumni. That is gratifying in indicating that college spirit, predicated on success in athletic competition, has not been subordinated entirely to strictly scholastic attainment.

The question naturally arises whether disappointment will follow as it did at Northwestern in the years immediately preceding permanent football consistency. Each fall Purple hopes were stimulated before the season opened and usually were dashed somewhere along the line.

Or one might mention those many, many years when Purdue alumni held hopeful rallies on the night before the Chicago game. Several times the Boilermakers were equal or superior to Chicago, only to see the Maroons on the long end of the score, such was the defeat habit. The prime paragrapher's joke of the fall season was "Stagg Fears Purdue," uttered in irony. Now look at Purdue.

Chicago never had as abundant material as some of its leading rivals, yet it took its share of gridiron honors in years back. Of late the showing has been disappointing, almost disheartening. There seems no question this 1932 eleven is better than its immediate predecessors. Stronger elevens on the Midway would be welcomed by alumni, that public which wishes to attend games at Stagg field, and by opponents—by opponents because of greater interest and also because of greater gate receipts.

There is some danger of overappraisal against conference opponents in a year when Big Ten elevens appear unusually strong. With credit for everything so far accomplished, the Maroons have not yet been thoroughly tested. Although the Maroons should have beaten Yale, even according to eastern critics, we westerners must remember Yale simply will not hurry preparation for early season games with Harvard and Princeton in the offing as its big objectives.

Chicago's conference foes are Indiana a week from tomorrow, Illinois, Purdue, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Maroon alumni, we are told, expect to win at least three of those contests. The Wake will think the Maroons have made marked progress if they take two of the five.

This discussion is not to deprecate Maroon chances or strength, but simply to warn against expecting too much in unusually stiff competition from a college which all, alumni and opponents, wish to see back nearer the position it once occupied.

Kid Chocolate Wins in 12th; N.Y. Champ

New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban Negro, won himself a leg on the vacant featherweight title tonight by scoring a tehnical knockout over Lew Feldman of New York in the twelfth round of a fifteen round match that had the championship sanction of the New York state athletic commission.

Chocolate won the right to stake his claim against that of Tommy Paul of Buffalo, recognized by the National Boxing association as the successor to Christopher (Bat) Battalino, by hammering the little New Yorker so badly that Referee Patsy Haley was forced to step in to save Feldman from further punishment.

The duel was little of an artistic success, and less of a financial triumph, for fewer than 7,000 gathered to see the slim Cuban, far below the form he has displayed here in the past, whip Feldman for the third straight time.

Chocolate floored Feldman twice in the ninth, hammering him to the floor with a whipping right to the chin for a nine count and dropping him to his knees for no count the second time with a left hook to the chin. Haley called a halt after 2 minutes, 45 seconds of the twelfth.

Ben Jeby, New York middleweight, knocked out Paul Pirrone, Cleveland, in six rounds after flooring him six times in the first five. Frank Battaglia, Winnipeg, Man., came back after a nine count knockdown in the eighth round to gain a ten round draw with Chick Devlin, San Francisco Irishman.

Mills to Close Season with Double Header

The Chicago Mills, champions of the Wisconsin-Illinois Semi-pro Baseball league, will meet the Logan Squares and the Duffy Florals in a double header at Mills Stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, Sunday. They will be the last games of the season for the Mills.

Bat Battalino Arrives Today for Ross Bout

Battalino fought in Chicago twice last year. In his first appearance he whipped Earl Mastro. His second bout was against Billy Petrolle and after having Petrolle on the floor in the first round, Bat began catching punches and lost.

When Battalino comes in at catchweights, about 138 or 140 pounds, he is slow and sluggish. When he is forced to make weight he is an entirely different fighter. A month or so ago he pared himself down to 136 and gave Billy Townsend, the eastern lightweight, a fancy trimming.

In talking with Matchmaker Nate Lewis over the long distance phone last night, Manager Pete Reilly said that Bat would weight closer to 135 pounds than the 137 agreed upon for the Ross bout.

Charley Retzlaff and Art Lasky, who box Jack Roper and Jack O'Dowd respectively in the heavyweight section of next week's card, have arrived in Chicago. Lasky, the Minneapolis Jewish boy, will be making his first start in the Stadium. Art has a couple of spots in his brief career that parallel incidents in King Levinsky's record. He made a good showing against Jack Dempsey in a four round bout and then went ten bruising rounds with Primo Carnera.

Six bouts at six rounds each will comprise the boxing card at White city Monday night. Five of the matches bring together Cincinnati boxers and Chicagoans. The intercity fights follow:

CINCINNATI.		CHICAGO.
Dick Clark	vs.	Jack King
Howard Mitchell	vs.	Jack Davis
Red Federlee	vs.	Jony Thomas
Red Harding	vs.	Young Geno

The Cincinnati fighters will arrive in Chicago Sunday.

LAKE FOREST PLAYS NORMAL WITHOUT STARS

Lake Forest's football squad will leave today to meet Illinois Normal at Normal, Ill., tomorrow. Four back field men will be out of the game. Spring and Roberts, who had his neck wrenched in the Northwestern B game, remain on the sick list. Erickson, Iron Mountain, Mich., half back, is still ineligible, while Dick Hammond, former Deerfield-Shields star, is out for the season with a dislocated shoulder.

Levinsky Wins Decision from Sekyra; 10 Rounds

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13.—(AP)—King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight, kept up a steady two fisted attack for ten rounds tonight to win a newspaper decision from Joe Sekyra of Dayton, O. Levinsky weighed 201 and Sekyra 178. Buck Everett of Gary, Ind., 186, won in eight rounds from Tony Cancella, Chicago, 194.

St. Johns, Culver Elevens to Meet at Dyche Stadium

The annual football game between the St. Johns and Culver military academies, which in recent years has been played at Soldiers' field, will be held this year at Dyche stadium on Nov. 12, it was announced yesterday.

Negotiations were completed yesterday with Northwestern university for the use of the stadium. The Wildcats will be playing Notre Dame at South Bend on that date.

The cadets of both schools will parade in Evanston before the game and will give a demonstration on the field. Both teams will be guests of Northwsstern at the Ohio State game on Nov. 5.

Two Teams Tied for Lead in Western Electric Bowling

The Switchboard team is tied with the Merchandise Reds for leadership of the twenty team Western Electric bowling league. E. Haydanek, Assembly, is leading with a 203.2 average in the individuals. Switchboard's 1,023 is the high mark for team games, while Assembly's 2,943 is the best three game total.

Tennes, Former Billiard Star, to Be Buried Today

TROT CHAMPION TO GO ON BLOCK; EARNED $50,000

New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Marchioness, leading 3 year old trotter of the year, will go on the auction block at the annual Old Glory sale here Nov. 21-25. Carrying the silks of Mrs. Ralph Keeler of Auburn, N. Y., and trained and driven by Will Caton, the Marchioness won approximately $50,000 with victories in the rich Hambletonian, the Horseman stake, the Illinois State futurity, and the Kentucky futurity.

A Brushless Shave made by SHAVING SPECIALISTS

"Here's where I make a million new friends!"
Bill Mennen

"TODAY I'm introducing a brand new Mennen product—Mennen Brushless Shave—the first brushless shave to bear a recognized Shaving Specialist's name.

"Men . . . it's a wow! Sensationally new and different. It's as big a development in the brushless shave field as Mennen Shaving Cream (lather type) was when we introduced it nearly 20 years ago.

"My chemists and I worked 13 months on Mennen Brushless Shave before we were satisfied. We tested, studied, consulted shavers and skin specialists. Now we're all set. Here's the story:—We have produced a product with four fundamental improvements. Are they important to you? Judge for yourself."

THE FOUR IMPROVEMENTS

1. Made for tough beards and tender skins—That means even men with special shaving difficulties get a smooth, comfort shave!
2. Washes off easily—Not greasy. Not messy. Doesn't clog the razor.
3. Economical—Spreads easily. Gives you more shaves per tube and per blade.
4. Tones up your skin—Mennen contains ingredients which definitely benefit your skin. They leave your face supple—smooth—looking fine.

ANDERSON BOOTS IN TWO WINNERS; BOTH PAY WELL

Texas Jockey Shows Skill at Sportsman's Park.

BY FRENCH LANE.

He lost little time rolling up two victories yesterday before a crowd of 6,500. It was Anderson who kicked Brilliant Girl home in the first race and it was Anderson again who guided Potabit past the winning post in the second race.

Both Mounts Pay Well.

Despite Anderson's following, neither was at short odds. Brilliant Girl was at 4 to 1, and Potabit paid $8.66 in the mutuels.

All Anderson had to do on Potabit was to maintain his balance in the saddle and let the daughter of Bracadale run.

But on Brilliant Girl Anderson who is called "Tex" and who hails from Pecos county in Texas, turned in a genuine masterpiece. Jockeys don't ride any better anywhere than he did on Brilliant Girl.

When the start came Brilliant Girl was back in the rear guard. She was far behind when the field passed the stand the first time and most of the spectators thought she had been left at the post.

Tex Starts to Ride.

It was then that Anderson displayed his riding ability. He hugged her so close to the rail rounding the clubhouse bend that the dazzled spectators expected to see the horse flip-flop over into the infield at every jump.

Brilliant Girl didn't fall over the fence. Instead she kept running most courageously. She passed many horses, but still was far out of it when the turn into the final run down the stretch was reached. North Shadow had been making the pace, but the last turn was too much for her. She eased out toward the outside fence as did Politician's Best and Go Easy.

When they went wide, Anderson drove Brilliant Girl through on the rail. She wound up by beating Politician's Best by two lengths, with Go Easy third.

EXPLAINS PLAN TO LIQUIDATE CENT. REPUBLIC

Clarke Says Method Aids Stockholders.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Philip R. Clarke, president of the City National Bank and Trust company, yesterday explained plans for the liquidation of the old Central Republic Bank and Trust company. The City National was opened Thursday, Oct. 6, with new capital to take over the deposits of the Central Republic.

PHILIP R. CLARKE.

The assets of the old Central Republic bank, Mr. Clarke said, will be liquidated gradually over a period of time depending upon the market for securities and upon general business conditions.

"The fact that the liquidation of the Central Republic will be handled by the City National rather than by public officials probably will mean a saving of millions of dollars," Mr. Clarke said. "Instead of the assets being thrown upon a depressed market they can be sold gradually with a view to realizing the greatest possible amount for the benefit of the stockholders of the Central Republic.

Assessment in Doubt.

"Whether there will be an assessment on the stockholders of the old bank no one can predict at this time. Much will depend upon the market for securities and real estate. However, if the Central Republic had simply been closed for liquidation by public officials the stockholders probably would have been called upon for the full 100 per cent assessment to which they would then have been held liable under the law.

"The formation of the new bank to succeed the Central Republic and handle its liquidation will, I believe, mean a great saving to stockholders of the Central Republic. One of the chief purposes behind the formation of the new City National bank was to afford this protection to the stockholders of the old bank. As far as the depositors were concerned they were fully protected in either event."

All Assets Pledged.

All of the assets of the Central Republic are pledged for loans, Mr. Clarke said. Part of them are pledged with other Chicago loop banks as security for loans totaling 5 million dollars which were advanced in June of this year. The rest are pledged with the Reconstruction Finance corporation as security for loans from that organization.

The Central Republic bank obtained a commitment of 90 million dollars from the Reconstruction Finance corporation in June, but it is understood that the full amount was not drawn. The statement of the Central Republic at the time of the regular bank call on Sept. 30 showed bills payable totaling $35,511,374. However, on Oct. 6 it is understood that the commitment from the Reconstruction Finance corporation was drawn upon still further by the Central Republic.

Two Banks Separate.

The new City National Bank and Trust company has no corporate relationship with the old Central Republic. It has been financed with $5,000,000 of new capital. Stockholders of the Central Republic, however, have the right, until Dec. 6, to subscribe to stock of the new City National at the offering price in proportion to their holdings.

"The City National Bank and Trust company," Mr. Clarke said, "starts in business with all of its assets cash or its equivalent."

The City National took over the deposits of the Central Republic. On Sept. 30, 1932, these amounted to $76,086,977. To cover this amount of deposit liability the new bank likewise took over an equivalent amount of assets. On Sept. 30 the Central Republic had cash of $24,344,761 and U. S. government securities worth $933,606. The additional 50 million or so of assets taken over from the old bank by the new City National is understood to be cash which had been advanced to the Central Republic by the Reconstruction Finance corporation on collateral previously put up by the Central Republic as security for the loan.

The new City National owes no money to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and has cash or its equivalent to balance all deposits taken over from the old Central Republic.

West Coast Man Heads Evanston Home Loan Bank

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—A. R. Gardner of Olympia, Wash., today was appointed manager of the seventh district region home loan bank at Evanston, Ill. The federal home loan board suggested that directors of the regional institution make Gardner executive vice president.

NO WONDER BAGPIPES SKIRL SAE MERRILY; THEY'RE ON FREE LIST

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—(AP)—A great load was lifted from Scottish Canadians today when the new tariff schedules on importations of British goods went into effect.

Bagpipes—real ones from Caledonia itself—were placed on the free list. Heretofore they had been taxed 15 per cent.

Not ony that, but in order to insure Canadian pipers that their strathspeys and reels need henceforth be played on pipes of genuine Scotch manufacture, tariff fees on other kinds were increased to as high as 55 per cent.

Fort Explains Federal Home Loan System

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—Every good mortgage in the United States will become liquid on Oct. 15 and the insurance companies, savings banks, and building loan associations which are now struggling to carry $20,000,000,000 in mortgages, will be under no further necessity to call and foreclose them, according to Franklin W. Fort.

As chairman of the federal home bank board, which has been in process of organization since Aug. 8, Mr. Fort made the first public utterance of the board's plans at a dinner tonight, attended by 1,000 members of the Life Underwriters' association.

Federal Reserve of Homes.

Mr. Fort described the new home banking system as "almost an identical counterpart of the federal reserve system, except in so far as it deals with mortgages instead of short term paper," and said the immediate result would be "no more foreclosures in the United States after Nov. 1."

He said the system would open up on Saturday with twelve district banks prepared to lend to any lending institution against the security of mortgages which that institution holds on houses worth $20,000 or less which shelter three families or less.

Mr. Fort said the capital for this home loan banking system will consist of a government contribution of $125,000,000. Plus the proceeds of the issuance of bonds, secured by the advances it may have made against mortgages, which will furnish it on its present capital basis with total resources of over $1,500,000,000.

Not Result of Emergency.

In explaining the purposes of the new banking system, Mr. Fort said it was not primarily the result of the emergency, but was urged in 1921 by Herbert Hoover, who was then secretary of commerce under President Harding.

"The fundamental purpose of the law in the mind of President Hoover," he continued, "on which there have now been grafted various purposes produced by the emergency, was to make it more easily possible for a man to acquire his home in the youth of his married life."

Mr. Fort explained how such home building was hampered in the west by the lack of any sort of credit and in the east by the insistence of lenders on short term loans.

Expect Loans at 4½ Per Cent.

"The purpose of the new home loan banking system," Mr. Fort said, "is to furnish lending institutions a central bank from which they can borrow in case of need to meet demands upon them, and also from which they can borrow at low interest for the purpose of relcaning. It is the hope and plan of the founders of this system that it will be able to lend to lending institutions money for new construction and for the making of new mortgages at a normal rate, somewhere around 4½ per cent.

"Our law specifically provides that we may lend to any institution that desires to borrow from us 60 per cent of the unpaid principal of its mortgage, not to exceed 40 per cent of the value of the property, if the mortgage has been written for more than eight years; but only 50 per cent of the face of the mortgage and 30 per cent of the value of the property if it was originally written for less than a year. In other words, it gives a direct inducement to the borrowing institutions which borrow from us to make long term amortization mortgages, to be repaid in small installments."

GIVE STRAUS, N. Y., UNTIL MONDAY TO MAKE APPEAL

New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—S. W. Straus & Co. was given until Monday today to perfect an argument for appeal of the Supreme Court order for a receiver and a temporary injunction restricting the sale of securities.

Although it was announced that Frank J. Murphy, an official of J. S. Bache & Co. and Milton M. Eisenberg were being named joint receivers and instructed to post $250,000 bond, officials of the Straus company expressed the hope a receivership would be avoided through an amendment of the court order.

Chocolate Factory Running 100% Above Normal Rate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 13.—Among the notable increases in industrial activity this fall is that of Walter Baker & Co., Inc., at its chocolate plant in Dorchester lower mills. The plant is running about 100 per cent above normal for this time. The August pick-up of orders forced the factory to take back all its regular employés, and so far it has given employment to fifty more.

Check Effect of Canadian Tariff on U.S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—Unofficial government estimates today placed at approximately 75 million dollars the value of American exports to Canada which will be affected by the Canadian-British preferential tariff agreements drawn up at the recent Ottawa conference and made public yesterday.

Officials of the commerce department were working tonight in an effort to determine the exact extent to which this country's shipments of merchandise to the dominion will be affected. A partial list of the changes effected in the Canadian tariff schedule was published by the department, with the statement that the "department hopes to be able to announce the complete list late tomorrow."

Steel, Chemicals Hit.

Prominent among the American exports to Canada which will be severely hit by the preferential rates are chemicals, iron, and steel, and electrical equipment, it was said, since 92 per cent of the chemicals, 90 per cent of the iron and steel, and 91 per cent of the electrical equipment imported by Canada comes from this country.

In many cases, it was explained, producers and exporters in this country will be able to overcome the British preferential rate by lowering overhead costs of production and other economies, so that they will be able to compete with British goods entering Canada under the preferential rates.

The value of all United States' exports to Canada in 1931 was $395,647,609. This was an abnormally low year, according to the commerce department, which stated that the total of $659,093,588 exported in 1930 represented a more normal figure.

Canadians Are Pleased.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 13.—Canadian manufacturers and business experts say it will take a week of figuring to estimate just what the hundreds of tariff changes involved in the British trade agreements will mean to their businesses, but generally speaking the first day's Canadian reaction to Premier Bennett's announcements of yesterday is one of moderate satisfaction.

Retail Clothiers Report Better Sales of Men's Garb

The business committee of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers reported yesterday that September retail men's apparel trade showed an increase in all sections of the country. Higher prices of raw materials and securities were said to be the main influences on public buying. The best showing was west of the Rocky mountains.

BOTH PENNSYLVANIA AND N. Y. CENT. SHOW GAIN IN CAR LOADINGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—Another favorable car loading statement appears to be probable when the figures for the last week are released next Saturday, judging from the reports of the individual roads received to date.

Both the Pennsylvania and the New York Central reflect in their statement for the last week a mounting volume of traffic, while the majority of the western carriers similarly have recorded an upturn in loadings.

The Central handled a total of 95,561 loaded cars during the last week, an increase of more than 1,500 cars over the 94,036 cars handled in the week of Oct. 1. In the like 1931 period loadings aggregated 111,945 cars.

During the last week the Central loaded directly a total of 41,166 cars on its own lines and received from connections 54,395 cars, against 42,312 loaded and 51,724 received from connections in the preceding week. In the like 1931 period 49,925 cars were loaded directly and 62,020 received from connections.

The Pennsylvania also reports a similar traffic increase for the last week, with total loadings of 91,771 cars, against 89,837 in the previous week and 116,292 in the like 1931 period. Loadings last week were only 21.1 per cent below the 1931 level, compared with a decrease of 23.6 per cent recorded for the previous week. Total loadings of the system since Jan. 1 were 27.6 per cent less than in the corresponding period.

In the case of the Union Pacific loadings for the last week totaled 16,530 cars, against 13,455 in the preceding week.

CALL RATE FALLS; OTHER N.Y. MONEY GROWS CHEAPER

New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Interest rates on a fairly wide variety of loans and maturities dropped today.

The New York Stock Exchange's call loan rate was lowered to 1 per cent, a figure rarely touched in the past. The previous rate, had been 2 per cent, instituted last July 7. Except for two days in May, 1931, the renewal rate for call loans had not fallen to 1 per cent since 1908.

Time money rates were also lowered. A nominal quotation of 1 per cent was set for loans of four to six months. The former rate had been 1¼ per cent. Shorter loans were made at ⅝ of 1 per cent, both for 60 and 90 days.

Commercial paper, which is watched with particular interest because this type of loan reflects the condition of the lending market for business needs, was also easier. Loans were made at 1½ per cent for prime names paper against the former rate of 1¾ per cent.

Sales of Sears-Roebuck Make Good Showing

Sears Roebuck & Co. sales in the tenth period made the most favorable comparison with 1931 of any month this year.

While the total sales from Sept. 12 to Oct. 8 decreased 10.3 per cent from a year ago, the decline in the preceding month had been 21.6 per cent and in the tenth period of last year sales had dropped 17.3 per cent from 1930.

The company stated that its southern branches had reported increased sales both in mail order and retail departments.

Tenth period sales for 1932 were $24,353,522; last year $27,159,259, a drop of 10.3 per cent. From Jan. 2 to Oct. 8 sales were $206,345,043; last year $260,067,608, a drop of 20.7 per cent.

"Our business has shown an improvement during the four weeks ended Oct. 8," said Robert E. Woods, president. "The mail order business has shown the smallest decrease of any period of the year. Retail stores have shown a very small decrease. Business of both mail order and retail departments was best in our southern houses, sales having shown an actual increase both in mail order and retail in that section."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—The Canadian tariff program announced over the holiday, some gloomy views of the forthcoming third quarter earnings reports and dividend prospects plus the political situation sent most stock traders on the selling side today and wiped out the improvement registered in the brisk little upturn just preceding the holiday. Leading issues were driven back to their lows recorded early in the week and many of them sagged to new bottoms for the reaction.

Losses in the more active trading favorites amounted to about 1 to 3 points, but the bulk of secondary issues were depressed only from fractions to a point or so. Trading was at an extremely quiet pace and the turnover amounted to only a little more than a million shares. The floor element had things almost to themselves throughout the session.

Call Rate Is Halved.

While it had little influence on the course of market operations, the most interesting development of the day in the financial district was the abrupt decline in short term money rates, the call rate which had been posted at 2 per cent since July 7 being cut to 1 per cent.

The old rate obviously was a pegged one—a sort of gentlemen's agreement among banks not to "lower the standard" according to street gossip—and it has been possible to obtain funds for speculative purposes at outside sources all the while.

Call Dip Technical.

Brokers blamed the day's setback in stock prices chiefly on internal technical conditions of the market. Tuesday's late afternoon rally had not been particularly impressive even though gains of 1 to 3 points or so were scored in some directions—evidently on short covering against the possibility of important developments over the holiday. When the recess passed without anything much happening, the professionals who had covered their commitments proceeded to put out fresh short lines and the result was a general reaction extending to all departments of the list.

One outstanding weak spot was American Telephone, which was under a cloud of unfavorable forecasts of its third quarter earnings statement. The system has suffered heavy losses in telephone subscribers during the summer and early autumn, although last month's figures indicated that the cancellations were slowing up. The stock was driven down more than 4 points below par and was able to recover to 99¾, which left it with a loss of 3¾ points on the day.

Officers Win Electric Bond & Share Fight

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—A resolution attacking the Fokker plan for the sale of stock to employés and its concellation was defeated at the annual meeting of stockholders of the Electric Bond and Share company today by a vote of 3,483,461 to 4,210. The resolution was introduced when the stockholders were asked to approve the acts of officers and directors during the last year, although the plan had been canceled by a special meeting of stockholders on Dec. 7, 1931.

The unfavorable resolution was introduced by Bernard J. Rothwell, president of the Bay State Milling company of Boston, Mass., following his reading of a long statement criticizing practices of officials of the company which, he said, called for immediate correction.

Take Protest to Court.

Arthur J. Gould of the law firm of Pollock & Nemerov, made a statement in which he declared that the legality of the cancellation of the plan was to be contested in a suit.

Mr. Rothwell's resolution was to the effect that the transactions by the directors whereby a plan was adopted under which stock was sold to officers and employés of the company in July, 1929, at a price below the market, and was cancelled in November, 1931, when the market price for shares was lower than that provided for under the plan, "were not in the best interest of the company and its stockholders."

The stockholders voted today to increase the number of directors from 9 to 14.

Earnings Fall Lower.

A further shrinkage in earnings is reflected in the statment of the company for the twelve months ended Sept. 30, although net income for the period covered preferred dividends and left a sizable balance available for the common stock.

Net income for the period amounted to $15,805,610, after all expenses, including taxes, equivalent after preferred dividend requirements to $1.44 a share on the outstanding common stock. This compares with net income of $17,505,984, or $1.81 a common share, for the twelve months ended June 30, and $36,360,346, or $5.86 a share, for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931.

Under the influence of the rapidly ascending security markets in July and August, the book value of the company's common stock rose to $36.84 a share, as of Sept. 30, compared with $9.23 on June 30, $31.95 on Dec. 31 last, and $18.50 on July 29.

L. A. DOWNS.

This statement was made by L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central system, in a talk yesterday at the annual meeting of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. The chamber, which draws its membership from cities and towns all over the state, will conclude its meeting at the La Salle hotel today.

Mr. Downs in explaining the tax burden imposed on the nation, cited the experience of the railroads.

"The railroads pay approximately $1,000,000 a day in taxes," he said. "It took the net revenue of more than 75,000 miles of railroads for the whole of 1931 to pay the 1931 taxes of the roads. In the first six months of 1932 the roads worked 104 days for the tax collectors and only 79 days for their owners. There are literally hundreds of counties, school districts, and other taxing units throughout the United States where the railroads pay more than a half of all the taxes collected.

"Taxation reaches into every worker's pay envelope. It takes something out of every landlord's pay check. It adds to the cost of our raw materials and our finished products and to the cost of transporting them. It intrudes, directly or indirectly, into every business transaction. It makes every one of us work several hours each week, not for ourselves and family, but for our various governments. It makes us contribute to the support of public servants who more often than not are our masters."

Change of Attitude.

Mr. Downs said that in the past tax relief measures have been designed to combat inequalities. No one seemed to care how heavy the burden was so long as he only had to pay his share. But now times have changed and all realize the necessity for reduction.

"The uprising of the taxpayers of the country is on," Mr. Downs continued, "and it is beginning to have its effect. Spenders of tax money are scared. So long as our main emphasis was upon inequalities of taxation, it was a relatively simple matter for spenders of tax money to escape the blame for their waste and extravagance by pitting one group of taxpayers against another. If we were fighting among ourselves we did not have much energy and resourcefulness left to fight our common enemy.

"But the taxpayers have been getting together. Great newspapers have

How will the new Federal taxes affect your ESTATE?

Congress has made important changes in the Federal estate taxes. Not only has the rate of tax been increased, but small estates hitherto exempt are now taxable.

It is possible that the new law will materially affect your plans for providing for your family. We shall be glad to discuss this important matter with you and your attorney at any time.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—Today's bond market was featured by a broad demand for foreign issues and a consequently steady rise in this group to levels close to the year's high marks. Domestic bonds of most descriptions opened firm, but developed nervousness and rapidly lost their place as market leaders to the foreign list.

The inability of high trade and speculative domestic issues to forge ahead resulted, in the opinion of traders, both from uncertainty over the political outlook and a receding stock market. Dealers reported a sudden dearth of buying both from individual investors and from institutions. It was generally assumed that any large scale buying is being withheld until after the election.

U. S. Long Term Issues.

The movement of United States government securities further emphasized the fact that a feeling of uneasiness now provades the street and is resulting in the curtailment of commitments for the long term. This was evident in the long term treasury issues, which sold off around ¼ of a point. The short term treasury issues responded favorably to a cut in bill rates.

But foreign bonds, which derive most of their support from foreign buying, were clearly on the uptrend today, with unmistakable buying of importance in ritish government 5½s, which climbed to a new high for the year after the announcement of preferential tariffs on exports from Britain to Canada.

Other Classes Up.

Other foreign bonds joined the upswing, with leadership taken by Australians, Germans, Scandinavians, and miscellaneous European bonds. Australian loans benefited from the premium of 2½ points on the new Australian conversion loan. German government 5½s duplicated their previous high mark for the year while German corporation and municipal loans were uniformly higher.

The best showing in domestic bonds was again made by high grade issues in the railroad and utility groups.

Southern California Edison.

I have been advised that now is a good time to buy Southern California Edison. How do you consider the preferred and the common?—

A. M. W.

Southern California Edison Company, Ltd., is one of the largest operating electric companies, serving what is said to be the most highly electrified territory in the world. It serves an area of 35,000 square miles in California, from the San Joaquin valley south to Los Angeles and vicinity. The company furnishes electricity directly to 482,000 consumers, and sells electricity indirectly to an additional 390,000 through municipalities [including Los Angeles] which purchase it at wholesale.

Production was originally from hydroelectric sources. Because of variations in rainfall from year to year the company has built extensive steam generating plants to lessen its dependency on weather conditions.

About one-third of electricity produced in 1931 was used for commercial purposes, 22 per cent was sold to municipalities at wholesale, 18.4 per cent to agriculturalists, 12.7 per cent for residential purposes and 10.3 per cent was sold to street railway enterprises.

Gross revenues for the first half of 1932 were $18,194,000 and balance before depreciation was $8,895,000. For the first half of 1931 gross was $19,677,000 and net before depreciation was $8,995,000. Net income for the twelve months to June 30, 1932, was $14,924,000, or $2.37 per common share.

Gross for 1931 was $40,716,000, against $41,129,000 for 1930. Previously gross had shown an uninterrupted upward trend for ten years. Net income for 1931 was $15,024,000, or $2.53 per common share, against net of $16,079,000, or $3.27 per common share, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $15,484,000, against $13,168,000 for 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $12,852,000 and current liabilities were $9,843,000. Funded debt was $128,096,000. There were outstanding $114,303,000 of preferred stock and 3,090,989 shares of $25 par common.

The common ha paid 50 cents a quarter since 1927. In addition there have been stock purchase rights.

The company operates in a compact territory which has undergone considerable growth and gives promise of still more.

A comparison of the ratio of decline in gross to the ratio of decline in net before depreciation in the first six month periods of 1932 and of 1931 indicates close control of operating expenses.

Both the preferred and common stocks are high grade.

Buying Against Bids Main Check in Decline.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

New low price levels for the season were made on all deliveries of wheat yesterday, with the December touching 48⅝c, or 1⅝c under Tuesday's finish at the extreme inside figure. At no time did the market show a tendency to rally and with scattered selling by commission houses the finish was at the bottom, with net losses of 1¾@1⅝c. December was 48¾@48¼c; May, 53¼@53⅜c, and July, 54⅝@54½c at the last.

Stop loss orders were uncovered in wheat on the way down, while buying against bids was the main factor in checking the decline. Winnipeg furnished no incentive to the local trade, closing ⅛@⅜c lower than Tuesday, with December closing at 50½c in Canadian funds. According to reports from the Canadian market buyers appeared to have almost unlimited buying orders at 50c for the December. Liverpool was ⅝@1¼c per bu lower with December at 54⅜c.

Trade Sentiment Bearish.

Bearish sentiment generally was expressed among local wheat traders. It was pointed out that the discount of around 9 per cent on Canadian funds made the price of the Winnipeg December on a gold basis around 45½c per bu, or about 2¾c discount as compared with the same future in Chicago. If the new British preferential tariff of 6c per bu goes into effect it would give the Canadian grain an advantage of nearly 9c per bu as compared with hard winter. Under such conditions the trade feels that there is little likelihood of any sustained advance in American prices unless there are entirely unexpected developments.

At the beginning of the season there was a total supply of 1,091,000,000 bu wheat available in the United States for the 1932-33 crop year. While locusts and dry weather are reported in northern Argentina and rust has been found in parts of that country there has been nothing in the cables of late to suggest that the crop would be materially reduced, and the trade is beginning to look for decided competition between the southern hemisphere and Canada for the world's market.

Corn Weakens Late.

Corn showed resistance to pressure early, but weakened later with wheat and on selling by some of the local professionals. The close was ⅞@1c lower, with December at 26½c; May, 31c, and July, 32¼c.

Shipping demand for cash corn yesterday was the best in some time, with sales of around 500,000 bu reported by local handlers, and there were intimations of 100,000 bu being sold for export. The country sold 210,000 bu to arrive.

Oats were easier with other grains and closed ⅛@⅜c lower with December closing at 15⅛c and May at 18⅛c, the latter selling at a new low for the season. Rye followed wheat into new low ground for the season. The close was ⅝@1c lower, with December, 31⅛c, and May, 35⅛c.

THREE MORE OIL COMPANIES RAISE PRICES OF CRUDE

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Three large oil firms of the midcontinent area joined today in the announcement of price increases to be effective Saturday, bringing the total number of companies posting new schedules to eleven.

They were the Texas corporation of Houston; Continental Oil company of Ponca City, and the Kansas-Oklahoma division of Pure Oil company of Chicago.

The current advances bring the price up from nine to 12 cents in the various subdivisions of the midcontinent. The top price will be $1.12 for 40 gravity oil in north central Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, an advance of 12 cents.

SOUTH SELLS COTTON; PRICES DIP $1.50 BALE

Pressure from southern hedgers, speculators, and liquidators and others was too much for the trade in general to absorb, and with stocks and grain on the decline prices receded and closed within a few points of the lowest of the day. The decline brought out a small improvement in the demand from the trade in general, but otherwise support was limited. The weekly weather crop report indicated frost in the northern part of the belt had checked growth and caused the bolls to open rapidly. Sales of carded cotton cloths in September were 102.6 per cent of the output. Consumption reports due today are expected to show around 450,000 to 480,000 bales during the month. Lancashire cables reported master spinners and operators working for a readjustment of working conditions. Trade sentiment inclines to the buying side on sharp declines.

At the finish futures in Chicago were off 25 to 29 points, and other markets 28 to 35 points. Spots in New York declined 35 points to 6.45c; New Orleans lost 30 points, to 6.40c; Galveston and Houston were 6.30c. Prices follow:

The hog market failed miserably in an attempt to get back up to the $4.00 line yesterday. Directly after prices had poked ahead 5@10c in places, buyers tightened up and soon had the market back in line with the average of the preceding session. The peak price on the early upturn moved up 5c to $3.90, but the general average for the day remained unchanged at $3.60.

A rally in the wholesale trade for fresh pork loins stirred up some interest, but later word that other pork products had weakened carried more weight.

The range of prices continued extremely narrow, bulk of high grade 150@175 lb averages selling at $3.75@3.85. Fancy 150@280 lb averages topped the list at $3.90. Butchers weighing 325@350 lbs sold at $3.25@3.50, while packing grades brought $2.75@3.40, according to weight. A few roasting pigs, no criterion of the general hog market, have sold lately up to $4.00@4.25, averaging 50@80 lbs.

Cattle Trade Drags.

Early trading in the cattle alleys set a draggy pace that held throughout the session. Packing houses carried limited buying orders and met little outside opposition to their mostly steady bids. Although action is lacking, current quotations on the rank and file of steers seem to be more in line with buyers' ideas.

Yesterday's buying indicated losses of 25@50c compared with a week ago. Choice 1,296 lb steers topped the market at $9.50, but few cattle weighing less than 1,100 lbs managed to get within $1 of this mark. Bulk of the lighter weighs sold at $6.00@7.50 and plain quality ranged down to $4.50. Only thin, ill bred stock with very little "kill" sold below the latter price.

Little change was noted in butcher stock for either the day or week, except for some strength in heifers. Calves declined after a steady opening.

Setback in Lambs.

Lambs took a drubbing that forced prices back unevenly 15@40c yesterday, erasing practically all of the midweek gains. Packers and city butchers handpicked best native ewe and wether lambs up to $5.90, while the bulk sold at $5.25@5.50. These classes showed the most gain Wednesday and the sharpest losses Thursday. Range lambs dropped 15c to $5.45. Aged and yearling sheep sold steady.

BUILDING INDEX IN FIRST UPTURN SINCE NOV., 1931

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—For the first time since November, 1930, Bradstreet's building permit value index showed an increase during September, advancing to 13.6, against 10.1 in August and 34.4 in September, 1931.

Permit values, as reported to Bradstreet's Weekly for September, showed an increase of 10.4 per cent over the previous month. However, they are still 61.8 per cent below a year ago. The total value for 215 cities of the United States in September amounted to $30,437,268, as against $27,565,795 in August and $79,589,466 in September, 1931.

The districts showing increases from August to September were: New England, plus 13.2 per cent; east central, 90.4; south central, 40.2; mountain, 24.2, and Pacific, 3.5. The districts which declined in September all showed increases in the previous month. It seems, however, that there is no apparent regularity, but the building trade has hit bottom and has begun to advance slowly.

F. W. Woolworth Declares Regular 60 Cent Dividend

F. W. Woolworth company directors yesterday declared a regular quarterly dividend of 60 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Dec. 1 to stock of record Nov. 10. On Sept. 1 the company had 39,132 shareholders compared with 26,873 a year ago.
